"This is Doctor Groom, I know. Which is young Mr. Blackburn?"

Bobby stepped forward. The sharp eyes surrounded by puff

"He forced himself to meet that unfriendly gaze. Would Robinson accuse him now, before he had gone into the case for himself? At least he could prove nothing. After a moment the man turned away.

"Who is this?" he asked, indicating Graham.

"A good friend—my lawyer, Mr. Graham." Bobby answered.

Robinson walked over to Paredes.

"Another lawyer?" he sneered.

"Another friend," Paredes answered easily.

Robinson glanced at Katherine.

"Of course you are Miss Perrine, Good. Coroner, these are all that were in the front part of the house when you were here before?"

"The same lot," the coroner squeaked.

"There are three servants, a man and two women," Robinson went on.

"Account for them, Rawlins, and see what they have to say. Come upstairs when you're through. All right, Coroner?"

But he paused at the foot of the steps.

"For the present no one will leave the house without my permission. If you care to come upstairs with me, Mr. Blackburn, you might be useful."

Bobby shrank from the thought of returning to the old room even with this determined company. He didn't hesitate, however, for Robinson's purpose was clear. He wanted Bobby where he could watch him. Graham prepared to accompany him.

"If you need me," the doctor said. "I looked at the body—"

"Oh, yes," Robinson sneered. "I'd like to know exactly what time you found the body."

Graham flushed, but Katherine answered easily.

"At least two—the hour at which Mr. Blackburn was killed."

"And I," Robinson sneered, "was aroused at three-thirty. An hour during which the police were left out of the case!"

"We thought it wise to get a physician first of all," Graham said.

"You knew Howells never had a chance. You knew he had been murdered in broad daylight. You looked at him. Robinson burst out.

"We voted for the best," Graham answered.

His manner impressed silence on Katherine and Bobby.

"We'll see about that later," Robinson said with a clear threat.

"If it doesn't inconvenience you too much we'll go on."

In the upper hall he snatched the call from the table.

"Which way?"

Katherine nodded to the old corridor and slipped to her room. Robinson stepped forward with the coroner at his heels. Bobby, Graham, and the doctor followed. Inside the narrow, choking passage Bobby saw the district attorney hesitated.

"What's the matter?" the doctor rumbled.

The district attorney went on without answering. He glanced at the broken door.

"In the upper hall he snatched the call from the table.

"So you had to smash your way in?"

He walked to the bed and looked down at Howells.

"Poor devil," he murmured. "Howells wasn't the man to get caught unawares. It's beyond me how anyone could have come close enough to make that wound without putting him on his guard."

"It's beyond us, as it was beyond him," Graham answered, "how anyone got into the room at all."

In response to Robinson's questions he told in detail about the discovery of both murders. Robinson pondered.

"To you and Mr. Blackburn was asleep," he said. "Miss Perrine roused you. This foreigner Paredes was awake and dressed and in the lower hall."

"I think he was in the court as we went by the stair-well," Graham corrected him.

"I shall want to talk to your foreigner," Robinson said. He shivered.

"This room is like a charnel house. Why did Howells want to sleep here?"

"I don't think he intended to sleep," Graham said. "From the start Howells was bound to solve the mystery of the entrance of the room. He came here hoping that the criminal would make just such an attempt as he did. He was confident he could take care of himself. Get him out and clear up the last details of the case."

Robinson looked straight at Bobby. "Then Howells knew the criminal was in the house."

"Howells, I dare say," Graham said, "telephoned you something of his suspicions."

Robinson nodded.

"He was on the wrong line," Graham argued, "or he wouldn't have been so easily overcome. You can see for yourself. Locked doors, a wound that suggests the assailant was close to him, yet he must have been awake and watchful and, if there had been a physical struggle before the shattering moment was driven into his brain, he would have cried out. Yet after Perrine was aroused by nothing of the sort, and the coroner, I dare say, will find no marks of a struggle about the body."

The coroner who had been busy at the bed glanced up.

"No marks, doctor. If Howells wasn't asleep, his murderer must have been in the room as well as noiseless."

Doctor Groom smiled. The coroner glared at him.

"I suggest, Mr. District Attorney," he squeaked, "that the ordinary layman wouldn't know that this type of wound would cause immediate death."

"Not would any man," the doctor answered angrily. "He's able to make his way around with his victim lying on his back."

"On his back!" Robinson echoed.

"But he isn't on his back."

The doctor told of the amazing alteration in the positions of both victims. Both remained where his head had been cut off, made the attempt to get the evidence. Already complete frankness was impossible for him. Already a feeling of guilt sprang from the necessity of withholding the first-hand testimony which he alone could give.

"Land a woman cried?" Robinson said, bewildered. "All this sounds like a ghost story."

"It sounds, sense than I thought," Doctor Groom said dryly.

"I never could get Howells to see it that way."

"What are you driving at?" Robinson snapped.

"These crimes," the doctor answered, "have all the elements of a ghostly impulse."

Robinson's laugh was a little uncomfortable.

"The Cedars is a nice place for speeks but it won't do. I'll be frank. Howells telephoned me. He had found plenty of evidence of human inference. It's evident in both cases that the murderer came back and disturbed the bodies for some special purpose. I don't know what it was for the first time, but it's simple to understand the last. The murderer came for evidence. Howells had on his person."

"Bobby couldn't meet the sharp gaze. Would Robinson accuse him now, before he had gone into the case for himself? At least he could prove nothing. After a moment the man turned away.

"Who is this?" he asked, indicating Graham.

"A good friend—my lawyer, Mr. Graham." Bobby answered.

"At your service, I'm sure," Paredes drawled. "The memory of that eerie grief was still uncomfortable in his brain. Could there have been actually a woman at the door. The chill dampness of the court infected Bobby as it had always done. It was a proper setting for his admission and arrest. For Robinson knew, he wouldn't wait for Bobby to come in and solve the mystery of the locked door."

Dessie the Demonstration.

"very well," said Mr. Goetz, "batting his eyes like I was throwing confetti at him, "go on to your window and I'll speak to Mr. Lacy about this making googil eyes at the demonstrator when he should be trying to get some contracts for the house."

BY MARGARET WINSLOW

(Herewith is offered the first of a series of narratives about Dessie Dean and her adventures; Dessie is a typical American girl with lots of spunk and pep; watch her: she's going to win out!)

Chapter I.

"Gee, me and the old man locked horns this morning," Dess confided to her chum at the cafeteria.

"Smatter 'ith him?" asked Lucy.

"Oh, it is my second day at this electrical place, and he 'pussyfooted' up to me as I was hanging up my hat in the cloak room and said, 'Miss Dean, you will have to punch the time clock the same as the rest of the employees.' 'What! Me, never,' said I. 'I don't know my number and I don't know how.' (And between you and me I don't want to learn.)

"He is German and fat and shorter than I am, so I pulled myself half way out of my corset and gave him a 'Theda Bra' (meanin' a look of scorn) and pranced up to my window—and, good night! I nearly fell dead when I glanced at the junk he had piled in that window for me to demonstrate. Twelve articles—can you beat it! The devils—if you give 'em an inch they take the street. I called to the manager: 'Mr. Lacy, are we having an auction today or is it a fire sale?' He said: 'That's all right, Miss Dean; you know you were employed to demonstrate our goods, and it seems to me that you are rather late getting started.'

"What do you think I am?" I asked, "an ocpotus with twelve arms? No, sir, it's a little too much to handle and besides I haven't room to use the vacuum cleaner."

"Well, I nagged him into takin' out nine of the articles and at that I'm ashamed to look any other demonstrator in the face. The most any of them will handle is two large or three small articles, and, Lord, here I am with a vacuum cleaner, a sewing machine motor and a washing machine. I've been hollering for a commission on the goods I sell out of the window and my landlady is coming in to look at the vacuum cleaner this afternoon. If I can sell her I'll make that bunch of sauerkraut give me $20 and then I'll feel better. Well, Lucy, it's a great old game, isn't it? Sometimes I think I'll get a job in a cafeteria, but I am afraid I wouldn't last. I can't see the fun of doling out salads and desserts to the average office man, and you haven't time for a good squabble with 'em, and if they'd want roast beef I'd feel like giving him codfish, just to see what sort of a fit they'd throw. So I'll stay where I am, that is, providing I can manage 'em for awhile. So long, see you tomorrow."

Chapter II.

"Well, Lucy, I've conquered the boss in our fight about my punchin' the time clock," said Dess to her cafeteria friend.

"This morning I was twenty minutes late and that sneakin' Lacy had his beady black eyes on me. I hate that boob—he always reminds me of an ant-eater, with his long nose and his disappearing chin resting on his Adam's apple. But as I was saying, I came in late and saw the 'ant eater' talkin' to Mr. Goetz, the boss. Well, old scratchy face waddled back to the cloak room and said to me:

"Miss Dean, didn't I told you should punch the clock?" And I said: "Mr. Goetz, I have neverrrrrr punched a time clock." Yes, he said, getting red, 'and is it that I pay you a salary that you should come and go as you please like a banker, yes?' So I said:

"Mr. Goetz' cold like. I try my best to please you and haven't I sold more vibrators than anyone on the floor and haven't I told my landlady that I would deliver her's myself and teach her how to use it? And I am sorry to leave you just now, when my Uncle Mike has the lumbago and says he has a notion to try a heatin' pad on his back. Yes, I'm very sorry that the matron on the ferry was to give me her order on her pay day, which is Saturday, for a vibrator. It is too bad I wasted my time sympathizing with her on account of her headaches when I could have been out on the deck with the rest of my friends who call it a day's work at five o'clock. But me, I must be chump enough to talk vibrators all the time and have the interests of the company at heart, only to be called down for not punchin' a time clock. Well, perhaps you can get a demonstrator who will waste her time punchin' time clocks instead of trying to sell medical apparatus, and if she will only go to the cabaret with your 'ant eater.' Mr. Lacy, she won't even have to get into the window to work. Br. Brenen of Brenen & Beaver said to me this morning: 'Miss Dean, we have a position open for you any time you see fit to leave your present employer.' So, as they are gentlemen and don't permit any mashing in' among their employees and will appreciate good work I'll go right over."

"Mr. Goetz batted his eyes like I was throwing confetti at him, but he said:

"Miss Dean, the company appreciates your interest and recognizes your selling ability, but we must maintain order. Don't you understand that if you don't punch the time clock, just come to work when you feel like it, right away, quick those bookkeepers will be doing it, too?"

"Well, then," I said, "jump on them. Am I my brother's keeper?" Are they bringing money into the cash drawer as I am when I waste twenty minutes talkin' to a matron who has a headache and wants to know what a $25 vibrator will do for her?" So the poor old fellow was looking dazed and he said:

"Very well; we are both now wasting time. Go on to your window and I'll speak to Mr. Lacy about this making googil eyes at the demonstrator when he should be trying to get some contracts for the house."

"Oh, Lucy, I wanted to laugh, but I thought I'd better pass him a 'pain killer,' so I said:

Meet Dessie! "Gee this model job was soft," says Dessie, "and one of these days I'm gonna be a fashion plate again." No wonder they called her Miss Dean then: she looked like a million. But Dessie's got the looks, and she'll come back, believe us! No wonder she's bait for mashes.

at him and he came bouncing over with a wide grin. I thought to myself he ought to be advertising tooth powder the way all of his teeth were showing. Lena punched me and said:

"He can fox trot pretty well and is a good sport."

Lena was dancing a three-step with him when suddenly she saw her big Dutchman hanging over the railing watching her. She didn't say anything to the cigar drummer—she didn't know what to say. So when the dance was finished she noticed the Dutchman coming her way. He came over and I prayed for an earthquake or fire or anything to get his mind off of Lena, as he looked as if he'd like to strangle her. So he said:

"You thought you'd ditch me and chase out to the dance with that 'pork and bean' sport, meanin' the drummer."

Lena said: "You big lummox, I never want you to come near me again. You have no consideration for me or no thought of my pleasures. All you want is to call on a girl and warm her chairs for her. Don't you suppose I ever want to go anywhere or see anything? And now you have followed me here to start something."

"I didn't know you were here, Lena, and don't be sore at me," the big calf said, trying to smooth Lena. But she, seeing the headway she was making, got madder and madder and finally he said:

"I had no thought of making you mad, but I was jealous when I saw you dancing with that other guy."

"Well," Lena says, "let this be a lesson to you." And he stood there meek as a lamb and finally said:

"Lena, you and your friend come on and we'll go get some chop suey."

Lena, still pouty, turned around to me, the devil, then winked and said:

"Miss Dean, this is Mr. Hartwick. Will you go along and have some chop suey?" And I said: "Sure."

"So as we were powdering our noses in the dressing room Lena said:

"The boob—can you beat it? But I'll make him pay. We'll go to the show tomorrow night and then down to Tony's for a French dinner. A man has to pay for being a boob, Dessie."

"THE SMILING BUG."

4544 E. 14th St., Oakland.
A long time ago when the world was yet young there lived a King and Queen that had two children, a girl and a boy, twins. Their names were Princess Mary and Prince Jack. The King and Queen were kind and at last died. This caused great grief throughout the royal court. As now the twins were orphans at the age of 7 years they were too young to take up the kingdom to rule.

A servant that had worked for the King a long time thought because the King and Queen had died and the twins were yet young that he would rule. He was indeed cruel to his subjects and gave orders that the masters should be still more cruel to the slaves.

He had the young Prince and Princess locked up in a tower. He was really the head of a band of robbers which had been much disturbing the country. He kept strict and stricter and crueler laws every day.

One day the Prince and Princess escaped by the way of a ladder woven from the garters and petticoats of the little sister, Mary.

Jack and Mary wandered a long time through the woods and at last after sleeping in the trees with a rude covering made of worn leaves for seven nights, they arrived at a little hut. They went in, but found no one home.

It was neatly furnished with a cupboard full of provisions, a bed and clothes and everything needed. That day all went well and the next day the little brother and sister would go out and Mary would go with him. It was all good and well with the little sister and they started out.

That day they hunted and hunted, but around about evening they found they were lost. They could do nothing but lay down to sleep. They slept well all night and in the morning they started and searched and had more courage to go on.

In the middle part of the day they both felt thirsty and as they had no water they had to walk on till they found some. A little farther on they saw a small stream. Reloading they ran down to drink.

After they were once more refreshed they started on their journey. Joe walked on ahead and Mary followed. Jack stumbled over something and Mary came running and stumbled, too. They both bruised their arms a little, but they wanted to out what they had stumbled over. They went back and found a trap door half open.

That would be in it. They both took courage and went in. They were much frightened and seeing a rough staircase leading over so far down, it seemed all dark except every once in a while a small candle twinkled. They went on 40 feet and found a long tunnel also. They could hear voices. They opened a door and look and behold, there was their own dear mother and father. "We have not seen you since we last saw you. The world will become of the children if the servants ruled over the kingdom."

They told the children that their kingdom was really another one and that they would go to their real kingdom and rule there. The twins rejoiced at having met their own dear mother and father.

The twins went back to their real kingdom and ruled wisely and good. Later there came the system of self-government and as for the twins they lived into an old age and happily.

Betty's Adventures in China
Betty's parents were on board the "Hongkong" steamer bound for Shanghai, China.

The night before the boat docked a dance was held for the people on board. Betty, who was 18 years old, was dressed very prettily and looked charming. That night she met a young man two years older than she who was very handsome and who fell in love with her, for she was equally beautiful.

One day after their arrival, when Betty was taking a walk, she saw a very mysterious looking Chinaman. He, although Betty did not know it, was very wealthy and owned a beautiful house in Shanghai. He smiled very curiously at her, which only made herudder. She became very frightened and quickly started for home. She turned back every once in a while only to see the ugly Chinaman following her. At last she reached home and told her parents.

That night at 12 o'clock while Betty was asleep, the Chinaman entered her room through an open window and crept up so that she was not awoken. They quickly covered her mouth, tied her with the window and dropped her into the window into the arms of two Chinamen below. They then hurried her into a machine containing the horrid old Chinaman. When she awoke and found herself alone with the Chinaman she screamed and tried to get away, but she was caught and thrown into another room.

All about his house were seen slaves. Some of these girls were entertainers, and this is what he expected to make of Betty. Many

MERRY MAKINGS.

OOD! Goose flesh and Peevish Rattlesnakes! Here comes Hallowe'en. Of course you'll want to dress up and perhaps you'll have a party. Here are some hints and costumes.

PIRATE COSTUME.

This is not as elaborate as it looks.

Finally, they took courage and went in. They were much frightened and seeing a rough staircase leading over so far down, it seemed all dark except every once in a while a small candle twinkled. They went on 40 feet and found a long tunnel also. They could hear voices.

When Bob heard this he acted out his part straight off. "I have a boat," he said, "Take off shirt and make boat. Take off shirt and make boat. Take off shirt and make boat. Take off shirt and make boat. And stain it with blood, stink and make dandy blood stains. Wrap a bandana around your neck and use the bright strip of goods you can find for a sash. Any trousers will do and gum boots are fine for boots. But most of the real pirates went with bare legs and feet. Put big, black eyebrows on with a burnt cork and tie curtain rings around your ears for earings."

After about ten minutes Bob regained consciousness again. The room would have been completely dark save for a single light within the human skull. The whole room was spooky, for on the floor were the dead bodies of men who were unsuccessful in their quest.

Lucky for Bob that his gun went down into the room, too, for it had been agreed that he should enter first and if anything should happen he should fire two shots.

When the shot was heard he rushed in and the police firing was done. Sam Wong was killed and the rest of the gang captured. Bob was soon hoisted up from the room below and Betty and the other girls made free.

Betty's mother was very happy when she saw Betty, for she thought that she was dead. The following week they left China, never to return again.

Betty and Bob were soon married and lived happily the rest of their lives in America.

Once upon a time there lived a King who said he would give a reward to the first person that found his daughter, Marion. She had disappeared for several weeks.

One day a poor boy named Jack who heard about the King's daughter said he would try to find her.

Jack said, "I will go to the forest till it is dark and lost his way."

Farther off Jack saw a little light in an old hut. He went in to the little hut and knocked and knocked, but no one came. So Jack went in and there he saw a witch with long hair. Then the witch said, "WILL HAVE ME FOR MY DINNER TOMORROW."

And she took Jack to a dark cellar where many bones and blood were found. Then the witch locked the cellar door. Jack sat there a long time, but when all of a sudden he heard someone crying. It was Marion, the King's daughter, who was crying. Then the way the crying came from. Then he found a pretty girl named Marion. She said:

"My father is the King." "I came to find you and I will try to get you out of this cellar and take you to your father's palace." "I will be back to you tomorrow." "I will be back to you tomorrow."

He went home and said, "I will tell you who your worst enemy is if you will forgive me."

They said, "We will."

He then told them where the old

back and broke it. After a while he got up on his hands and knees and found he was in a large hole. He saw a door and crawled in. He last went farther and farther until he came to an old woman.

She clapped her hands and he at once was bound and gagged.

She said, "I shall eat you for lunch."

He begged for his life, saying he would give her a year if she would not eat him.

She said, "I will be back to you."

He went home and said, "I will tell you who your worst enemy is if you will forgive me."

They said, "We will."

He then told them where the old

back was.

Then the King said, "Will you come back again tomorrow?" "Yes, sir, I said he would come back."

But on his way back he was not satisfied. He wanted to kill the witch. So he went to the witch's hut and killed her.

The next day Jack came to the palace again as Marion has said.

Then Marion took Jack in the palace and into the dining room. Then Marion said, "We are going to have a great party for you."

How surprised Jack was! Then everyone was invited and had a big party. Jack received a reward and married the King's daughter Marion and lived happily ever after.

Lone Elk

Lone Elk was riding slowly up the mountain side and his need to urinate was driving him home. He was an outcast from his tribe. No one knew who, some said he had offended the Great Spirit.

Turning he saw a band of pale-faced Indians riding toward him, and he turned and fled, rounding a herd when a huge grizzly rose in front of him. He fitted an arrow to his bow, but it only struck the bear in the shoulder and maddened him to fury. OAKLAND TRIBUNE'S KIDDIES

BOYS! HERE'S A PATTERN FOR A BOOK RACK

Bill Hart will have to look to his laurels if the boys keep on writing yarns like this one.

Chapter 4

In the morning we were very hungry. One of the cowboys shot a few wild pigeons and we cooked them and had a pretty good breakfast. But we had nothing to drink. We then mounted our horses and started on our way. We picked strawberries on the way.

We were talking and laughing when one of the cowboys caught sight of a scalp. He got off his horse and picked it up. He thought one of the Creek Indians had dropped it so he did not worry about it. We went another mile and found a whole belt filled with scalps. The Indians were getting suspicious so we said they were going to find out what was the matter. We rode about five miles and bumped into an Indian camp.

We waited for some Indians to come out for the cowboys wanted to get hold of some Indian costumes. After a few minutes five Indians came out. The cowboys grabbed them, knocked them unconscious, and dragged them into the bushes. One Indian found a letter on one of the Indians. He opened it and tried to read it but could not. One of the cowboys who could read the Indian language then read it. It said that the Indians were going to attack the town.

The cowboys got a lot of strawberries and washed their skins red. Then they put on the Indian costumes, told them to find out all they could about the Indians. They went inside to the chief's tepee and gave him the letter. He read it and told the Indians to prepare for the fight.

Chapter 5

The cowboys came running out and told us the Indians were getting ready. We mounted our horses and rode for them. They got all the men together and started fortifying a big hole. They put a big fence around the hole and set the fence on fire.

In a few days the Indians came and attacked. They tried to climb the fence but they never reached the inside alive. They then tried to starve us out but we had stores of food.

Jack saw the head of the Indian that had shot at me. He took his pistol and shot the Indian square in the head. The Indian fell head first down the cliff dead. All the Indians retailed and tied it around the waist.

We found the opening to be a cave. We went in and for a while we could not see because it was so dark. Jack lit a match and we found a candle on the ground. He lit it and we began to search for an outlet. We hunted for about two hours and then we found a little cave that led us out of the mountain side. I was just about to go out when I saw that it opened on a high cliff. If I had gone out I would have fallen off the cliff and been killed before I could reach the bottom.

The Indians were on our trail and coming nearer. We did not know what to do. One of the cowboys had a rope. Jack tied it on to a piece of iron that was sticking out of the ground. We then went down the cliff on the rope. We went down very fast, but the Indians were right behind us. One Indian was just about to shoot me when Jack yelled, "Look out! Duck quick!" I ducked just as he shot. The bullet hit the ground.

Jack saw the head of the Indian that had shot at me. He took his pistol and shot the Indian square in the head. The Indian fell head first down the cliff dead. All the Indians retailed and tied it around the waist.

We were now trapped down at the foot of the cliff. One Indian had somewhere where we could not see him and shot at our men. The bullet hit one cowboy in the arm, but he did not mind that. He took his hand-knife and tied it around the waist.

We looked around for some place to rest. Luckily we had some food with us so we would not starve to death. We built a fire and made some flapjacks. They were very good for we were hungry. We looked around for water and also found some. We drank it and then we could not find any more so we could. We then followed the creek to see where it would lead us. After about an hour walking it began to get dark. We made a bed of leaves and went to sleep.

At midnight we heard voices. We were surrounded by Indians! At first I was scared but the goodness of our God was with us and we were ready to fight them but we were helpless. We crawled through the bushes and crossed the little creek. Instead of getting away from them we found we were going nearer to them. An Indian sentry heard us. He got out of his camp and they started to shoot at us.

WALTER FREYERS. The cowboys came running out and told us the Indians were getting ready. We mounted our horses and rode for them. They got all the men together and started fortifying a big hole. They put a big fence around the hole and set the fence on fire.

In a few days the Indians came and attacked. They tried to climb the fence but they never reached the inside alive. They then tried to starve us out but we had stores of food.

The Indians then made a big wheel and bound straw and grass on this wheel. There were about twelve Indians pushing it. We did not know what to do. Jack sat about eight men and slipped out of a little camp and waited for the Indians to come. At last they rushed on them. So we turned the wheel around, and started it for the Indians. They retreated very fast and that was the end of that fight against the Indians.

WALTER FREYERS.

And now off we go in a wild jump from a cowboy's saddle to the hold of a submarine. It's a corking yarn! GILBERT SWARTSEL.

Pinole, Cal.

The Submarine Pirates. Jack was captain of a submarine. He was told to go to the Hawaiian Islands with guns and ammunition. He set out at once. When he got a hundred miles from shore he saw German planes flying over him. He put on his clothes, as did all the other men. The Germans ordered them to surrender which they did. Then they took Jack and his crew on the German sub. They were put in the cabin and tied up. One of the men managed to get the ropes from his wrists and untied all the others.

There were only three Germans left on the German sub. The rest had been transferred to the American submarine. The Americans caught the Germans and started to bound them. Then they went on the other submarine and captured the rest of the Germans. They then took the two subs back to San Francisco. On the way Jack discovered some planes showing where all the big guns were stationed in France. Jack and his crew got $25,000 for the plans and Jack was given the German submarine. He did not like the Germans and all German things so much that he blew the submarine up.

GILBERT SWARTSEL.

There's a new sort of a yarn from a brand new pal—and they're both the finest ever. If he keeps on sending 'em as good as this, he'll have one of those prizes in a jiffy.

to go to town. We were about three hours away when we were attacked by the Indians. We fought for hours. Our ammunition was wasted away fast.

ROMANCE

The Sphinx Apple

Twenty miles out from Paradise, and fifteen miles short of Sunrise City, Bildad Rose, the stage driver, stopped his team. A furious snow had been falling all day. Night inch'd it into snowdrifts at least. The ground beside the road was not without peril in daylight, creeping along the ribs of high range of rugged mountains. Now when both snow and night masked its dangers further travel was not to be thought of said Bildad Rose. So he pulled up his four stout horses and delivered to the five passengers oral deductions of his wisdom.

Judge Menefee, to whom men grant intelligence and the Indians as upon a silver salver, sprang from the coach at once. Four of his fellow-passengers followed, inspired by his example, ready to explore, to obtrude, to resist, to submit, to proceed according as their prime factor might be inclined to sway them. The fifth passenger, a young woman, remained in the coach.

Bildad had halted upon the shoulder of the first mountain spur. Two rail-fences, ragged black, hammed the road. Fifty yards above the upper fence, showing a dark blot in the white drifts, stood a small house. Upon this house descended—or rather ascended—Judge Menefee and his cohorts with a whoop whoop of the snow and stress. They called, they pounded at window and door. At the inhositable silence they waxed restive; they assailed and forced the pregnable barriers and invaded the premises.

The watchers from the coach heard shambles and snortings from the interior of the ravaged house. Before long a light within flickered, glowed, flamed high and blazed and cheered. The flames running back through the driving flakes like exuberant explorers. More deeply pitched than the declamation—ever orchestral in volume—the voice of Judge Menefee proclaimed the succor that lay in opposition with their state of travail. The one room of the house was uninhabited, he said, and bare of furniture; but it contained a single fireplace, and they had discovered an ample stor'd of chopped wood in a leaden tub near the rear. Housing and warmth against the shivering night were thus assured. For the placation of Bildad Rose there was news of a stable, not ruined beyond service, with hay in loft, near the house.

"Gentlemen," cried Bildad Rose from his seat, swathed in coat and robes, "tear me down the panels of that fence so I can drive in. That is old Redruth's shanty. I thought we must be nigh it. They took him to the foolish house in August."

Cheerfully the four passengers sprang at the snow-capped rails. The exhorting team tugged the coach up the slant to the door of the edifice from which a midsummer madness had ravished its proprietor, the driver, and two of the passengers began to hunch. Judge Menefee opened the door of the coach, and removed his hat.

"The old diddler," began Bildad, "someday I'll have him infested with fleas."

He never allowed nobody to come nigh him. He'd duck his head inside and slam the door whenever a team drove along. There was spinning-wheels up in his loft, all right. He used to buy his groceries and tobacco at Sam Tilly's store, on the Little Muddy. Last August he went up there dressed in a red blanket and told them he was King Solomon, and that the Queen of Sheba was coming to visit him. He fechched along all the money he had—a little bag full of silver—and dropped it in Sam's well. "She won't come," says old man Redruth to Sam, "if she knows I've got any money."

"As soon as folks heard he had that sort of a theory about women and money they knew he was crazy, so they sent a team and packed him off to the foolish asylum."

"Was there a romance in his life that drove him to a solitary existence?" asked one of the passengers, a young man who had an agency.

"No," said Bildad, "not that I ever heard of. Just ordinary trouble. They say he had an unfortunate in the way of love arrangements, but a young lady was young before he contracted red bud-quits and had his financial conclusions disqualifed."

"Ah!" exclaimed Judge Menefee, impressively: "a case of unrequited affection, no doubt."

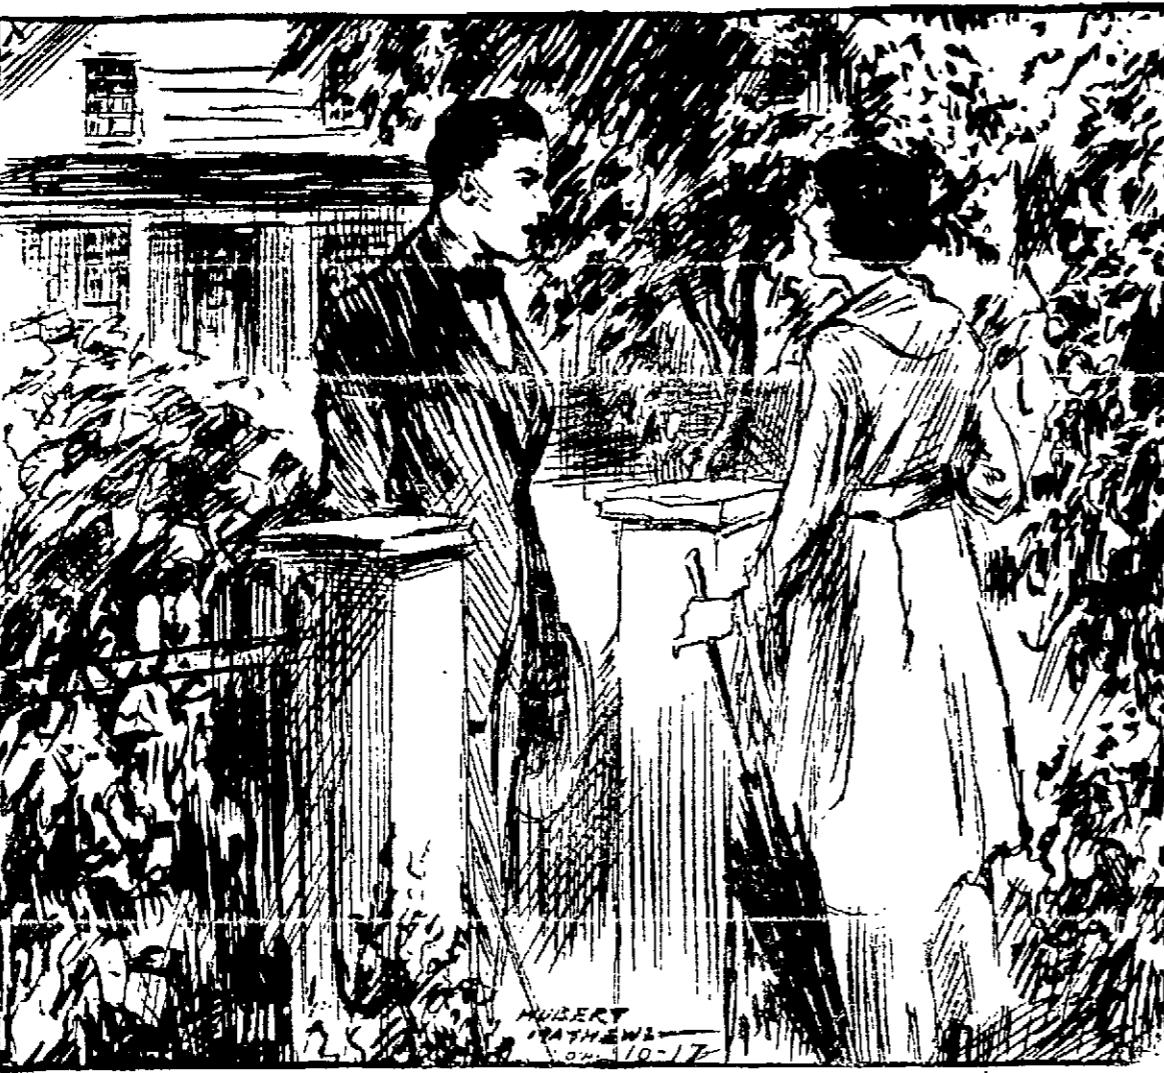

"No, sir," returned Bildad, "not at all. She never married him. Marmaduke Mulligan, down at Paradise, seen a man once that come from old Redruth's town. He said Redruth was a young man, but when he kicked him, that pocket all you could hear jingle was a cuff-faster and a bunch of keys. He was engaged to this young lady—Miss Alice—something was her name. I've forgot. This man said she was the kind of a girl you like to have reach across you in a car to say the date, when, there come to the town a young chap all affluent and easy, and fixed up with bangles and mining stock and leisure time.

One of the two passengers who were struggling in a team of horses, harness, snored and the sarcastic grin of Bildad Rose, called loudly from the wharl of his volunteer duties: "Say! some of you fellows get Miss Solomon into the house, will you? Whoa there! you confounded brute!"

Again must it be gently urged that in traveling from Paradise to Sunrise City an accurate name is prudently. When Judge Menefee, sanctioned to the act by his gray hair and widespread reputation, had introduced himself to the only passenger, he said, "I be a—be a—brought a name, in response, that the hearing of the male passengers had variously interpreted. In the not unfeeling spirit of rivalry that eventuated, each clung gamboily to his own theory. For the lady passenger to have reassembled or corrected would have seemed a dictate if not merely a violation of a specific anti-sociality. Therefore the lady passenger permitted herself to be called the "Giantess" and "Solomon" with equal and discreet complacency. It is thirty-five miles from Paradise to Sunrise City. Companion de voyage is name enough, by the grinsack of the Wandering Jew, for a brief a journey.

Soon the little party of wayfarers were happily seated, the horses before the burning fire. The horses, however, and restive portions of the coach had been brought in and put to service. The lady passenger chose a place near the hearth at one end of the car. There she graced almost a "throne" that her subjects had prepared, she sat upon cushions and leaned against an empty box and buried her face in the bedsheet, which framed a picture from the inverted world. She extended her feet, delectably cool, to the cordial heat. She unzipped her blouse, but retained about her neck her long fur. The unstable flames half revealed, while the warding hood half submerged, her face—youthful face, altogether feminine, clearly moulded and calm with beauty's unbalance, confidence. Chivalry and manhood were here trying to please and comfort her. She seemed to be a divinity, devoutly and adoringly, not prepossessingly, as many of her sex. And now, as the ox receives his hay, but contentedly with nature's own plan, as the lily ingests the drop of dew foreordained to its refreshment.

Outside the wind roared mirthfully, the fine snow whizzed through the cracks, the cold besieged the backs of the incommunicated six; but the elements did not lack a champion that night. Judge Menefee was attorney for the storm. The weather was his client, and he strove by special pleading to convince his companions that in frigid jury-box that they sojourned in a bower of roses, beset only by benignant zephyrs. His other presents—a rifle and the lot, the poor man calls it—Miss Alice's old folks seen Redruth and drew upon a fund of gaiety, yet unbroken, of sophomore, but crowned with success. His cheerfulness communicated itself irresistibly. Each one hastened to contribute his quota toward the general optimism. Even the lady passenger was moved to expression.

"I think it is quite charming," she said, in her slow, crystal tones. "A winter's night is the prettiest scene in the world, and humorously explores the room. There was little evidence to be collected of his habitation by old man Redruth."

Bildad Rose was called upon vivaciously for the ex-hermit's history. Now, since the stage driver's horses were fairly comfortable and his passengers appeared to be so, peace and comity returned him.

"The old diddler," began Bildad, "someday I'll have him infested with fleas."

He never allowed nobody to come nigh him. He'd duck his head inside and slam the door whenever a team drove along. There was spinning-wheels up in his loft, all right. He used to buy his groceries and tobacco at Sam Tilly's store, on the Little Muddy. Last August he went up there dressed in a red blanket and told them he was King Solomon, and that the Queen of Sheba was coming to visit him. He fechched along all the money he had—a little bag full of silver—and dropped it in Sam's well. "She won't come," says old man Redruth to Sam, "if she knows I've got any money."

"As soon as folks heard he had that sort of a theory about women and money they knew he was crazy, so they sent a team and packed him off to the foolish asylum."

"Was there a romance in his life that drove him to a solitary existence?" asked one of the passengers, a young man who had an agency.

"No," said Bildad, "not that I ever heard of. Just ordinary trouble. They say he had an unfortunate in the way of love arrangements, but a young lady was young before he contracted red bud-quits and had his financial conclusions disqualifed."

"Ah!" exclaimed Judge Menefee, impressively: "a case of unrequited affection, no doubt."

"No, sir," returned Bildad, "not at all. She never married him. Marmaduke Mulligan, down at Paradise, seen a man once that come from old Redruth's town. He said Redruth was a young man, but when he kicked him, that pocket all you could hear jingle was a cuff-faster and a bunch of keys. He was engaged to this young lady—Miss Alice—something was her name. I've forgot. This man said she was the kind of a girl you like to have reach across you in a car to say the date, when, there come to the town a young chap all affluent and easy, and fixed up with bangles and mining stock and leisure time.

One of the two passengers who were struggling in a team of horses, harness, snored and the sarcastic grin of Bildad Rose, called loudly from the wharl of his volunteer duties: "Say! some of you fellows get Miss Solomon into the house, will you? Whoa there! you confounded brute!"

Again must it be gently urged that in traveling from Paradise to Sunrise City an accurate name is prudently. When Judge Menefee, sanctioned to the act by his gray hair and widespread reputation, had introduced himself to the only passenger, he said, "I be a—be a—brought a name, in response, that the hearing of the male passengers had variously interpreted. In the not unfeeling spirit of rivalry that eventuated, each clung gamboily to his own theory.

Companion de voyage is name enough, by the grinsack of the Wandering Jew, for a brief a journey.

Soon the little party of wayfarers were happily seated, the horses before the burning fire. The horses, however, and restive portions of the coach had been brought in and put to service. The lady passenger chose a place near the hearth at one end of the car. There she graced almost a "throne" that her subjects had prepared, she sat upon cushions and leaned against an empty box and buried her face in the bedsheet, which framed a picture from the inverted world. She extended her feet, delectably cool, to the cordial heat. She unzipped her blouse, but retained about her neck her long fur. The unstable flames half revealed, while the warding hood half submerged, her face—youthful face, altogether feminine, clearly moulded and calm with beauty's unbalance, confidence. Chivalry and manhood were here trying to please and comfort her. She seemed to be a divinity, devoutly and adoringly, not prepossessingly, as many of her sex. And now, as the ox receives his hay, but contentedly with nature's own plan, as the lily ingests the drop of dew foreordained to its refreshment.

Our human predilection for disorder and dispute has led to much unpleasantry both chronic and acute. The services of experts we recurrently require to soothe our troubled spirits and alleviate our ire, to save us from the need of jumping on a neighbor's neck and making of his splendid health a sad and shattered wreck.

Among the pleasant gentlemen who help conduct our fights and steer us through the law-courts with the aid of buoys and lights is one the Oakland folks have known and known him long and well. A solid, stately citizen is Lawyer Harmon Bell, who always wears in public a conspicuous moustache—a girdle for his countenance—a sort of facial sash.

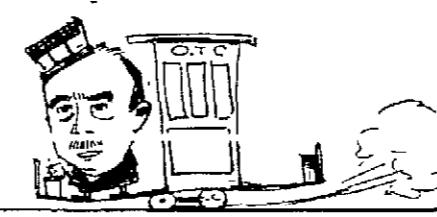

He does not rant ferociously when cases are at stake nor pound the court-room furniture till timid judges shake. He reads the lucid sentences which legislatures write and flavors tasteful arguments to make the jurors bite, and never gives a hint upon his optimistic face that there could ever be two sides to such a clear-cut case.

The simple end and consequence of tactics such as these is that he harvests happily fame and facts and fees and keeps the good opinion of the public by and large, because he does not fiercely rail, denounce, accuse and charge. It is a scientific stunt to win your mooted ends and dodge the need of parting pleasant company with friends.

A habit fixed and fastened on the so-called human race is to be always moving, headed for some other place. And it's another habit of economy and pride that it will seldom walk when it can get the chance to ride. It takes a lot of trams, equipped with miles of rail and wire, to humor this incurable and popular desire.

Alberger is the manager of Oakland's traction cars. He's seen it through some troubles which involved a lot of scars. The lines were growing longer while the fares did not enlarge. The public laughs at higher costs but kicks at higher charge. The boys were strong for shorter hours and loud for higher wage. Such is the spirit and demand of this demanding age.

Behold the car conductor and his merry little ways. He has a lot of trouble and deserves a heap of praise. He hands his jolly tralala to girls of looks and pep and tells the less attractive ones to hurry, slide and step. He bells the motor man to stop and signals him to start. Said Alberger, "That's useful, but good gracious, is it?"

So now he's bought some nifty cars which have a single gate. The man who's there collects the fare for passengers and freight, speaks softly to the handsome ones and harshly to the frights and listens to the radicals who kick about their rights. In regal blue he is the crew and captain of the car, the lord, the chief, the board of grief, the sultan, and the czar.

OTTO H. FISCHER

Before today's realities all poetry is pale, and poets should be either set to work or sent to jail. The fairy stories are surpassed by wonders trite and true, at which we do not dare exclaim except when they are new, and now with progress moving on a pair of lightning wings, it is no longer a la mode to be surprised at things.

What thrillers of the story books could honestly surpass the simple fact that Fischer makes big engines run by gas, great steel-wrought Samsons trained to tasks of simple daily use, who pull no temples down, who see right through Delilah's ruse, and placed the apple in her hand impudently.

"In old days," he said, profoundly, "Parsis awarded the golden apple to the most beautiful."

"I was at the Exposition," remarked the windmill man, now cheerful again. "But I never heard of it. And I was on the Midway, too, all the time I wasn't at the machine shop."

"But now," continued the Judge, "the fruit shall transmute to us for some time to come. I propose to give the apple to the hands of Miss Garland. It is no longer a fruit, as I said, a prize, an award, representing a great

"apple" of the Hesperides? I need not call your attention to the most tremendous and significant instance of the apple's ancient prestige when its consumption by our first parents occasioned the fall of man from his state of goodness and perfection."

"Apples like them," said the windmill man, lingering with the objective article, "are worth $3.50 a barrel in the Chicago market."

"Now, what is he going to propose?" said Judge Menefee, cocking an indulgent smile to his interrupter. "This is: We must remain here, performance, until morning. We have wood in plenty to keep us warm. Our next need is to entertain ourselves as best we can, in order that the time shall not pass too slowly. I propose that we place this apple in the hands of Miss Garland. It is no longer a fruit, as I said, a prize, an award, representing a great

"apple" of the Hesperides?" he asked.

"I think," said the lady passenger, slightly moving upon her lowly mound under a willow tree, "that that is a char—"

"Oh, Miss Garland," interposed Judge Menefee, with uplifted hand. "I beg of you, no comments!"

"He's out, and the modest tales of romance, and then award the prize as the next turn?"

"The Judge addressed the young man who had the agency."

"My version of the romance," began the young man, diffidently.

"Oh, I ain't no Guy or Marmaduke," he said, cheerfully. "I'm going to you in straight American."

"Well, she says something like this: 'Mr. Gold Bonds is only a friend,' says she; 'but he takes me riding and buys me theater tickets, and that's what you never do. Ain't I to never have any pleasure in life while I can?' Pass this chaffy-chatfield thing along," said the Judge, smiling.

"The apple lay in her lap beneath her robes and wraps. She reclined against her protecting bulwarks, brightly and cozily at ease. But for the voices and the wind one might have listened hopefully to hear her purr. Someone cast fresh logs upon the fire. The Judge addressed the young man who had the agency.

"Now that kind of train orders don't go with a girl that gets any spirit. I bet that girl loves her honey all the time. Maybe she only wanted, as girls do, to work the good things for a little fun and caravans before she settled down to patch the old story."

"Well, he began, without any embarrassment, "this is about the way I size up the difficulty: Of course Redruth was foisted a good deal by this duck who had money to play ball with who tried to cut him out of his inheritance. So he was a good, natty, and astute fellow, and asks for a girl. Well, he goes around to see her. Well, maybe he's hot, and talks like the proprietor, and forgets that an engagement ain't always a lead-pipe cinch. Well, I guess that makes Alice warm under the lace yoke. Well, she answers back sharp. Well, he—"

"Say," interrupted the passenger who was nodding in particular, "you could put up a windmill on every one of them 'wells' you're using, you'd be able to retire from business, wouldn't you?"

The windmill man grinned good-naturedly.

"Oh, I ain't no Guy or Marmaduke," he said, smiling. "I'm going to you in straight American."

"Well, she says something like this: 'Mr. Gold Bonds is only a friend,' says she; 'but he takes me riding and buys me theater tickets, and that's what you never do. Ain't I to never have any pleasure in life while I can?' Pass this chaffy-chatfield thing along," said the Judge, smiling.

BOOK REVIEWS AND LITERARY NOTES

"Idling in Italy"

Joseph Collins Discusses Literature of Italy Past and Present and Number of Other Topics in Brilliant Work; Chapter on D'Annunzio Sparkles With Appreciation and Denunciation. Will Command Wide and Discriminating Attention.

The chapter on Gabriele D'Annunzio in Joseph Collins' "Idling in Italy" is one of the most noteworthy literary achievements of a year. To Collins the life of this "poet, pilot and pirate" has appealed in a manner to bring out a flow of interpretation in which appreciation, scorn, irony, condemnation and praise are so mixed to make of a biographical subject matter for a definitely quickened interest.

And in the same book Collins has written his estimate of President Wilson, a summing up in which the familiar charge is put that had the President the ability to trust in slightest measure, minds other than his own, he would be, in place of the disappointed statesman, one who was truly great.

The book starts with pictures of the more important of Italy's literary immortals, brief sketches which set them out in relief, characteristic comments of a writer of decided opinion. Manzoni, Leopardi, Fogazzaro and Verga are reviewed with others of less prominence and always with a flashing style and an artist's love for the sound and the effectiveness of the right words.

That D'Annunzio should exasperate Collins was inevitable. Collins cannot fail to love the ability of him. "Idling in Italy" by Joseph Collins: New York, Charles Scribner's Sons, $3.

"What's on the Workers' Mind?"

Mystery Story

By Harold McGrath

Whiting Williams left a position as personnel director of one of the largest pressed steel concerns in the country, put on rough clothes, disguised his name, and applied for a laborer's job. He got one, after many attempts, in a steel mill. Later he worked in a railroad yard, in iron mines and in shipyards.

All of the time he lived as a laborer and had for his friends the men who were working on the same job. At nights he wrote a diary, an account of his experiences and an exposition of the beliefs and conclusions that came to him.

Because of the fact that the book was written in this manner and by a man who had the desire and the nerve to find out for himself certain things he wished to know, the book bears a spirit of earnest endeavor, of truth, and of an honest conviction. It would go into the heart and the thought of labor and do much good.

Williams was once assistant to the president of Oberlin College and later executive secretary of the Cleveland Welfare Federation. He is a man who believes in the rank and file of other men and one who goes to the original source for his information.

"Ten thousand men," says Williams, "must join their forces together for the putting of the daily load upon our daily table. But every single one of those forces is released not so much by the force of the others as by virtue of each one's faith in the others—faith that his co-operation will be rewarded by them. This will always be so as long as humans are humans with hearts as well as heads. Before we lay the blame upon those heads or talk about some other plan, whether we happen to think of ourselves as in the group of persons called Capital or Management or Labor or the Public, should arrange to put into this present scheme a larger measure of the two elements which are likely to prove sovereign for these trying times—a cool head and a warm heart."

Aside from his sociological interest the book has a genuine human interest and a certain tension due to the fact of the writer's adventure and disguise. It is the result of a man's search for facts, a man who was well equipped to fare forth on the hunt.

"Samuel Lyle" Is

Satisfying Sleuth

A detective of quiet methods and a book of plausible crime yarns is "Samuel Lyle, Criminologist," by Arthur Craib. On the style of the old Sherlock Holmes books, the volume includes a series of adventures in which the detective plays the stellar role.

Lyle is a lawyer and member of a number of exclusive clubs. The mysteries, for the most part, are those of wealthy and influential persons. Sometimes it is not a crime, in a real sense that has been committed, but there is a puzzle to be unraveled just the same and to Lyle come the men and women who are perplexed.

Because this writer gives his hero no extraordinary powers and because the element of chance is not allowed to play the large part given it in many a detective story, the book is different from most. Lyle is a scholarly lawyer who figures out the plausible explanations and who satisfies his own love for dramatic situations. There is a great deal for enjoyment in the volume.

Battle of the Marne Will Be Fought Again; Roar of Guns to Be Heard; Sirens To Replace Megaphone.

No general ever worked out plans for a decisive battle with greater care than that bestowed upon the plans for the reproduction of the Battle of the Marne, which will be filmed as a feature of Metro's special production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Although many thousands of men will be engaged in a battle that, to all appearance, is as deadly as the one that proved the turning point of the World War, the present arrangements are such as to make serious accident almost impossible.

For many weeks Walter Grams, chief Metro electrician, and a large force of assistants have been working on this system and it has been pronounced fool proof.

Above all other things, Rex Ingram, who is directing the production and June Mathis, who adapted it for the screen, are anxious to make the battle as realistic as this system to mechanical perfection of the battle scenes is assured.

The setting for the battle consists of a complete French village, a castle four stories high with its many turrets and towers, and a background of wooded hills. All the buildings are to be destroyed by mines and shell fire just as was the case in the original battle.

The castle will have all the buildings of the village have been built so as to break away properly at the desired time. There are more than 100 break aways and more than 1500 separate explosions planned to occur in the village alone. These breakaways are necessary to insure the falling of the buildings at the right time. A total of 6,000 feet of copper cable has been laid and sixty-two storage batteries installed about the location.

PHONES FOR DIRECTION

The telephone control control for the setting is a head receiver and breast transmitter worn by Ingram. This is directly connected with fifteen telephone control stations located throughout the set. These stations can be called at any time by Ingram.

Ingram will have a relief map showing the location of all the mines and break aways and each one will be numbered and linked off on the map with its control number. When desiring to set off a mine fire, Ingram will pull a break away. He is only to call that action.

The men at the various stations have relief maps of their sector and upon the given signal have only to touch their keys to the contact receiver and wait until the explosion. In order to pull down certain portions of the castle in break aways, a truck will be utilized. The break away arc of standing size enabling a truck after pulling one break to immediately hook onto another.

All field mines will be under the control of a special operator with a telephone control system. It is planned that he will be in use of the field allotted him at all times. This enables him to see the mines and take no chances of blowing up a body of troops as has happened in other productions of this kind.

STRENS TO BE USED

So that no mistakes will be made two of the most powerful sirens ever constructed have been placed on the field and are under the direct control of the director's board. These sirens can be heard above the roar of the battle for miles. In case of any mistake by blowing these sirens the director will be immediately alerted.

Hundreds of cannon are to be placed about the battlefield. They are provided with six-shots each and are operated by a switch which will explode each charge in proper order.

A battery of fifteen cameras will be used for the filming of the battle scenes. These cameras will be under the direction of John Sturz, chief cinematographer for the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse.

FARRAR'S NEW ROLE

Dorothy Richardson, author of that remarkable story, "The Long Day," and the one-time literary secretary of David Belasco, has agreed with Maurice Tourneur, which she has done, to give up her literary capacity when that actress was giving her splendidly baffling rendering of "The Riddle Woman" in "The Scarlet Empress," a special address by William D. Taylor. Others remembered in the services were Harold Lockwood, Eric Campbell, John Sturz, and Maurice Tourneur and Charles Gunn. Robert Harron's brother James and several other members of his family were present.

Tourneur Is Not—

(For once a press agent tells the truth)

Maurice Tourneur is not to hold a press conference to-day. He is not in New York, but is in Paris. Tourneur is not aspiring to control the industry, all he wants is to earn his living.

"Get Handley's Keys" Is Phone Message Said to Have Gone to de Valle

OFFICIALS LEARN OF ODD ORDER

Sheriff of San Joaquin Adds New Piece of Testimony to Developments Surrounding Booze Scandal in S. E.

Still With 3000 Gallons of Wine in North Beach Section Seized and Destroyed by Operatives and Firemen

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Two new phases were developed yesterday in the chronicles of the San Francisco illicit liquor traffic investigation which is now entering upon its third week.

The statement of the sheriff of San Joaquin county that it has been established that a man referred to as "Harry," speaking from the room of Harry Brodaski in the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, gave instructions to Emil Loring, driver of the car in which Lorin A. Handley met his death near Galt to get Handley's keys and personal papers.

A sensational raid on a warehouse near the foot of Bay street in the North Beach section in which prohibition enforcement officers were aided by firemen armed with pickaxes and in which 2000 gallons of wine were seized and five stills destroyed.

The sheriff of San Joaquin county who has been working with the officials for the past week, said last night that it has been definitely established that after receiving these instructions from "Harry" that de Valle did go to the keys and personal papers belonging to Handley and turned them over to Attorney Roy Groves of Sacramento.

HARRY TELEPHONES HE HAS KEYS

Groves shortly after gave to three men said to be representatives of Brodaski one of the defendants indicted early in the investigation of the illegal withdrawal of liquor from bonded warehouses. All this was done so quickly, according to statements from the sheriff's office in Stockton, that by 5:30 a. m. of the morning following the accident, "Harry" again telephoned to de Valle advising him that the keys were now in his possession as he had agreed.

Concerning the statements of the San Joaquin county sheriff, Harry Brodaski says that he telephoned to R. Groves and asked him to get the keys and papers belonging to Handley and turn them over to the authorities. He characterized as a lie, however, the statement that he telephoned that the keys had ever come to him.

"One night Handley was killed," Brodaski said. "I was first informed of his death by a telephone from Sacramento from Attorney Clarence Morris. Then I was phoned by someone at De Valle's home to whom he had telephoned."

The raid in San Francisco was conducted yesterday afternoon. A posse of federal prohibition enforcement operatives, accompanied by a company of the San Francisco fire department, burst its way into the old warehouse and seized the 2000 gallons of liquor which are valued at $21,000. The five stills in the place were destroyed.

TWO ARRESTED AND SIX OTHERS CONCERNED

Two men found on the premises were taken into custody and federal officials say they are in possession of the names of six other persons who have been concerned with the illegal operation of the still.

The premises were described by enforcement officers as constituting a fully equipped distillery with facilities for turning out hundreds of gallons of liquor. The raid had been under contemplation for several days but the first intimation of the same was when five enforcement officers with firemen carrying equipment, surrounded the place and began battering in windows and doorways. Several persons in the house at the time are believed to have escaped under a secret passageway leading under the wharves.

CRASHING OF GLASS ATTRACTS CROWD

The raid was witnessed by scores of spectators who were attracted by the sound of crashing glass and splintering wood.

The wine seized in the raid was poured in the gutters while a large crowd of spectators looked on.

The stills were the largest and the whole plant the most elaborate yet uncovered in San Francisco.

According to operatives the gas main had been tapped and the illicit liquor manufacturers were stealing gas to operate their stills.

CHARGES FILED AGAINST MRS. WARBURTON

Charges have been filed against Mrs. Glad Warburton, temporary prohibition director succeeding Lorin Handley, criticizing her conduct of the office, it was stated today. The charges are in the hands of the treasury department at Washington, D. C., and it is said that an official order has been issued effective tomorrow, suspending her from government service.

Another development in the affairs of the prohibition office is the rumored possibility that Miss Gertrude Quinn, clerk, who was close to the office, has been fired.

BIG WARSHIP IS HOST TO BAY CITIES

Cost of Nation League Given at $4,000,000 Yearly

(By United Press)
BRUSSELS, Oct. 23.—The league of nations will cost the world $4,000,000 a year, according to a budget adopted by the council of the league here today.

Sir Herbert Ames, treasurer, announced that of this amount $854,000 would be expended in salaries, $1,400,000 for administration and operation of the international labor bureau, and $700,000 for the various commissions and conferences.

The council adopted a plan of allocation of this expense which put the United States in the first class with such nations as England and France, who will pay 25 units of the cost. The second group, including Spain, will pay 20 units; the third group, including Brazil, 15 units and the fifth of such nations as Argentina and Chile, pay five units.

Dreadnaught California Is Inspected by the Members of Civic and Business Bureaus and Municipal Officials

Destroyer Bruce Carries Gay Party to Vallejo to Help Work of Securing Crew of Native Sons to Man Ship

Representative men of twenty-one East Bay and northern California cities paid a visit to More Island navy yard Saturday and under the auspices of navy yard officials and officers of the western division in charge of recruiting, saw officially, for the first time, the great new super-dreadnaught California which, within a few months, is to put to sea.

The crew of the ship, the invitation of Captain Cyrus W. Cole, navy recruiting inspector of the western division, was directly in the interests of manning the new vessel with a complete crew of native sons of California.

More than a hundred formed the party which met at Pier 7 in San Francisco in the morning, and there, greeted by Captain Cole and his crew, boarded the destroyer Bruce which had been despatched from the navy yard.

As the destroyer plowed up the hills, gaunt leader comes slipping over the trails to lead his offspring to the chase. All the visitors to the More Island hunt, brought to them by the parent tutor, whose breed has been in at the kill on a million wild runs in the land of snows.

Dawn breaks over the crests to find the pack bedded down, jaws addlep with the gore of the kill, stomachs filled with the toll levied upon the small game colonies of the Channing way district which will satisfy their hunger.

GENTLE MOTHER LEADS OFFSPRING ON CHASE

When the moon glares full upon the hills, gaunt leader comes slipping over the trails to lead his offspring to the chase. All the visitors to the More Island hunt, brought to them by the parent tutor, whose breed has been in at the kill on a million wild runs in the land of snows.

Three Sundays in succession a representative of The TRIBUNE has endeavored to track down the pack, but the wolf hunt is so elusive, the pack is too numerous to stalk the visitors from their lair, it was impossible to sight the pack until on the third Sunday as early start found them basking in the sun after a damp night. But that was all. A flash of lightning bodies in the hills, a trail so indistinct an expert could hardly have followed it.

FIRST VIEW OF SHIP IMPRESSES VISITORS

As the destroyer drew into the navy yard basin past the line of battle, moored there, the visitors, the pack, were too numerous to stalk the visitors from their lair, it was impossible to sight the pack until on the third Sunday as early start found them basking in the sun after a damp night. But that was all. A flash of lightning bodies in the hills, a trail so indistinct an expert could hardly have followed it.

Viscountess Rhondda Would Smash Tradition in English Custom

By FORBES W. FAIRBAIRN
United Press Staff Correspondent

London, Oct. 23.—Special Cable Dispatch.—One of the most interesting as well as one of the most tremendous constitutional questions in the history of the government of Great Britain is the point raised by the appeal of Viscountess Rhondda, the world's most famous business woman, that she be allowed to take her seat in the House of Lords as a "peeress of the realm."

Following the election of Lady Astor to Parliament and the passage of the sex disqualification act, Viscountess Rhondda, who is one of the thirty-five peeresses in their own right in Great Britain, is seeking to establish the momentous precedent which will allow her equal participation in the functions of the House of Lords, entitling her to hold any office available to peers, including the lord chancellorship and member in the king's Privy Council.

The United States committee of the peace conference has voted to support her in her effort.

While Matheson seemed confident that the murderer is about to be apprehended, Detective Sergeant Miles Jackson was not so optimistic.

"It is one of the most baffling cases we have ever had," he said. "The solution does not seem near at hand."

Matheson said he would withhold the name and description of the man known as Donaldson until he was reasonably sure the man has left the city or until he is taken into custody.

HARDING MAKES DOUBLE ASSAULT ON NATION PACT

By RAYMOND FLAPPER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

MARION, Oct. 23.—In a double-barreled attack on the League of Nations today, Senator Warren G. Harding, in two statements, charged that the Paris covenant violated the principles of the Democratic Party, and that all Europe clearly understands that it commits the United States to the League unless it is approved or authorized by Congress.

One statement was issued on the ninety-seventh anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, and the other regarding the recent dispute between President Wilson and Senator Spence of Missouri over the intentions of the League covenant.

Senator Harding put in a quiet day at home, sitting for a sculptor most of the afternoon.

ARMS IN CONDITIONS

"Clearly Europe understands that which we are coming to know: that the League as written commits America to the armed support of the four great powers in maintaining the independence of their enlarged dominions whenever attacked from without."

Senator Harding said his statement on the Wilson-Spence controversy, in which the Missouri senator quoted Wilson as promising the aid of American arms to Romania if necessary.

"That is why America will vote its 'waterloo' today," he said. "Article 19. When that is done we must seek a new understanding, one which will leave us unengaged to Europe and the Orient."

In a statement on Jefferson's anniversary, calling a meeting of the Sons of the Sage of Monticello, of President Grover Cleveland and of President Wilson himself, all warning agains entangling alliances.

"To all Americans, and especially to all Democrats," Senator Harding added, "it must appear that Article 10 of the League of Nations, which would submerge American nationality and independence, is an armed alliance of avaricious mass of benevolent idealists, and is a completed reversal, not only of American, but of Democratic policies."

ARTICLE X FLAXED

Yet Article 10 is represented by the President and Democratic nominee as the essential soul of the present League of Nations.

"Neither Jefferson, Cleveland, nor the President himself in 1914, were opposed to cooperation between America and the other nations of the world in the prevention of war or agreements in peace. I am not opposed to such cooperation. I favor it. It is now the obligation of the Republican party, and will be my obligation, to take up the constructive work of an association of nations behind which American opinion can be harmonized and America united."

Debs Takes Whack at Both Old Parties

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 23.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for President of the United States, from his prison cell here, through his attorney, Samuel L. Castleton, today issued a statement excoriating both Republican and Democratic candidates for the presidency. He declared that the supreme issue now is the menace of unemployment and asserted neither candidate has offered any solution.

"It will not be long before the bread lines are recruited up to war strength," Debs said, "and the soup kitchens on day and night shifts, but you will not hear a word from Cox or Harding about unemployment or the cause of it."

Debs said thousands of soldiers who fought overseas for the profits are today hunting jobs, just as I predicted at Canton and for which statement I was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment."

"The deadliest menace that confronts this nation at the approach of winter is unemployment," Debs declared. "The supreme issue is the curse of the working people and the crime of capitalist society."

"What have Harding and Cox to offer the unemployed workers and their families who are starving after they have piled up mountains of wealth for their profiteering masters?"

"Ex-President ex-Judge Taft, better known as 'Injunction Bill' among the union workers he used to send to all, answers for them, he says, 'God knows!'"

Phelan before an audience in Trinity auditorium this evening. Cox Announces His Stand on World League Reservations

BY UNITED PRESS.

LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Governor James M. Cox as the climax of his speech before a crowd that jammed Madison Square Garden tonight, definitely announced the reservation he favors for Article 10—the storm center of the long peace treaty fight.

"I want this to be my formal expression of a reservation for Article 10," he said, "I am willing to accept any statement stating explicitly that the United States assumes no obligation to use its military or naval forces to the end of the League unless it is approved or authorized by Congress."

READ RESERVATION

The governor read his reservation just before concluding an hour and a half speech before a crowd that cheered him time and again and hissed several Republican leaders, including Senator Harding, as Cox mentioned them.

His statement apparently was intended to be an answer to the contention of Elihu Root that Cox favors the League covenant without any real reservations.

"Mr. Root first said that I was opposed to any reservations and then used two columns of the newspaper to discuss the reservations that I have repeatedly stood for in my addresses," the governor said.

Governor Cox said that the United States, as the "financial master of the world," must by entering the League of Nations, use the great strength of its economic position to aid the League.

"As matters stand, there can be no reconstruction undertaken," he said. "There can be no re-establishment of business ability until the decision is made and made right, and this decision will be made at the earliest possible day after my inauguration as President."

HASN'T VOTED FOR 20 YEARS

Although J. C. Black, Pacific coast representative of the Central Shoe company of St. Louis, Mo., is an American citizen, and is a registered voter in St. Louis, he has not voted for 20 years. He has seen five presidential elections come and go and has never been able to cast his vote for a president.

Black, who is stopping in Oakland at the Hotel Lark, said today that he is working for the success of the "subset voters" bill, which will be voted upon at the coming November election.

"Many persons believe that a man can go to the polls, no matter where he is, and vote. This belief will kill the bill and make it impossible for a traveling man to vote. I have not voted since 1908," said Black. "I have had no time at home on election day. There are several thousand of us whom the bill, if passed, would be able to enjoy our voting rights."

Wilson Is Expected to Appeal for Cox

BY E. C. MARTIN, United Press Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Appeal is made to the voters to vote for Governor Cox as the standard bearer of the League of Nations idea is expected when President Wilson makes his only speech of the campaign as the White House next Wednesday morning.

The president will speak briefly to the annual convention of the Republican and independent, headed by Hamilton Holt, New York, editor. Holt and those who will come with him have recently announced that, though they have in the past been Republicans, they will vote for Cox because of his stand on the League of Nations.

Shortridge Speaks to Citrus Growers

OCHEANSIDE, Calif., Oct. 23.—Orange county citrus fruit growers today heard Samuel Shortridge, Republican messenger of the need of a protective tariff for California products. Hundreds gathered at San Juan Capistrano, Anaheim, Fullerton and Orange to hear the sonorous oration and Governor Stephen Shortridge said: "Afraid of the tariff issue and the damage the Underwood free trade law has done and is doing to California, the Democrats are now attempting to belittle the issue, ridiculing the lemon industry, and by false propaganda attempting to fool the people of California, the people of the tariff, no longer in the hands of Congress but well settled by the Tariff Commission." Shortridge and the governor spoke at 10 o'clock this morning, and closed a week of strenuous campaigning in Santa Ana, with a mass meeting, preceded by an old-fashioned Republican torchlight parade.

Hughes Denies He Has Changed Front

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Addressing a political meeting here last night Justice Charles E. Hughes declared the real League of Nations issue of the presidential campaign is whether the covenant proposed by President Wilson with France is to be accepted or not.

Hughes denied he had changed front on the League of Nations, but admitted that without the support of his colleagues for amendments to the covenant were accepted, they were not accepted as he proposed. He said, furthermore, that one reason he proposed, but which was not adopted, was that the guarantee of Article 10 is omitted.

Hughes asserted that concern over the President's Wilson's having given up the League of Nations only recurred when they could see that he had not done so.

While the condition of the covenant was mentioned, the only real character of the proposal in mind was known days before it was made.

He said, "I have no knowledge of this without the support of his colleagues for amendments to the covenant were accepted, they were not accepted as he proposed. He said, furthermore, that one reason he proposed, but which was not adopted, was that the guarantee of Article 10 is omitted."

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Moses Applebaum and his wife, known on the stage as Helen York, today were reported in a favorable condition at Knickerbocker hospital. They took their last night in their apartment here. Applebaum told physicians and police the poison was taken by mistake. He refused to admit the statement in any way. Mrs. Applebaum made no statement.

Applebaum, who is founder and leader of the Humanitarian club, was married to Miss York, a well-known actress, about six months ago. While the condition of the couple was unknown, the woman was pronounced "in a critical condition" when she was seen at the hospital.

Applebaum, who is a member of the League of Nations, was admitted to the hospital Saturday night.

Worst Blizzard Since '90's Hits Colorado

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 23.—Gentlemen from the San Juan Valley and the western slope tonight reported one of the worst blizzards in this state since the early 1900s. Hundreds of cattle and sheep and several horses have been frozen.

The storm has continued for several days and late today had shown no signs of abating. Hughes and railroads are blocked, it was reported, and communication has been seriously impaired.

Indiana is another state where the principal fight over the Senatorial election is between the two major parties.

UNITE TO FORM UNION TICKET

The latest sensation is the reorganization of the Non-Partisan League. In North Dakota the Republicans and Democrats have formed a fusion ticket in an effort to defeat the League, but the fusion seems so late and so incomplete that it is believed the Non-Partisan ticket will win.

The big drop in the price of wheat has been a great help to the League leaders, whose charge that it is due to manipulation in the Chicago and Minneapolis markets, for which they held both the old parties blameable.

No one can complain that the campaign in its final stage lacks pep and vigor, but through all the news from everywhere there runs a note to the effect that the people will be mighty glad when it's over.

WILSON APPEALS TO COLLEGE MEN TO BOOST IDEALS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—President Wilson today sent a message to Rolland Bradley of the Young American Democratic League, which was read at a meeting of the league tonight. The message said,

"Please convey my warmest greetings to the meeting. The young men of the world, of any country, should be even more deeply interested in this critical contest than other Americans, if the issues are the issues of the future. They will determine the future influence and greatness of the United States in the council of nations. They will determine our moral force in all the great pending contests of right with which the world is already faced. I hope they will be able to see the vision of opportunity which now presents itself and will rally in the support of the perpetuation of the high ideals for which we fought in the great war."

LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Police tonight released Frederick W. Sexton, who shot and killed his landlord, the Rev. Frederick G. Ruff, early today. The coroner's jury gave credence to Sexton's story that he took the landlord for a burglar, and recommended that he be given his freedom.

At the digest it was brought out that the Rev. Ruff was absent minded and troubled with failing memory. Thus, police say, accounted for his going to the door of Sexton's apartment and trying to get in, when he really intended to enter his own door on the floor below.

The only explanation, Rev. Ruff did not answer when Sexton called "Who is there?" was that the pastor was so surprised when he heard the voice coming from what he believed his own apartment that he could not speak.

A herd of cattle, it was later learned, had been running loose on the track. The herd was thrown by the weight of the train, but the last car of the train had been struck by the cattle and had been thrown off the track.

OCEAN SHORE LINE ASKS U. S. PERMIT TO ABANDON RAILS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Following authorization of abandonment of the two lines formerly maintained by the Ocean Shore Railroad company by the State Railroad Commission, a request in this case was taken up, and is under consideration, by the Interstate Railroad Commission, according to telegraphic advices from Washington today.

Requests for this action were embodied in two different proposals, which included the northern route running from San Francisco to Tunitas, San Mateo county, and the southern line from San Francisco to Santa Cruz.

In the original plan for abandonment, officials of the road declared that motor truck competition made the financing of the line impossible. No relief could be obtained through the decreasing of passenger or freight rates they reported to the commission. For some time the city contem-

Fairbanks and 'Mary'
Will Sell L. A. Home

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23.—Confirmation of a report that Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford Fairbanks, are contemplating selling their palatial home here, in view of going to Europe to film pictures, was made at the Fairbanks studio today. The move to Europe will be permanent, it was said, as they have only provided for the time necessary to film some pictures which they will finance.

Fairbanks and his wife are working at Del Monte, Calif., at present and the time for their departure abroad could not be learned.

Planned taking over the road, as an accommodation, to a group of men along the shore line who had received other modes of moving their products to this city. This plan, however, was abandoned later. It was later proposed that the site be purchased and a private automobile road be installed along the right of way, but these plans, too, failed to materialize.

According to Fred W. Bradley, president of the defunct organization, they were unable to pay the proper salaries to compete, and without this the men would not return. More than $2,000,000 had been paid into the company in the last eight years, he said, and no dividends had ever been paid.

Early Election Returns Assured Tribune Planning Rapid Service

Alameda county will be given the most complete election news service ever prepared for any election or in history in California by The TRIBUNE on the night of November 2, when results of the national, city, county and state election will be gathered hot from the wires and flashed to the people. The service will be comprehensive and complete in every way, having in mind both speed and accuracy.

King of bulletin boards will be that installed on the San Pablo avenue frontage of the Kahn building, from which thousands will be enabled to read the returns as fast as they are received. A special wire will be installed in the building opposite Kahn Bros., where the details of stereopticon operations and slide writers will receive the attention of the Oakland and turn them onto the picture screen. The letters used in this bulletin service will be so big that the message may be read with ease blocks from the scene. The plaza district is large enough to accommodate many thousands of people with comfort, and overflow crowds may stand in Washington street beyond Fourteenth and read the returns.

PACIFICS ARE UNUSUAL
The Oakland TRIBUNE is particularly well equipped on an occasion of the kind, combining the advantages of the best wire services in the country with a local news gathering organization fully capable of handling the city and county returns with speed and accuracy. Some of the largest newspapers of the country boast of but one wire service—the Associated Press. The TRIBUNE, however, emphasizes the services of this celebrated organization with that of the United Press and the International News Service, putting the three great telegraphic facilities at its command.

Time is in time between California and the pivotal states will insure early returns on the national election and city and county results will be obtainable soon after the polling places complete their work.

The TRIBUNE will give all the news first.

U. C. Is Cementing Ties With Latin Americans

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—The University of California is doing its share to cement the ties of friendship between the United States and Latin America, according to advice reaching Berkeley from Chile, where Professor Charles E. Chapman is acting as exchange professor at the University of Chile.

That an enthusiastic welcome has been accorded the Californian and that the time of his departure for Berkeley is being looked forward to with regret is the news which came to the state university officials. Occupying Professor Chapman's place in Berkeley, and being accorded a similar enthusiastic welcome, is Raul Ramirez, professor of English at the University of Chile. The two professors are acting under the provisions of the first exchange agreement entered into between this country and Chile, and the success of the undertaking has led to steps to make the arrangement permanent, with further view toward increasing the friendly relations between the two continents.

GIVES HISTORY COURSES
Tribute to the work of Professor Chapman, who is giving courses in American history at the University of Chile, is contained in letters reaching Professor Ramerez from Dr. Arcadio Duque, head of the teacher's college of the University of Chile. Letters from Chilean students have also sung the praises of the California professor, while Professor Chapman has expressed his delight at his reception in communications received by college officials.

That the United States can contribute Chile to advantage in some respects is the message of the California professor. The earnestness of the students is a point on which Professor Chapman dwells in letters received here, while the Chilean plan of a centralized system of education is also lauded by the Berkeleyan.

"One thing which has attracted my attention is the centralized system of education in Chile contrasted with the free system of education in the United States," says the professor. "The education as in other problems of life in the United States we are approaching the same kind of centralization, but we shall never reach a degree of efficiency such as I find prevails in Chile. I doubt that there is any university in the world with more power than the University of Chile. If the president of Chile has a great deal of influence, he has had it for many years, directed, I believe, by the members of the different faculties. Moreover the position of high school teacher, not to mention that of the university professor, represents a higher and better social standing than in the United States.

CHILEAN STUDENTS GOOD
"What is also most interesting to me is the quality of students. The best system in the world with the best teachers could do little with bad material in the way of students. The Chilean student can stand side by side with any student in any country and he would not suffer by comparison.

That Chile is entering upon an era of independence in political and social life is also stated by Professor Chapman in telling of recent presidential elections in the South American Republic. Refusal of the working classes to "sell" their votes resulting in the election of a liberal candidate formed a new departure in national affairs, according to Professor Chapman. "Myself I think it is a big and significant thing indicative of a civic pride that is pointing to a healthy democracy," comments the Berkeleyan.

PERMANENCY SOUGHT.

Unless a permanent exchange arrangement can be made between the two universities, the fruits of the "pioneer" efforts of both himself and Professor Ramerez will be lost, says Professor Ramerez.

"On my part I have had an unusually happy welcome and will go back to my country with changed views on many questions," says the Chilean educator. "Through education of this kind can be found one of the most important mediums for cementing the ties of friendship between Chile and the United States. I came to Berkeley with certain impressions about America, but I have changed my views on many questions," says the Chilean educator.

"Through education of this kind can be found one of the most important mediums for cementing the ties of friendship between Chile and the United States. I came to Berkeley with certain impressions about America, but I have changed my views on many questions," says the Chilean educator.

Professor Ramerez is preparing to leave Berkeley in December for Chile, while Professor Chapman will return January. The furthering of the exchange plan is now in the hands of a committee of the state university on Latin-American affairs headed by Professor H. J. Priestley.

Travellers Boost Rates in Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Prices of rooms and meals in German hotels have been increased to such an extent that commercial travelers see danger of suspension of their business because their employers can no longer pay the exorbitant bills. Some of the big concerns threaten to call their drummers of the road. The Association of Commercial Travelers held a meeting and demanded that a committee be sent to investigate hotel prices for profiteering.

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in home that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barco Compound and 1/4 ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost.

Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It does not irritate the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Brunettes on Wane; Blondes Increasing

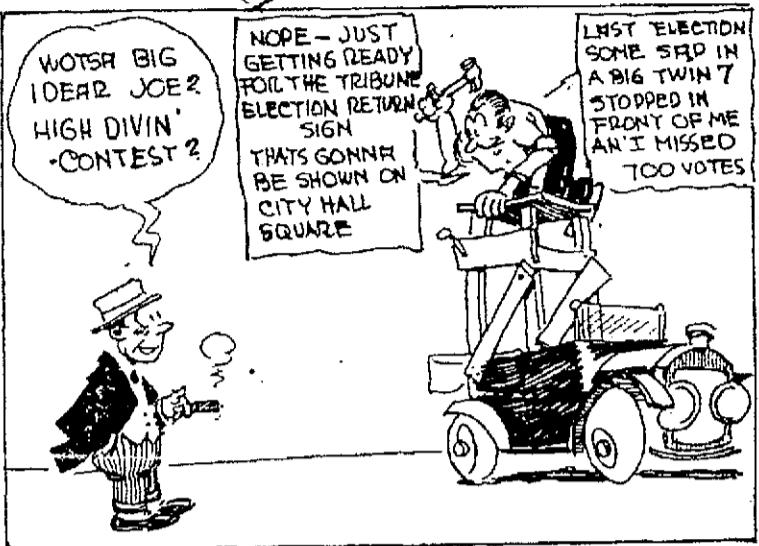

LONDON, Oct. 23.—City life leads to an increase in blondes and the gradual extinction of brunettes, is diminished by smoke and dust; sunless climates because they cannot tan them. Hence in time, lose their dark coloration. Eyes grow pale and the hair undergoes a kind of bleaching. Short brunettes ten to die in cold sunless climates because they cannot eat enough food to keep them. If you see it in The TRIBUNE, tell them so.

—By a signal system which will give an instantaneous flash to people all over the Eastbay on the result of the presidential vote.

Barred Students May Get Hearing

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—It is considered that last Saturday's action of the faculty students' affairs committee in suspending two senators from the University of California is the result of the annual "running" of the Skull and Keys Society, expected as a meeting of the Academic Senate, composed of faculty members on the campus, is expected to result from the re-hearing.

That John W. Cobb and Herman H. Cobb, the two suspended members of the Skull and Keys Society have expressed their willingness to accept more serious punishment to their membership as a body rather than to have Cobb and Butler forfeit their right to be graduated next May.

CLEMENC URGED. Similar appeals have reached faculty members from students outside of the censured society in such numbers, it is declared, as to have caused faculty members to express themselves in favor of a re-hearing for the suspended students.

Senate Must Act. J. W. Cline, president of the student body on the campus, who was "indulged" by one of the out-of-the-censured society in such a particular, action of the faculty committee investigating the "running" will be read to the Senate by Professor R. L. Adams, acting head of the students' affairs committee. Other members of the committee are Professor Joel H. Hildebrand and W. S. McIver. Either ratification or rejection of a committee's report must be voted by the Senate in order to have any ruling become effective.

PAINT FINGERNAILS. LONDON, Oct. 24.—"Articure," or decorating the fingernails with miniature painted designs, is the latest cult to be taken up in London. It comes from the Continent and is frowned upon by society leaders as the limit of folly. Hence its growing popularity.

In Oakland the reorganization of the 143rd Regiment of Field Artillery is under way under the direction of Colonel R. E. Mittlestaedt and Major Harry F. Huber.

Battery "B," the first unit to be recruited, now lacks but a few enlistments to bring it to the required minimum of fifty men necessary for mustering into service.

Club rooms for the organization on the second floor of the Odd Fellows building at Eleventh and Franklin are open daily until 10 p. m. to receive enlistments. Former service men may enlist for a period of one year, or longer if desired.

Ten Years Younger Than His Years

Doesn't it make you feel good—cause you to straighten up and feel "chesty"—when someone guesses your age; at ten years or so younger than you really are? You look into your mirror, smile with satisfaction and say to yourself: "Well, he didn't make such a bad guess, at that."

The point is: You're no older than your vitality.

If a man is strong, vigorous, mentally alert, fine and fit at 50 he has a better chance of living up to 80 than a man of 30 who is weak and run-down has of living up to 60. While none of us can stay the years nor stop time, we should all make an heroic effort to successfully resist the effects of time by ever keeping our vitality at par.

When you sense a feeling of slowing down of your physical forces—when your stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs show signs of weakness—when you notice a lack of your old time "pep" and "punch"—in other words, when you feel your vitality is on the wane, you should comment at once to restore your energy, strength and endurance by taking

BOY SCOUTS GET FUN AT DINNER

Rounding out a vacation week made possible because of the State Teachers' convention in Oakland, Boy Scouts yesterday enjoyed a "cheap feed" as the guest of R. C. "Cliff" Dunn, at his "Booth" bungalow name.

Durant Captain Eddie Buckenbaker, American ace, assisted by a group of visitors, sat on the long tables where the hungry youths were seated. The boys were given a free cup of coffee on the extensive grounds of the Dunn home and enjoyed many games. In the afternoon a rehearsal in an up-to-date stage set some of his thrilling stunts to amuse the boys.

In summing up the action of the week H. C. Cipolla, the president of the Boy Scouts said yesterday the boys' headquarters in the high school the money is taken in a lump sum and deposited in the two Alameda banks.

Each depositor is credited to the student tellers with a percentage of the interest on the lump sum deposited.

The student bank is legally a part of the two Alameda banks and school transactions are completed as such and operated with deposits to the full approval of the State Superintendents.

Each encouragement is given the students for the coming week to save and no sum is too small to deposit. Added interest is a part of the plan and the thrift maintained in the schools by competition is a great aid to the interest in this competition that is as depositors and as business work.

It is rare that the same school man has received consideration to hold the banner for two weeks in succession. The banner is awarded to the school whose deposit is the largest based upon the interest which the children have saved.

It would take volumes to tell the good turns that the Scouts did yesterday just prior to the Scout convention of the 10th, in which they did a good turn daily.

It may be a small thing such as running an errand for a neighbor or it may be that he will carry drinking water for 8 hours at a stretch for the firemen in a disastrous blaze which was actually done by our Scouts or he may risk his own life as three Scouts did in rescuing three boys from the chasm of Leontine.

If the cause of the Scouts is to be preserved according to the original intent of the Boy Scouts

AID TO MASON'S GIVEN THANKS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 23.—A letter of appreciation from Charles A. Adams, Grand Master of the Masons of California for the work of Dr. Arthur J. Ritter and Dr. Harold K. Faber of the Stanford pediatrics department in conducting a psychological and physical survey of the Masons' home for children at Covina, has been received by President Wilbur.

"This year," he says, "again it becomes the pleasure and duty of the Grand Master of Masons in this jurisdiction to acknowledge the Fraternity's debt of gratitude to Stanford University, and particularly to Dr. Arthur J. Ritter and his associate, Dr. Harold K. Faber, of the department of pediatrics. The importance of the psychological and physical survey made at Covina and which can not be appreciated except by one who has seen the results thereof, it was my good fortune this year to be able to be present during a part of the time. Dr. Ritter was conducting his examination of the children at Covina; and, notwithstanding my previous knowledge of the work in which he was engaged, it was to me a revelation in addition to his achievements in his chosen profession. He has a wonderful gift of glibness, confidence, and I think I may add the love of little children. If our debt of gratitude to him is ever discharged, it will be only through the satisfaction he so evidently finds in the opportunity for service to them and to the Fraternity."

Anti-Vivisection Law Held Blow at Cure of Botulism

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—Future experiments in combating botulism, the food poisoning which this week took the lives of three Oaklanders, will be stopped if the proposed anti-vivisection measure or Amendment No. 7 on the November ballot is passed, according to the declarations of Professor Samuel S. Maxwell of the department of physiology at the University of California, an advocate of vivisection before the members of the Berkeley police school.

Botulism investigations are yet far from complete and grave dangers must be faced in California if the passage of amendment 7 stops research work now in progress, says Professor Maxwell. His address is in part as follows:

"Amendment 7 is adopted, it will make impossible the manufacture and testing of serums. You and all intelligent voters know what that would mean in the inability to cope with many serious diseases. Not man alone would suffer, but the very animal which the amendment professes to protect. Hog cholera serum alone has saved more animals from suffering and death than all the animals that have been used in all the laboratories in the state."

ANTITOXINS NEEDED. "Antitoxins can neither be made nor standardized except by experiments on living animals. Diphtheria was once a dread terror. I myself remember seeing three beautiful little girls dead in one family in one day in spite of the best available medical help of the time. Where a suitable antitoxin is available such sources no longer exist."

"In the name of sympathy for helpless babies and helpless animals the amendment would deprive the babies of the protection from tuberculosis afforded by the testing of dairy cows with tuberculin, and would deprive the cows themselves from the protection resulting from the detection and removal of diseased cows from the herd."

"The decision as to whether blood stains are of animal or human origin can only be reached through experiments on animals. Certain poisons can only be identified in the same way. The proposed legislation would deprive the administration of justice of these important aids."

"Just within the last few days we have been shocked by the death of Dr. Edith Strong and two nurses through botulism poisoning; two other members of the party may be dead already. The work of research is prepared through experiments on animals; although the botulism investigations are yet far from complete and grave dangers must be faced in California if the passage of the amendment stops researches now in progress."

PELLE'S PLEA OF ANTI. "The anti-vivisectionist plea for the rights of animals may be put in this way: 'If there is not room in the lives of the woman and the dog to save the woman,' 'You have no right to kill a guinea pig to save a baby.' This is sound and rather heartless if it is your belief."

"Among the things accomplished by animal experimentation are an understanding of the nature of Asiatic plague, hydrophobia, malariac, hook worm, typhoid and many other diseases. Those who deny the ethics in regard to these things exhibit either ignorance or uncharitableness. Yet many of the supporters of the amendment do not realize the activities of the government in the killing of plague infected rats and ground squirrels."

"The animus of the amendment is shown in what it forbids and what it permits. If I should make an experiment under anesthesia on a living frog for a serious purpose, and should then kill the frog, I would be subject to a fine of $300 for the first pig and $500 for each pig afterward; but if the rauncher may grab a pig by the ears, throw him down in the dirty yard, put his knee on him, with a pocket knife make two ugly gashes, and rip out the testes without danger of punishment. I have seen this done numerous times. The number of operations in the state of California alone probably far exceeds all the vivisection experiments in all the universities of the world. But you must add to this the number of bull calves operated and the number of cattle dehorned. Then you will realize that the support of this measure is not a genuine effort to prevent the suffering of animals."

"The amendment does not prohibit vivisection unless the vivisection is done for a good purpose. Vivisection for fun or for curiosity or for commercial gain is not forbidden, but only for the purpose of physiological or pathological investigation."

NINE BIG TANKS, ALAMEDA PLAN OF OIL COMPANY

ALAMEDA, Oct. 23.—Permission to construct twelve foundations totaling a value of $125,000, was granted the Associated Oil company by the local building department today. The permits called for the construction of foundations for nine large supply tanks, a warehouse, garage, pump house, machine shops, a barn, a cook house, a large concrete retaining wall and an oil pump. The work is all going to be constructed upon the present property of the Associated Oil company located adjoining the Rhodes & Jameson plant just west of the Webster street bridge. The company has several small type supply tanks on the property at present from which the gasoline and oil is distributed to the founds and stations adjoining the estuary.

Whether the company intends changing its present main plant to Alameda or not could not be learned yesterday and no intimation of their plans was given when the permits were applied for. The value of the foundations, however, predict a plant of considerable size and value being constructed.

The location is ideal for the purpose, being connected with rail delivery from the Southern Pacific company of which the Associated Oil company is a subsidiary concern. Cheap water transportation is also at hand as the plant is located on the Oakland estuary. The deep water of the channel will permit the use of large oil tankers to dock alongside the retaining wall for the purpose of discharging their cargoes. The plant is also situated on a Webster street frontage allowing for excellent truck tank service and delivery.

CIVIL SERVICE TO HOLD MEETINGS

The Civil Service Defense League has planned a series of meetings for the last week of the campaign to educate the public as to the meaning and intent and the results that would follow the enactment of the proposed charter amendments.

Tuesday evening there will be a mass meeting of citizens at Lincoln Hall, 111 Webster street, to which labor and civic organizations have been invited. The speakers will deal solely with the reasons why the amendments should be defeated. Albert H. Elliott, one of the freeholders who wrote the present charter, has been requested to explain why the civil service section was added to the charter and why it was adopted by the people ten years ago.

There was much discussion of civil service at the time the charter was framed," said Elliott yesterday, "and many thought it was a radical experiment. The purpose was to take and to keep the city hall employees out of pernicious politics and to guarantee good service to the citizens. This it has done and the amendments as proposed are vicious, vindictive and have been brought up at the coming election to further the personal political ambitions of a triumvirate of office-holders."

Tuesday night T. H. Clay will speak before the Santa Fe Improvement Club on his experiences of civil service and of how they prove the good judgment of the people who voted for the charter as it stands. Horatio Johnson, president of the club, will also tell why the amendments are not in line with good government, but are calculated to restore the old spills system of years ago, when Oakland was governed in the back rooms of saloons.

In urging the support of the proposed public utility district for the Berkeley, Albany and the unincorporated regions adjoining the two cities.

Reiterating statements that the acquisition of water supply will not increase the tax rate one cent.

Mayor Bartle explains the necessity for favorable action on the question on November 13 in the following statement:

"The East Bay cities are served by the East Bay Water Company, with an average of less than 21 million gallons of water a day, of which Berkeley and Albany use about four million.

These cities and communities all of the water available and available outside sources of water available on the east side of the bay. These sources can be developed to furnish enough water to supply these growing communities for only a few years more.

PROPOSE WATER DISTRICT. "Berkeley has twice voted to organize a water district, but Oakland and Alameda have voted against it.

Mr. Bartle has tried to organize a water district with the same result. In this case, however, he has refused to act until a new public utility law is passed.

There is a public utility law under which 58 communities in California are successfully operating, and Berkeley and Albany district, draining the north side of Mount Tamalpais and a new one to be constructed a few miles below it. These can supply approximately 25 million gallons of water a day, which can be piped into the bay as is being successfully done by the Spring Valley Company from Alameda county, and between Brooklyn and Staten Island, New York. Either of these projects can supply more than four times the present consumption of Berkeley and Albany.

"The cost of a new supply need not increase the tax rate, as the interest on the investment will be paid out of the water rates charged, exactly as interest on the water company's bonds is included in our water bills; but as the water district can borrow money at about 1/2 per cent less than the water company can, the cost of the water to the consumers should be reduced about one-eighth, with the same amount of investment. The tax rate would not take two years to be capitalized just as the private companies do it, and would not be met by increase of taxation.

SECOND ELECTION NECESSARY. "This election is merely to organize a water district. A second election will be necessary to elect its officers, who will be entirely independent of the city government, and who will be responsible to the water district, not to the city government.

It is believed that these cities have refused to act until a new public utility law is passed.

Y FUND DRIVE CAPTAINS MEET

RICHMOND, Oct. 23.—Team captains and workers who are to participate in the campaign for $10,000 funds for the Young Men's Christian Association work in Richmond next week, held their preliminary meeting last night at the Richmond club house and listened to talks of local and national speakers upon the aims and methods of the campaign. P. M. Seford, general chairman of the campaign, announced that the work of raising the needed amount would begin on Sunday with talks by laymen and ministers in the various pulpits of the city. The next meeting will be held Monday evening at the Richmond club house, when first reports will be received and additional sections added.

Superintendent of schools W. T. Helms was the first speaker. He endorsed the project.

Mrs. C. S. Gibson, captain of the women's team, stated she considered the Y. M. C. A. drive as the most important work for the coming week. Rev. Thomas A. Boyer, Rev. H. K. Sanborne, Rev. J. S. Hocking and Rev. W. E. Berry all expressed their approval.

The main talk of the evening was by C. G. Titus, state officer of the Y. M. C. A.

At all the churches tomorrow attention will be called to the campaign and the objective of raising the money during the first few days of the campaign, will be announced.

Montana Travelers Save Money on Ry.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 23.—Many traveling men and others who use railroads frequently in Montana are buying tickets to points just within the boundaries of the State, stopping over between trains and buying new tickets to destinations outside the State.

The result has been to increase sales of railroad tickets at all points in Montana for local hauls and cut down the sales of tickets outside of the State.

Travelers discovered the big saving when the Montana Railroad Commission refused to grant the railroads a 20 percent increase in rates over the amount that State law will not permit the increase. The commission also denied the application of carriers to increase Pullman and parlor car fares 50 percent.

T. Bennett, of the Oceanic hotel, was held up and robbed of money and his watch and chain Friday night, according to his complaint to the police department today.

"Bennett was walking on Fifth street near the intersection of Williams street, when he was accosted by a pair who appeared to be negro women.

"Get out of my way," Bennett said to the women, who were of

Instead of obeying his command, they seized him and each struck.

Despite his struggles, they dragged him into an alley near by. After a brief scuffle they fled. It was then

Victory for Amendment 12 Will Bring U. C. Closer to People, Says Dr. Barrows

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—Instead of severing the tie between the people of the state and the University of California, Amendment 12, proposed as a means of raising funds for the state institution, will bring about a closer relationship between the two, declares President David P. Barrows.

"The millage tax amendment, by which it is hoped to raise more than four millions annually, will merely take the university out of the jurisdiction of the state board of control and will link it closer to the state. Dr. Barrows' explanation of the measure in urging support of the proposal on November 2.

Following is the official statement of Dr. Barrows:

"Amendment 12 embodies an invitation to the people and the university to come far closer together than they ever have been. There are a thousand more students on the campus at Berkeley than a year ago.

President Barrows said:

NEW REQUIREMENTS

"The various interests of the state are not satisfied with the quality of the service we are giving. How could they be?" It is not what we have been giving. Over and over, new desires and new requirements are raised by the people. The university cannot meet them with its present resources. The present conference of education is people of the state, and again there was the same complaint, that the university has not developed its school of education. It can't do it. It has not the funds.

"It is up to the people of the state to see what they want the university to do. If you want us to do less, if you want us to expand our functions to be more, then have other agencies of the state, that is for you to say. If you wish us to raise barriers to the free education of the children of the state which do not now exist, that is for you to say.

"If you wish us to impose a tuition, the regents have the legal power to do that but for fifty-two years the university has been an independent institution, has taught all who come. There are at least four thousand students who in very large part, or entirely, put themselves through college. They are in my office practically every day. I know how they sacrifice. I know how they work, men and women. If we put this barrier of a tuition fee upon them, many will be disappointed in the fine and heroic purposes of their lives.

BURDEN OF SUPPORT

"The objection raised against the measure is that it puts the entire burden of support upon private property and exempts the property of the public service corporations. That is a good political argument, but it is not sound. The property of the public service corporations will not go exempt from taxation. The state law as we now have it, requires that the legislature, at its biennial session, first to determine the burden that property directly assessed pays, and when that burden is accurately determined, then the legislature fixes the rate upon the gross income of public service corporations, and fixes it on an even basis—has the responsibility of fixing it so that public service corporations will share just as equally and evenly as can be satisfactorily determined the burden that private property bears.

REVENUE FROM PEOPLE

"The other argument is that this is removing the university from legislative control, because we will get our revenue directly from the people. This is not quite a true statement. It is removing the university, not from the control of the legislature (because the legislature does not appropriate), but in removing the university from the board of control, which in the last ten years has settled, each biennium, the amount of money the university was to receive, and which has compelled the university to agree that the amount having been determined by the board of control, the university would not go to the legislature and would be satisfied with what the board of control got for it.

"It is the board of control's power which is being affected in this thing, not the power of the legislature. We are asking this directly of the people. We are not asking to get in relations separate from the people. This is an invitation to the people and the university to come far closer together than they ever have been.

IS NOT POPULAR

"Direct taxation is not popular. People do not like to know directly what they pay. Under this system, a family having a house worth $10,000 would pay into the university fund $12 for the support of the university. What is the practical effect of that?

"The president and other university officers receive, every day, many letters from the people of the state inquiring, counselling, criticizing the university, from people who think they are the taxpayers and support it. Those letters are all answered. It is wholesome to receive them. The university gets good suggestions from them. The control of public opinion is very greatly helped and buttressed by that kind of correspondence.

"The effect of this measure, when every taxpayer sees each year what he pays to the university, is going to be to stimulate the correspondence manifold. The president is going to receive fifty letters to every one which comes now. There is popular control of the university through those who support it. The university cannot be controlled by mechanics, by cutting the autonomy of the State Board of Control. It can only be controlled by the people themselves—only popular opinion can control it or should control it—and that is the result that this measure will have."

Our Anniversary Sale Just Closed was a Great Profit Sharing Event

We tried to express to the best of our ability our appreciation of your friendship for the store by giving you the opportunity for great economies.

We thank you for the tremendous, overwhelming response that enabled us to break every previous sales record, or holiday record, of the store and for the many personal felicitations offered to the founders and different members of the organization throughout the week. Our hearts overflow with gratitude.

Of course, you know that as market prices drop our customers will continue to get the benefit. We are putting all the force and power we possess behind the general tendency for lower prices.

For some time our prices on many lines have been less than those of last season. We anticipated their lowering in many instances and bought very lightly. Now that the break has come in certain quarters, we are in a position to take every advantage of price drops and pass them on to our customers, with some reductions on stocks on hand.

Prices will not go down to pre-war figures. Don't expect it. Wages will not decrease, nor do we want them to. Certain costs of manufacturing and operation will remain high, hence prices cannot get back to the pre-war basis for years to come.

Many rumors about declines are greatly exaggerated. We, and many other merchants, never bought goods on the real high market, but anticipated the raise and bought before they reached the apex and merchandise was marked on that old cost basis. The wholesale market can decline considerably more in some cases before it reaches the level at which many merchants own their goods.

Capwells will reflect every drop in the Market, and more

We are eager to give lower prices and will force the issue all possible.

We are going to continue our present drive against high prices. Many, many of the bargains in our Anniversary Sale will not be marked back to their original prices.

While our Birthday Sales are officially closed, sales prices will be longer maintained on these and many more items.

INTEREST IN LINCOLN CAR IS VERY KEEN

had headquarters only in Pasadena. When awarded the Lincoln franchise for California, Walter Murphy, head of the company, began to gather about him capable executives. He started building an organization, the first step of which was to open a branch in Los Angeles, another depot in San Francisco and a fourth branch which will soon be completed, in Oakland.

SALES MARGIN IS UNIQUE

The story of how Lincoln cars were sold in California without even mentioning a price of the car which was to be paid, was an aid to the sales staff, without any definite idea of the size car that was to be made and with no conception of what its price might be. It is fairly well known to every Californian who follows the trend of motor car affairs. The accomplishment was one of the most noteworthy in automotive annals. While the writer hasn't the exact figures available, he believes the total number of genuine orders which were booked in this state considerably exceeded four hundred.

That such a large number of purchases were made indubitably a degree of faith in the Leland demonstrates without much argument that both Leland senior and junior rank high in the estimates of the four hundred or more people who will first drive Lincoln cars in this state.

KEEN MECHANICAL CHIEF

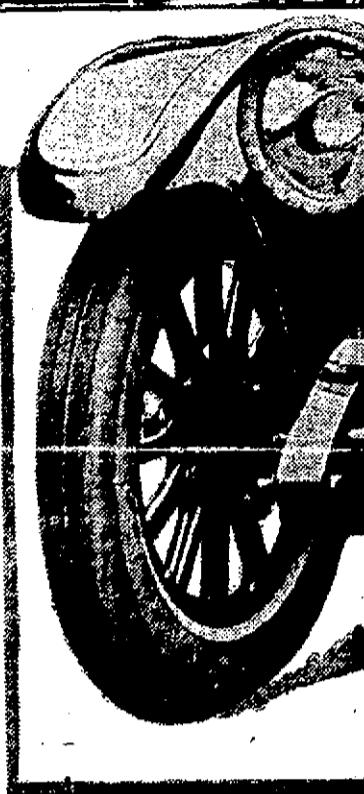

All the time the Murphy sales staff was working, there was equally busy, T. J. Beaudette, one of the best known mechanical experts, who had been chosen by Murphy to supervise the service departments of the four branches. He was designing machinery which was best adapted for accurately remedying not only any mechanical work that required hours to be remedied on Lincoln cars, but was also planning the most efficient kind of lathes, drill presses, gear-cutting machinery, grinders and air compressors which could handle work on any type of car.

In a trip through the Lincoln factory, Beaudette met Leland senior, whom he had known in years past, and with the resumption of acquaintance Beaudette was given an opportunity accorded to but few, to follow the process of manufacture from the raw material stages clear through the finished automobile. He studied the machinery the Lelands had adopted in various departments, and he brought back to California ideas which he has since executed for the Murphy houses. His handiwork is shown quite prominently in the shop of the Oakland branch, which will be opened in a short time.

Heading the local branch is James W. Gray an executive with a reputation as a keen organizer and sales director. His staff is as yet necessarily incomplete, but will probably be entirely assembled at the time the Oakland building is fully finished.

After Wednesday's presentation at Hotel Oakland, the Lincoln will be placed on display in the Murphy building at Broadway and Twenty-

Tells How Shutters Aid Motor Value in Cold Weather Explained

Now that the cold weather is here it is time to think in terms of underheating motors rather than overheating.

Expert engineers have discovered that 30 per cent of the fuel that is taken into the cylinders of an automobile is wasted, if the temperature of the motor is low, that is, too low for efficient operation.

"The reason the Hudson and Essex cars are provided with shutters is to eliminate this waste," points out E. A. Hamlin of Hamlin & Biagi.

Until the motor heats to the proper temperature, which can easily be determined by the thermometer on top of the radiator.

"The Essex is provided with a control system on the dash so that the gas and air mixture can be adjusted, the shutter operated and the motor choice for starting. These three levers are arranged at the left of the steering wheel. As the motor warms up the shutter can be gradually opened and the gas mixture changed, so that economical operation is had."

"With a cold motor a driver uses an extremely rich mixture of gasoline and air. Almost raw gas is fed into the cylinders. This raw gas gets past the best piston rings into the cylinder and dilutes the oil and may cause a lot of trouble. Ordinarily it takes a couple of miles of running with the Hudson and Essex shutter closed before proper motor temperature is reached. Think how much longer it would take with free circulation of air through the radiator."

"With the meter on the radiator cap and the shutter control at his hand on the dash, it is an easy matter for the driver to keep the motor at proper operating temperature at all times."

Java has become an important market for motor vehicles.

FAMOUS TREES NOT APPRECIATED

There are scores of highly interesting spots along California roads which motorists pass and repass day after day without realizing their real significance, yet scientists come from far and wide in some instances to look at these wonders.

At Chico there stands what Sir Joseph Hooker, eminent English botanist, declares to be the largest oak in the world, says Frank O. Rensstrom, Motorist should be sure to stop along the way when visiting this site located in Bidwell Park.

"There are lots of famous trees in the state," says Rensstrom. "Take

AUTO LOCK INVENTED, MADE HERE

Having passed the experimental stage through use of several hundred automobiles, the Leader Steering Wheel Lock, made by the Walker Motor Co., specialized company of Oakland, seems now to be on a fair way to build up another successful industrial enterprise in Oakland. At the head of the Walker corporation is Norman De Vaux, president of the Chevrolet Motor Co. R. C. Durant is first vice president and George Walker is second vice president and general manager.

LOCKS TWO WAYS.
The lock is about the surest and easiest to operate device of its kind which has been invented. It is placed beneath the steering wheel and its function is to lock the wheel and at the same time cut out the ignition. These two things being efficiently done there is little danger of a thief successfully "getting away" with an automobile equipped with the device.

How does it work? Two operations. By pressing a button beneath the lock the motor is shut off and the steering wheel locked, both at the same time. When the owner is ready to drive away again he opens the lock with a key that is not easily duplicated, steps on the starter and away he goes.

SLOW THIEF PROCESS.
The function by which the wheel is locked is in itself sufficient protection because most cars are parked with the front wheels in an angle to the rest of the car. If a thief tried to tow it away he would have a slow task unless the front portion of the car were jacked up and the towing process conducted in this slow manner, a performance not attempted by the burglar since there are so many other cars more easily "procured."

Sales headquarters for the Leader Steering Wheel Lock are at 1111 Telegraph and Harrison streets. A number of local automobile dealers and accessory houses have put in a stock of them.

Commission Named to Stop Accidents

Massachusetts has a Safe Roads Federation made up of representatives of numerous organizations, including motor vehicle clubs and dealers, automobile insurance companies, chambers of commerce and boards of trade, women's organizations and others interested in the cause of preventing highway accidents.

Grizzly Giant, largest living tree in the world. Even more impressive than its size is its profound antiquity. It is the oldest living thing in the world. Shrub roots root along a young sapling and it was a venerable tree of a few thousand years of age when the culture of ancient Mesopotamia, Greece, and Rome, were as yet unthought of.

"These are but a few of the many wonders nature has provided us Californians with, only to have them disregarded by many so-called average motorists."

William R. (Bill) Johnston, head of the William R. Johnston Manufacturing Company, for a number of years prominent in the Pacific coast automotive circles, has just brought out a rear vision mirror that gives promise of attaining as wide a market as have the Johnston plate glass curtains and windows and the Johnston wind deflectors, the latter motor car necessities with which "Bill" has made a remarkable success.

Johnston left the Pacific coast in April, 1917. He started a small factory in Chicago for the manufacture of plate glass windows to be used in the rear and on the sides to the east, won instant favor and within a year's time most of the large automobile manufacturers adopted his equipment. Now more than 75 makers employ his device.

A year ago he first brought out the wind deflector and in the twelve months period he has built up a nation wide demand for it.

The rear vision mirror is likely to have an equally large sale.

Senator Warren G. Harding is a member of the Chauffeurs' Union at Washington, D. C.

You Will Notice the Effect of Zero Balance the Moment You Take a Ride

Those who ride in a Cole Aero-Eight are quick to remark that it seems to cut the sensation of speed in half. At 60 miles an hour it seems to be going only 30—at 40 only 20—at 20 only 10—and at slower speeds one is hardly cognizant of the motion at all.

That is traceable to the zero-balance of the Aero-Eight—the same factor which causes the general performance and efficiency of the car actually to improve with use.

DORT
Quality Goes Clear Through

The belief that the DORT is the most desirable automobile investment in its field is spreading and extending itself further and further.

The judgment of California buyers of the DORT is being corroborated and confirmed by thousands of owners in every section of the country.

The DORT is exceptionally economical and durable, and admittedly requires unusually little service attention.

This is because it is a finely designed automobile—built with painstaking precision.

In fact, the foremost aim of DORT engineers was to build a car so that its owners could give it ordinary service attention easily and inexpensively.

Whenever your DORT needs a little tuning up or adjustment here or there, you don't have to disassemble the car.

HIGHWAY TO SAN DIEGO IS PICTURED

however, for the boulevard is lined, mile after mile, with the most luxuriant of orange groves, walnut orchards and sugar beet fields.

Farmers in this most wonderful agricultural district have set the rest of the state a good example to follow, by taking measures to unify their products. Both sides of the flower-like highway are lined by neat rows, hedges and plume-like palm trees, making a pleasing relief from bare fences.

The last large town on the coast route, the TRIBUNE-BUICK map car passed through was Santa Ana. Here are found the best places to procure meals. This most attractive little city is the center of a large, prosperous farming belt and its very streets, shaded by huge pepper trees, breathe content and affluence.

80,000 ACRES OF BEANS

Directly after leaving Santa Ana the highway runs through the enormous 80,000-acre San Joaquin Ranch, devoted to the raising of beans. Beans, beans, beans as far as the eye can see, for miles each side of the road. What a delight to a Bostonian.

When the speedometer registered 45 miles a second, after our intention to stop, I felt that off to the east, in the foothills is situated the "Forest of Arden," the home of the famous Russian actress, Modjeska.

The next place of note en route is Mission San Juan Capistrano on the outskirts of the sleepy little town of San Juan Capistrano. The TRIBUNE-BUICK was parked at the gate and the party, upon paying a nominal fee, were allowed to inspect the ruins. These few minutes were spent in admiration. The walls and arches have well been described as the most beautiful of mission ruins. The reliques shown by the guide and the stories told by him hold the attention fast and one wishes for time to idly stroll and people the place with dream figures of the days when it was built, with early California life.

After leaving San Juan Capistrano a short run gave us a strong wind, of salt air, and at 59.7 miles our first view of the ocean was gained. Thereafter the excellent boulevard follows the sea, quite closely, except at a few spots, for a distance of seventy miles. This is indeed the trip supreme, for the rolling expanse of water contributes constant changing aspects.

SUPERIOR BEACHES

The highway leads through many small towns that owe their existence mainly to the attractions of their superb beaches. Del Mar, especially, is the "Mecca" of the tourists, partly because of its inviting looking hotel and partly because of its personal service of great value. At Ocean Side a short detour of 4.7 miles can be profitably made up the valley of the San Luis Rey river to the ruins of Mission San Luis de Frans. This little haven of peace is used by the Franciscan Friars as a monastery, for it is in a very fair state of preservation. Here at to be seen the first peper tree, transplanted in California, and an antique pulpit used by Father Junipero Serra.

A little south of Del Mar the TRIBUNE-BUICK touring car easily climbed the excellent Torrey Pine grade. Here thrive those weird little Torrey pines, reminding one of ancient crippled gnomes, so twisted and bent are they from buffeting the strong Pacific gales. The slopes of these hills and the shores of the Santa Rosas, islands off the coast of Santa Barbara, are the sole two habitats of the interesting trees.

Near the summit of the grade is a lookout from which a sunset view cannot be excelled.

The next place to claim interest is La Jolla, with its sea caves in the rugged cliffs bordering the shore. These are well worth while the climb down the interminable number of steps which one must walk before reaching the goal.

Apart from the lure of liquor, Tijuana itself presents little of interest, it being a mere collection of ramshackle wooden buildings with ornate false fronts proclaiming the fronts within. It is suggestive of the mining camps of early days.

The Casino is a whirl of excited gamblers strutting around the tables. During the racing season the crowds here are greatly augmented, and to obtain a place to the border were procured at the custom house in Tijuana, but how these must be obtained at the post-office building in San Diego.

The return to San Diego can be made along the Silver Strand route by turning off at Palm Station and proceeding on through Imperial City and Coronado.

CORONADO BEACH

The highway follows a very narrow neck of land lying between the ocean and an arm of San Diego bay. Both waters are visible at the same time and during storms no doubt breakers sweep across in the narrow space. Before coming to the huge concrete bridge, the bridge of the canyon of the Temescal river to San Diego, the road passes through the famous Tijuana City.

To get back into San Diego one must ferry across the bay. The service is frequent and the small boat is very expensive. Especially so when the toll of a fine bridge or so is taken nearly every time the bus back country. At Murietta a slight detour to the right brings the motorist to Murietta Hot Springs, famous for its most beneficial mud baths.

RETURN BY RIVERSIDE

To vary the trip the return from San Diego was made by the inland route via Riverside. Motorists should take the Murray canyon route out of San Diego for this is paved as far as the junction of the Camp Kearney road. The highway passes through a distance of this road, however, about one-half mile. For a long distance after leaving San Diego the country partakes of the nature of the desert and there is little of interest.

One travels dirt roads fair and otherwise until the Riverside country line is reached, where again high grade is gained.

The scene becomes more mountainous near Bonelli and Fullerton. After leaving the latter one descends the Red Mountain Grade at the summit of this the TRIBUNE-

BUICK party paused for here a fine view of the canyon of the Temescal river to San Diego is obtained and left through the famous Tijuana City.

Just before coming to the town of Elsinore the highway passes the dark-infested shores of Lake Elsinore.

From here to the tiny Spurres grade beyond Alessandro about all of interest near hand is March Aviation Field near Alessandro. The views of the mountains, however, are fine for they are very rugged and bold and the first view of the mountains from the grade dropping down into Petaluma is thrilling indeed.

After descending Buick Springs grade the TRIBUNE-BUICK party were delighted with theerville country surrounding Riverside.

CHOICE OF ROUTE

Two points of interest in Riverside should especially claim attention.

Rubidoux mountain, surrounded by a cross, where the famous Easter service is held each year and the famous Rubidoux Mission Inn, with its open air court dinner service, its Moorish and Spanish architecture and its collection of antiques and curios. The route from here into Los Angeles can be optional with the tourist. He can go the shorter way via the Valley boulevard through Pomona or he can spend a little more time on the road and San Bernardino, from there via the Foothill boulevard through Pasadena to Los Angeles.

The city of Redlands, the scene of the famous movie, "Lies of the World," is wonderfully situated in a marvellously productive orange belt, while all around and above it towers a range of imposing snow-capped peaks. The view of the surrounding country obtained from Sunlit Heights is very fine.

Redlands is the gateway to the Big Bear country, where two mountain lakes furnish most excellent fishing for sportsmen.

marked stability—elements which in themselves mean true economy over a period of years. And there is the added assurance that comes from the long proving-out period through which the car has been evolved.

The Engine

Our new engine, which embodies a number of unique and distinctive features, but which cannot well be treated in detail here, I regard as the most efficient piece of motor car mechanism I have ever seen. Its piston displacement is 357.8 cubic inches. Its power seems almost limitless; I can hardly conceive of any call to which this engine will not respond.

The wheelbase is 130" except of the Limousine and Town Cars of which it is 136". The tires are 33" x 5" cords.

Comfort and Performance

In this day of fine cars, it is not easy to imagine a more enchanting way of abridging distance, but let me cite my own experience:

Our engineers and experimental drivers had been telling us what an unusual car they had; but frankly, I was a little inclined to discount their enthusiasm.

However, I had occasion to go to Defiance, Ohio, some 125 miles from Detroit—according to the Blue Book. I thought here would be a good opportunity to see for myself just what the car was. There were five of us. The top was up.

We were on a fine stretch with no other vehicles or cross-roads in sight, bowing along so rarely at about 40 miles per hour—so I judged.

I am constitutionally opposed to speeding, but my interest and curiosity, I suppose it was, got the better of me.

"Step on it and let's see what she can do," I said to Harry, the driver.

"She's doing her best now," he answered.

Doing her best at 40! I was keenly disappointed. My hopes were fast fading when I who sat beside the driver called back;

ORDINANCE TO CHANGE ROAD RULES

THE ACCOMPANYING SKETCH SHOWS WHEREIN CHANGES ARE PROPOSED IN THE travel district by the new ordinance which is before the city council. If the act should pass and indications are that it will, it behoves the motorist to carefully study this sketch and avoid himself trouble at a later date.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS REQUIRED IF PROPOSED NEW ORDINANCE PASSES.

Dramatic changes and additions to existing traffic ordinances, with particular reference to time and manner of parking in restricted districts, were revealed in a proposed law, drawn and completed for presentation to the city council by Superintendent of Streets George Mattis. The provisions of the ordinance, Mattis declares, were decided upon after an exhaustive investigation of traffic conditions had been conducted by the engineer, W. H. Weller, of the city. Although drawn in legal form, Mattis said, the plans are only tentative, and will be submitted to merchants in the downtown district before formal action is taken by the council.

CHANGES PROPOSED.

The proposed act embodies the following departures from present regulations:

Parking, time limit and manner, "no left-hand turns only at street intersections, left-hand turns prohibited at specified points, collection of garbage and transportation of freight, with several modifications of this clause.

For the purpose of making clear the provisions of the new district of which there are to be four, Mattis indicates in the following manner the boundaries thereof:

District No. 1—Embraces all of the street territory bounded on the south by Eleventh street, on the west by Clay street, with the exception of an extra block on Fourteenth where the district extends to Jefferson; further bounded on the west by Clay to San Pablo.

The eastern boundary runs along Washington from Eleventh to Fourteenth and east to San Pablo. This district also includes the territory between Broadway and Webster on the west and east, between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, and one block on Seventeenth between San Pablo and Telegraph.

WASHINGTON AND BROADWAY.

District No. 2—"Embraces the street territory between Washington and Broadway, and between Eleventh and Fourteenth streets.

District No. 3—"Embraces the territory bounded on the west by San Pablo on the south by Fourteenth street, and on the east by Franklin street and on the north by Seventeenth street."

Angle parking is demanded in this district.

A time limit of 25 minutes is placed on district No. 2, with parallel parking, while for the three blocks on Broadway, comprising number three, a limit of 15 minutes is fixed.

In district number four, a 40-minute stop is allowed, with parallel parking.

In every case the provisions relate to the period between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. with the exception of Sundays and legal holidays.

Right restrictions on the transportation of freight are imposed as follows:

No vehicle used for the transportation of freight, baggage or merchandise shall be allowed to stand on any of the highways in any of the districts designated as districts one, two, three or four, except when actually loading or unloading, and the time allowed for these exceptions shall not, except in case of emergency, exceed 20 minutes.

It is also proposed to declare unlawful the appearance of two or more freight vehicles "hitched tandem," or drawn by more than four horses, or the hauling of dirt between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. The total length of such vehicle must not exceed forty feet in length or ten feet in width.

Relative to the handling of carloads, the proposed ordinance provides a penalty for the collection of refuse between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. This clause also applies to Market street between Twelfth and Eleventh.

Jay-walking is prohibited in the following manner:

"Pedestrians shall not cross highways in either district number one, two, three or four, except at intersecting highway corners and no pedestrian shall cross any intersecting highway diagonally."

"Turning in the middle of the block, and crossing an intersection faster than 10 miles an hour where there are street cars or railway tracks, is also forbidden."

"We hope that the proposed ordinance will meet with the approval of the motoring public."

The newest departure, perhaps, is the proposal to forbid left-hand turns at the intersection of Twelfth and Broadway or at the intersection of Fourteenth and Broadway. This, it is believed, will solve the traffic congestion at those points during the rush hours.

"Steps to regulate the enormous amount of traffic encountered hourly on the downtown streets, made drastic action necessary," declared Mattis.

"In an actual account, the other day, 3025 machines crossed the intersection of Fourteenth and Broadway between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

"We hope that the proposed ordinance will meet with the approval of the motoring public."

The discriminating public is always seeking newness and distinction.

HAYNES IS AMERICA'S FIRST CAR 1920

U. S. EXPORT AUTO TRADE IS GROWING

By F. ED. SPOONER

Special to The TRIBUNE.
DETROIT, Oct. 23.—Confidence in the future is the one outstanding feature of the automobile situation. This confidence embraces both domestic consumption and export business. The latter is growing steadily, daily, but is retarded considerably by the question of its change.

Everyone is talking of the future and of the opening of what is termed the "Great Battle." It is admitted that indications are strong for a greater shortage of cars in the spring than was ever known.

SHORTAGE IN SPRING.

Shortage of cars will be brought about in the spring through the fall-out of淡季 at this trying time to stock up with material for a product sufficient to meet the growing demand. There is no doubt that the present situation has frightened many manufacturers. According to well-known men of the business, there is no real reason for this fright. They state that a careful analysis will prove that there is a steady market in America for 1,000,000 cars per year, replacements alone, and that exports will take a large percentage of the output. This is believed to be the statement of one manufacturer who says that the saturation point will be reached only when all of the kids of the day have grown up and there are no more of them to grow to manhood.

INCREASE PRODUCTION.

Manufacturers are being balanced where the auto companies are in actual manufacturing. As a general rule passenger car companies are producing an average of 30 to 35 per cent of normal, and truck companies are at about 50 per cent. All are prepared to increase production rapidly, as business conditions improve, and all look for a decided improvement by December 1. or the first of the year, with a return to normal demand by spring. The country is full of buyers who have delayed pur-

NEW AUTO PLANT OPENS CAFETERIA

What is declared to be the most efficient and most modern industrial plant canteen system in operation in the world has just been opened at the new factory of the Studebaker corporation at South Bend, Ind., according to information just received by the Weaver-Wells company, distributor of Studebaker automobiles and Day-Elder trucks.

The new cafeteria has a capacity for feeding 5000 employees every fifteen minutes. This includes a male cafeteria which accommodates 1500 persons and ten branches each with a capacity for 350 employees that are located in various connecting plant buildings.

chasing their cars until the winter has passed, and this means a most extraordinary business at the shows and in the opening of good weather during the spring months.

In the Great Battle coming, sales will be made in a buyers' market. More and better salesmen will have to be employed, and advertising will have to be carried through on an unprecedented scale.

CONFIDENCE IN FUTURE.

Confidence in the future is apparently well placed. A highly international repue, whose name and abilities are prominently before the public at all times, recently stated that the pressure of the banks on the automotive industry would let up December 1, and that the coming situation will be reflected in Wall street November 3.

Wall street is going to bring the business to the floors of the national automobile shows, which should yield enormous results in business, and break all records.

It may be that manufacturers of automobiles and motor trucks are leaning too far on the side of caution, but conditions as they have developed would seem to indicate that the shortage of cars predicted for the spring was not misplaced. As the construction continues, and as business is made good in all fields of demands for cars, will undoubtedly surprise 90 per cent of the men of the automotive industry.

DEMAND FOR GOOD CARS KEEPS PACE

Since the announcement last week that the Early Sales and Garage company had taken the agency for the Lexington in the San Joaquin territory under the supervision of O. N. Hirsch, there have been many inquiries coming into the offices of the concern, according to word given out by Bill Sharp, manager.

"The Lexington is built by a large and well equipped motor car plant at Connersville, Indiana. There are several other manufacturers located there which are controlled by the Lexington company.

"This system of co-operation eliminates several profits that assembled car makers have to pay, so that prices are held down to a minimum.

"Here in the eastbay territory there is an insistent demand for good cars at reasonable prices.

"On this side of the bay there is more room to automobile than in San Francisco. Across the bay there is only one place to go, and that is down the peninsula. Here we have all kinds of roads and hundreds of spots that we visit time and time again. Over there they have few places for picnics. Here we have great spots, all not further from San Francisco than La Honda is from San Francisco.

"We are welcoming Lexington owners, and have had many come in and have looked over their cars.

JACK RABBIT GETS NEW NAME

Templar The Superfine Small Car

Ducks and plenty of them boys, and if you don't get your share I'll see that you get a part of mine. This statement would sound good to any smart boy contemplating a hunt for that elusive bird.

Just a few days before the season opened George Metcalf, one of the Frame Bros., star mechanics and widely known as a crack shot, invited some of his fellow workmen to join in a hunt where ducks are plentiful. Everybody in the machine shop was promised at least a look at the ducks when we were brought home. Three days with plenty of rain and mud and the only thing brought back that looked like a duck at all was a jackrabbit shot while on route home. There were plenty of ducks, stated Harry Schwartz, one of the boys on the hunt, but the rain hindered our shooting.

The jackrabbit killed was decorated with duck feathers and named the Colossus jumping duck. It is now on exhibit at the Frame Bros.

New Motor Combine Reported in New York

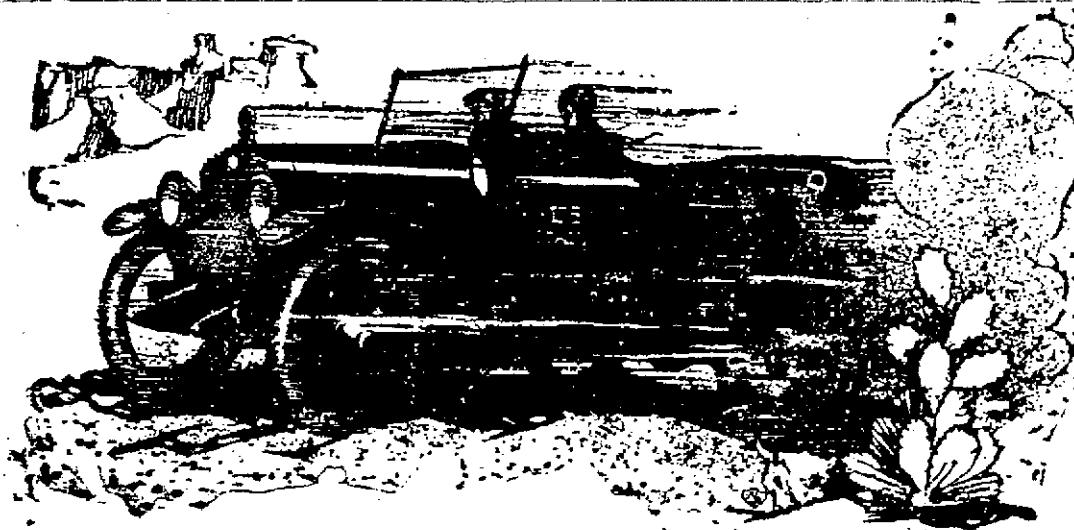

A report is current in some of the New York financial circles that negotiations are pending toward the formation of a new automobile company, the result of the merger of all the Willys interests with a number of other concerns, some of which have been his principal furnishers of parts and accessories. The companies mentioned are the Willys-Overland, Inc., the Willys corporation, the Rochester-Deusenberg Motor corporation, Stromberg Motor Devices company, and the American-Bosch corporation.

TWO WOMEN DRIVE ACROSS CONTINENT

Driving across the continent from Oakland to New York is not unusual, but when two young ladies undertake this feat in a motor car, it becomes a news item. Since it proves that automobile drivers are now being built that will undergo a strenuous trip of this type and that professional drivers or mechanics are not needed.

Misses Viola Burner and Alice Hill made this trip alone in an Elgin Six. The young women expect to stop at every state, since it is their first, and decided to use an Elgin six motor car to take them across the continent and back. Miss Burner and Miss Hill have just returned from their trip through twenty-one states where they visited all the big cities in each state. In telling of her trip, Miss Burner says: "If my car had not given trouble we couldn't have made the trip."

It remained me of course on my way home after a long drive, anxious to get back and without any trouble whatsoever we have made the trip."

"Coming down through Oregon the view of snow on the Siskiyou mountains was beautiful. We encountered lots of rain in the state of Oregon. "I am glad to get back to California. Unless we go away once in awhile we do not appreciate our trip had been entirely devoid of trouble."

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE IN THE WAY THE LIBERTY RIDES AND DRIVES

LIBERTY SIX

ODAY you read that distribution of the Liberty Six in Northern California has been placed in the hands of L. D. ALLEN INC. This is the story of what we learned about the car from the owners.

We learned, for instance, that in the five years this Liberty Six has been in service not one rear end has ever been replaced—not so much as a gear gone wrong. We doubt if any other car on the market today can claim such a record. And that is characteristic of the Liberty Six as a whole. It is fundamentally sound in design—uniformly sturdy in construction.

"Nothing ever goes wrong with my car," is the typical approval of the Liberty owner. They speak, first, of the wonderful difference in the way it rides and drives, and in the same breath of the high quality of its construction.

The underlying reason, of course, is the basic goodness of the car.

This quality is not alone "under the hood." You see it in the exterior finish—the quiet, unobtrusive gentility of design, colors, materials. You reflect, in seeing the Liberty Six, that it is a symbol of good taste—a car you would be proud to drive. Instantly you lift it out of the herd and classify it as an automobile of distinction.

And if you were to examine it you would learn that the detail of its finish is in keeping with its general impression of quality; that it carries five persons comfortably; that it is Timken equipped throughout; that it has a powerful motor of Liberty design made by the Wisconsin Motor Company exclusively for Liberty; that in design, construction and materials it qualifies in every instance as a quality car.

Riding in it you would be nothing short of amazed—as we were amazed—by the delightful difference in the way it rides and drives; that it is powerful beyond your conception of the power of a car of its size; that it has an astounding range of speed; that it leaps forward like a greyhound or with the smooth, quiet tread of a cat, depending on the pressure of the accelerator; that you can shift its gears without effort or noise; that it delivers unusually high fuel and tire mileage.

Then you will wonder, as we wondered, how this car can be delivered to you here for $2050. Beyond this you have the assurance of the complete service of the entire Allen organization at your command.

There is a Liberty demonstrator ready today at the Allen houses in San Francisco, Oakland, Fresno, Stockton, and Sacramento. Learn for yourself the many superior features of the Liberty Six. You owe it to yourself to arrange for a demonstration now.

BORDEN ROAD HELPED BY LATE RAINS

BYRON, Oct. 23.—The Borden road across the so-called island country from Byron to Stockton is in fine shape. The rains of the week have packed the gravel on the Victoria end so that motoring is enjoyable. Barge loads of fine gravel will soon be placed on the four and a half miles on Victoria, and the roadway scraped and packed, making the highway good for winter travel. In the spring it is to be macadamized.

The roadway on the Byron tract to the Old River bridge is one of the finest in the state, while the newly-paved portion from Holt on down through Roberts Island and across Rough and Ready toward Stockton is one of the best pieces of road building in the delta.

The trip to Stockton from Byron-Bentwood is a good one, only 21 miles can be made in fifty minutes, and when the Victoria portion is paved and the bridge over Mormon channel in Stockton built, for which the city has just voted bonds in the sum of $100,000, the drive across the delta will be made with ease in 40 minutes. In addition, the whole route is most interesting, the driveway taking one past thousand acres of the most highly cultivated fields in the west—potatoes, onions, celery, asparagus, beans and the like.

On the return trip from Stockton the road across Byron tract meets Contra Costa's fifty miles of matchless concrete boulevards, eighteen feet in width, and running through all the principal towns of the eastern end, bringing the passenger out through the Funeral road at Claremont in Oakland.

This wonderful island road, now the marvel of this section, was originated by the Byron Times and put through, despite the greatest opposition in the beginning, after six years' fight. It is now proving, and will continue to prove, the greatest of blessings to all this territory and Stockton as well as opening up this section and furnishing a direct route to the Yosemite via Stockton, while on the return trip the motorist can go by way of Tracy and Livermore, thus providing a picturesque route both going and coming. Later the Marsh Creek roadway is to be widened and improved, and this will provide a still nearer route to the bay sections.

Paris Taxi Drivers Re-enact the Name

In Paris, taxicab drivers recently celebrated the sixth anniversary of the Battle of the Marne. Many remain of the thousand drivers requisitioned with their machines to transport 5000 troops for a counter attack on the German army, and made possible the victory of the greatest battle in history.

UNDER-INFLATION CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Under inflation has long been denounced as one of the chief ills from which motor-king suffers. Not only is it apt to lead to trouble for the motorist. An under-inflated tire is bound to break down quicker than one that is kept at the proper pressure. The side walls break down more rapidly and the entire carcass becomes gradually weakened when it is permitted to remain only partially inflated.

Pennsylvania has a registration of more than 50,226 motor trucks.

"Another thing that happens whenever a motorist becomes careless and permits under-inflation to escape his attention is the none too gradual disintegration of the fabric in the center of the tire," declares Frank A. Russel, distributor of Brunswick tires.

The less inflated a tire is, the greater the 'bulge' or traction wave, and the greater the consequent strain on tire tissues. A little attention to the amount of air in your tires, and you can easily avoid this source of trouble."

The Price of the Nash Six is $1990 with Cord Tires f. o. b. Oakland

We emphasize the price, $1990 because it is very low.

We have created in this car an actual and exceptional value which we know justifies this statement:

The Nash Six is a better value than any other car selling near it in price and equal to many costing hundreds of dollars more.

Determine this for yourself.

Compare the Nash Six with other cars; compare the power of its perfected valve-in-head motor, its roominess and comfort, and the really exceptional beauty of its design and finish.

AMENDMENT IS URGED BY AUTO BOARD

BY BURTON A. TOWNE
Former State Highway
Commissioner

Passage of Amendment No. 2 is vital to the economic and commercial welfare of California. Every voter, whether or not he possesses a motor car, is interested in the success of this amendment, which can be defeated only through apathy or ignorance on the part of the voter of its essential features.

In its campaign in the interest of this amendment, the California State Automobile Association is stressing the following:

"Voting of the amendment will result in a complete stoppage of highway work for a period of at least two years. This statement is backed by the opinion of leading bankers, who assert bonds cannot be sold during this period.

FEDERAL AID DEMAND

"In order to obtain $5,450,083 of Federal aid money the State of California must match these funds in 1921—or impossible unless the bonds can be marketed in competition with United States government bonds and many industrial issues bearing much higher rates of interest."

"The amendment brings relief to those poorer counties now burdened with excessive interest payments, and places this burden upon the state, which properly belongs to the state. Modoc, one of the smallest in the state, is carrying an annual interest burden of $87,000, and many other smaller counties are neglecting their own debts to bear an interest burden that should properly rest upon the state, as our roads are for the people of the entire state, and the counties are now constructing at their own expense the secondary roads needed to complete our state system."

INTEREST CHANCES

"State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson's recent statement infers Amendment No. 2 arbitrarily increases the interest rate to 6 per cent. The fact is that this amendment simply supplies flexibility in the interest rate, and permits state highway bonds to be sold at 3 1/2 per cent. If the amendment fails, such bonds are 3 1/2 per cent, or 4 per cent if such is the rate, and so on, not to exceed a maximum rate of 6 per cent."

"Under the present law, when the market will absorb such bonds at 3 1/2 per cent, or 4 per cent, they bear the arbitrary rate of 4 1/2 per cent, which is uneconomical, a fact which should be considered by all voters at the polls. No. 2, Passage of this amendment is a insurance against possible unemployment in 1921, making available as it will, $40,000,000 worth of highway construction work. Will Build Addition

The Michigan Securities commission has given permission to the Muskegon Specialties company, of Muskegon, Mich., to issue $250,000 of stock for the purpose of erecting additional space in its plant. The company, according to officials, has more than $1,000,000 worth of orders on its books and positively needs more manufacturing facilities. The company started business in 1909 with but five men, in a building with 3,400 square feet of floor space. Since then the space of the factory has been increased six times, until it covers 60,000 square feet. The company makes certain parts and specialties for about 50 of the best-known automobile, tractor and boat companies in the country.

DE RUBINI IS AIDED BY MOTOR CARS

GOOD ROADS' IDEA POPULAR IN U. S.

People the nation over are waking up to the good roads idea, believes Max Arnold, originator of the Superhighway idea in used-car merchandising and one of the leaders in San Francisco automotive circles.

"Never before have as many road building projects been under way as at the present time," declares Arnold. "California's work in starting this ball rolling has 'sold' the good roads idea to the rest of the country, and although the awakening has been slow, the movement has now attained a momentum that nothing can stop."

Free schools are conducted in New York City for instruction in operation and care of motor trucks.

When Eugene De Rubini, the wizard, started Oakland with his wonderful powers last week, he depended on motor cars more than any possible carriage. Of course, he could have walked from the hotel to the city hall, but there would have been hours of delay and much confusion.

In order to make the demonstration a complete success, The TRIBUNE secured ten automobiles from Harold Knudsen, manager of the city's Overland Pacific company. Nine of the cars were Overland Fours, and the leading car, which carried Rubini, was a Willys Knight. Rubini guided the driver of the first car, Walter Crimmon, and told him where to lead the procession, which made the test one of the wonders of the age.

The final test, which was made under the auspices of The TRIBUNE and supervised by some of the best known men in the city of Oakland, was this: Start at Hotel Oak, "Go down Thirteenth street to Broadway, turn right to Fourteenth street, turn left to Washington, turn right to city hall entrance, up main stairs, turn right, Red Cross office, pick up membership poster, take to post-office room 1.

Starting from the Hotel Oakland in the Willys Knight, Rubini guided the motorcade without error, in spite of clanging street cars, traffic jams that included clogging trucks, drivers, heated motor-car operators and police. Several times the traffic officers, in an Overland car, had to clear the way by main force.

In spite of all this disturbance, Rubini maintained his calm, pre-cessed demonstration, and guided his party unerringly.

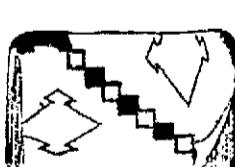

Once on route he became confused for a moment, but that was all. He came back to his selected route without trouble.

The route was selected in secret by Oakland business men, and written and sealed. When the envelope was opened by the postmaster, at the conclusion of the test, there was a great cheer.

Only one person in every 5,000 in Russia owns an automobile.

AUTO IS UTILITY AND NOT LUXURY

Few thinking people, and certainly no real motorists, can fail to register disbelief when some self-appointed authority rises to class the automobile as a luxury. The day when automobiles were regarded as luxuries is past and gone. Today the motor car has proven itself to be a utility and not a novelty—a necessity and not a luxury.

Charles H. Burman, Oakland discusses voices the sentiments of the automobile industry, in these remarks:

"It has been proven in official gathered statistics that the percentage of automobiles used strictly for pleasure purposes is so small that it is not worthy of consideration," Burman continued.

"Read the automobile figures for example, and you will find the actual influence of motor transportation. Nothing has ever done as much to make farm life more attractive and more profitable as the automobile, and nothing has increased land values as much as motor cars and the good roads that follow."

All but nine states in the Union have already surpassed the total number of motor vehicles for the entire year of 1919.

Will Devote Funds to Road Construction 88 Percent of Roads Of U. S. Are Unpaved
Eighty-eight per cent of the roads and highways of the United States are unpaved. These figures, almost startling because of their difference with the growing but erroneous impression found especially in this state, are supplied by the Motor Car Company of St. Louis.

Tested at Every Turn

We guarantee the wrist-pins which we supply in all standard and oversizes for practically every popular make of car to be of proper hardness, absolutely round and without taper because we know they are right—from the material that goes into them at the start through every process of finishing.

These pins are made of carbon steel, tempered by the bone and willow charcoal process; they are fabricated by expert workmen, using the finest machinery and working with the newest processes, the grinding being done, for example, in the accurate Norton Grinders, and they are inspected at the end of each process.

Finally, after they are finished, they are tested in the delicate scleroscope for hardness and all pins that do not measure up to 85 degrees are discarded.

Install the wrist-pins made by Patterson Parts, Inc., the next time you have work done on your piston-assembly. You will find that they give super-satisfactory service.

15,000 Persons to have their first ride in the Marmon 34 this week

We want every car owner in this city to know the remarkable qualities of the Marmon 34, as Marmon owners know them. The only way you can know this is to ride in the car—to have a real demonstration. If you are a car owner, we want you to ride, some time this week.

This does not mean only "prospects"—persons who intend to buy a car. We want every car owner to ride in the Marmon. Read about this interesting plan.

Marmon 34 Demonstration Week, October 25-30

Most people feel that they should not ask for a demonstration unless they are actually going to buy a car. And, as a rule, dealers do not wish to incur the expense of a demonstration except for actual "prospects."

But we want every car owner in this city to know what a wonderful car the Marmon 34 is. We know that one ride—one real Marmon demonstration—will prove to their own satisfaction that all the remarkable things they hear about the Marmon are true. It will tell them more than much advertising.

For this is the new way of advertising motor cars—on facts—on proved performance, instead of by printed claims. And that Nordyke & Marmon Company is the first to introduce this new method proves its faith in the Marmon 34.

The coming week will be Marmon Demonstration Week all over the country. It is estimated that 15,000 persons will ride in the Marmon this week.

In a previous advertisement we told the interesting story of the Marmon

Score Card—the simple, logical system for judging a motor car strictly on its performance.

We want every car owner to have one of these Score Cards. And we want him to record the performance of the Marmon 34 as we give him a demonstration. Then, if he wishes, he can "score" any other car during a demonstration.

If you own a car, allow us to give you a Marmon demonstration at any time during the coming week most convenient for you.

Remember, we do not ask that you even consider buying a motor car. You will not be obligated in any way. There are no strings to our invitation. We just want you to know Marmon ease of riding, roadability, smoothness of motor operation, convenience of all controls and other exceptional qualities. After you have had your demonstration, you will know them. And you will have gained a new conception of motor car performance.

Call us up and make an appointment for your demonstration.

NOVEL TEST FOR CAR IS PLANNED

Method of Repairing Cylinder Jacket Leak

When water leakage develops between the rubber hose and the outlet from the cylinder jacket, or where the hose joins the radiator pipe, it can be obviated by wrapping the joints with ordinary adhesive tape. The proper method to follow is to remove the clamps, tape the joints and shield the tape. When the shellac is applied the hose clamps should be re-applied. Be sure that the clamp draws up in a perfect circle, and if it is out of shape and will not draw properly it will bunch up the rubber hose so that leakage will begin again before long.

The rabid baseball fan waits eagerly for his paper with the box score of the game, so that he can see what his favorite has done that day. The box score tells the story of the game just as clearly as does the board used at great automobile races.

Now comes the Nordyke and Marmon company and offers for the benefit of the motorist the convenience of the merits of different cars in a demonstration "score card" which is said to make it far easier to get an accurate comparison of the twelve great factors in motor car quality.

All this week motor fans will have a chance to test their theories of car performance. It is "demonstration week" at Marmon headquarters here, and at Rawlings. His corps of experts have been ready to break out on any sort of a test. A stop watch is provided, so that acceleration and deceleration can be measured in seconds.

The idea of a comparative score card is not entirely new to the automotive industry, because such a system has been used in some form by practically all automotive engineers for many years in comparing their cars with some other.

"It has remained for the builders of the Marmon, however, to give general circulation to the idea and let the buying public as a whole have an insight into the methods by which experts judge cars to add them to make their own decisions," says Rawlings.

There are many features of motor car quality in which it is possible to make exact comparison. Acceleration, deceleration, slow speed operation in high gear, in traffic and on hills, high speed operation economy and weight; all these are things which it is possible for the motorist to accurately compare upon a demonstration. The Marmon score card makes easy to record the exact performance of two or more cars in these respects.

As for such qualities as ease of riding, the score card likewise provides for these. A theoretical car in which you felt absolutely no jar or jolt for any road might be considered as 100 per cent. Then by testing different cars at the same speeds over the same roads, it is an easy matter to give two cars a percentage rating in this regard.

Convenience of all controls, smoothness of motor operation, ease of steering, rigidity and roadability, are some of the other headings under the score card.

Invitations have been sent to motor enthusiasts and hundred have already signified their intention of riding in the car on making the comparisons.

The test will be closely watched by expert officials and the route selected will be an average one so that any downhill work will be compensated by an equal amount of up-hill pulling.

POPULAR TRUCK IS ALSO MADE IN CLEVELAND

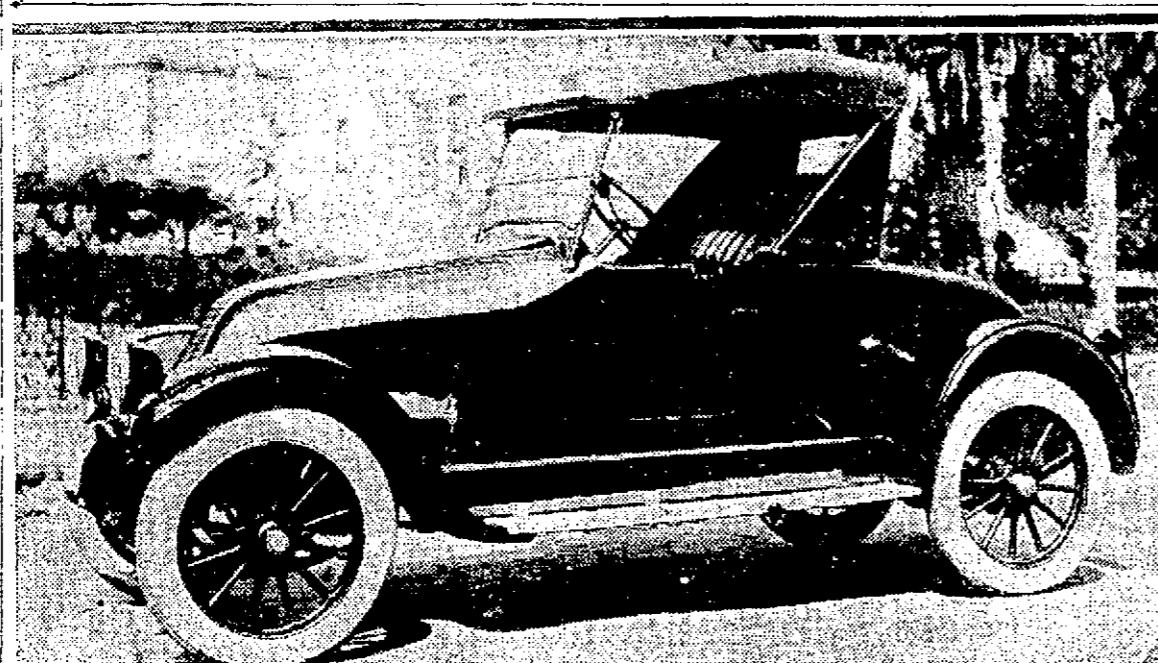

The Fageol Compound Truck, which for the past two years has been built in Oakland, is now being made also in Cleveland, Ohio.

The 7-speed compound transmission is said to be largely responsible for Fageol's success on the Pacific Coast, as it gives the truck a wide range of power and speed. While having exactly the same number of gears, shafts, etc. as the ordinary 4-speed gear box, the Fageol truck provides 5 speeds forward and 2 reverse.

The Fageol Motor Company of Ohio as the new Cleveland company is known, is headed by F. R. Fageol, one of the founders of the California company.

ANCIENT TRUCK FOUND ON ISLE

Company, Ltd., distributors in the Hawaiian Islands for Mack trucks, read about Number 301 and immediately recalled that an aged truck of the same make is at work on Maui Island, T. H.

Jewell made inquiry and ascertained this truck is Number 288, therefore antedating Number 301 by thirteen trucks, and has been performing its daily duty in the Hawaiian Islands since 1909, when it was first shipped there. The truck is the property of the Kahului Railroad Co. Two of these 3 1/2-ton models were purchased by the railroad in April, 1909, and another similar model in April, 1910.

In acquainting Mr. Jewell with the history of these old Mack's, W. Walsh, superintendent of the Kahului Railroad company, said, "There is no special route laid down over

HE SEES BIG FUTURE IN TRUCK LINE

General Sales Manager P. H. Mallory, after a swing around the state, has returned to the home office of the Moreland Motor Truck company. In the course of his trip he visited all of the nine direct factory branches of the company, many of the dealers and looked into the conditions about the various districts very thoroughly.

He is inclined to feel very optimistic regarding the present situation. "From what I have seen," says Mallory, "there is no cause for any particular uneasiness. General business seems to be very good, at least as good as would naturally be expected at this time. I believe that what is holding back the buying down buying is only temporary, that it will soon pass and the buying that will follow will more than make up. This I believe to be especially true in the truck industry and the truck industry on the coast especially."

"Everywhere one goes one is impressed with the growth of the coast along industrial lines. This must inevitably mean growth in other lines. In consequence there must be a natural demand created for trucks and more trucks all the time. Recent figures show something like 4,000 motor trucks in the state of California, but a trip around the state makes it very plainly evident that this is by no means enough."

DRIVERS TOLD TO SLOW DOWN ON CROSS STREETS

Don't pick on one of San Francisco's cross streets when you want to see how fast your car will go. If you must try out your car, go out in the suburbs or on some country road where there is little traffic, but don't pick on any of the streets that cut across the main arteries of travel of the city.

"It really is surprising to notice how many drivers, especially light trucks or delivery men, go tearing down the cross streets with little regard for traffic going down such streets as Geary, Sutter and California, for example," comments Ray Holloway of the firm of King-Holloway company, McFarlan distributors.

Gentlemen:

In compliance with your request for a report on the service of the Studebaker which I purchased from you some time ago, I submit the following:

After having driven this machine on trips something over 21,000 miles, covering a large portion of the state, I recently made a trip from Oakland to San Diego, going by way of the Coast route and returning over the Valley route, covering the aggregate nearly 1400 miles. This trip was made without any over-hauling or special preparation of any kind with the machine, only adding oil and gasoline, together with not to exceed two quarts of water. This particular trip was made in three days, driving about fifteen different automobiles, and I believe the Studebaker Big Six is the best machine in its class, and will give more service per dollar invested than anything in the market.

Not only can it be operated with less trouble and expense than any of the other I have owned, but it is more easily driven, as proven by the fact that I was able to cover nearly 1400 miles, as stated above, driving it all this distance myself without unusual fatigue.

Wishing you every success, I am

Yours very truly,

MOTOR SALE RECORD FOR '20 AMAZES

With 41,332 new motor cars registered the first nine months of this year, the California has broken the southern part of the state 6232 for the same period and broken all its previous purchasing records. The last month in registrations gave northern California 5519 new cars and 516 new trucks.

The month's registration of 5519 exceeds the largest previous figures of the year by 420, giving striking proof of the great increase of motor transportation in California. The only other month of 1920 showing a registration total of more than 5000 was August, when 5099 new cars were placed in service in northern California.

HIGH TOTALS MADE

Again certain makes show preponderance in the registration totals. Ford leads with 1588, with Chevrolet second, 623. Again the Buick almost doubles the next car in its price class with 516 being third in the total list. The Dodge is fourth with 155, and then the totals fall away sharply to 152.

INCREASE RECORD

Since the first of the year 27,735 new Buicks have been registered in northern California, the number of the Motor Vehicle Department show. This total will be超越ed, increased with the filing of the 1920 model orders with the increasing of shipments at the Buick factory to the Howard Automobile company. Charles S. Howard, head of the immense organization, is organizing, bearing his name is now in the factory and trainload shipments soon are expected. It was Howard who introduced entire trainload shipments of automobiles to the motor world, and with freight conditions becoming better the old-time order of these record movements to the Pacific coast will soon be restored. Every indication is for increased use of the automobile for vacationing," said F. P. Thompson, general manager of the Howard Automobile company. Agents reports from over the territory show an increasing demand for Buicks especially since the 1921 model has its debut. We expect to break all our former merchandising records in the sale of Buicks this season."

TRAVEL IN WINTER SHOWS BIG GAIN

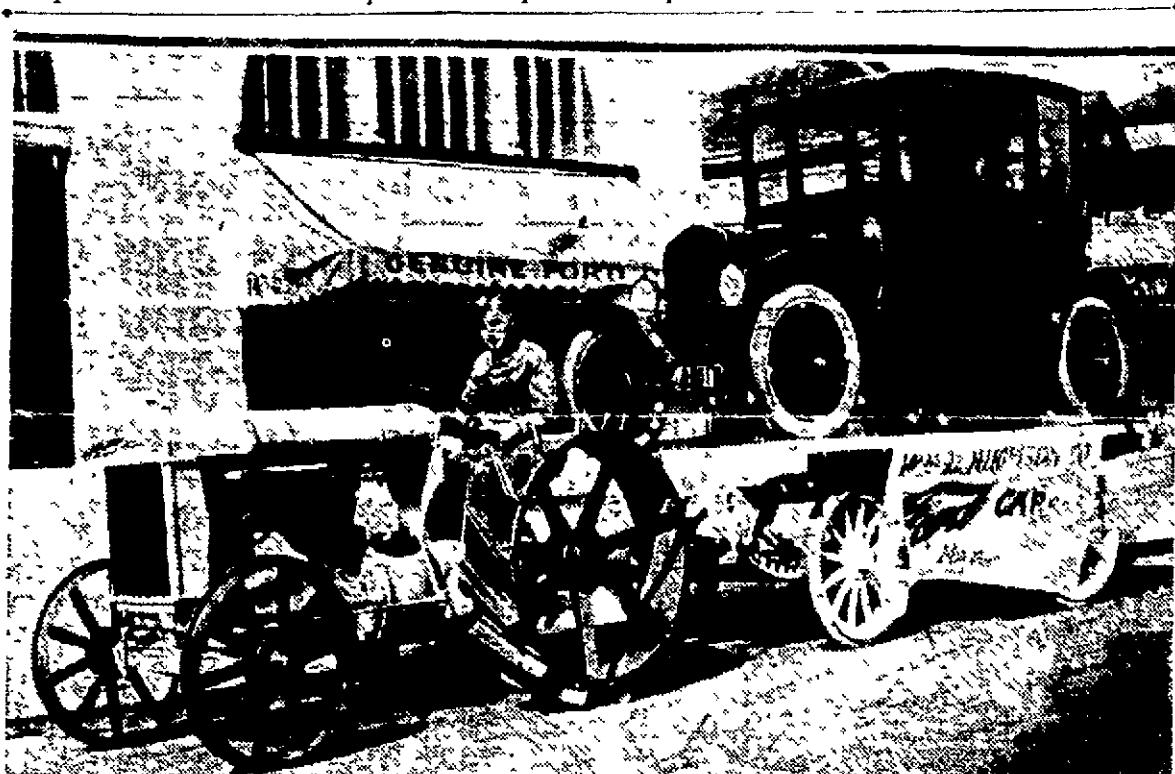

The increased use of motor cars by the winter vacationists is shown by the 15,000 Florida road maps information reaching the travel and transport bureaus of the R. E. Goodrich Rubber company. During the past two months 15,000 Florida road maps have been distributed. The demand for California maps from persons living east of the Rockies has almost as great.

The report shows that about 90 per cent of the vacationers from the state east of the Mississippi will go to Florida for the cold months. Vacationists from the Mississippi valley are dividing in almost equal numbers to go to Florida, resort on the Gulf, and to California. Practically all resorters from the Mississippi valley west are going to California.

GERMANS WILL COMPETE U. S.

That the German automobile industry is in process of reorganization for the purpose of competing successfully in the field of motor vehicles is shown by the news of a speed of all the leading German automobile manufacturers.

The German automobile industry is or, in many respects, is becoming more and more successful. While the German industry does not intend much hope of fighting the American automobile manufacturers, it is probable that our automobile manufacturers would be able to dispose of ours in a large section in view of the fact that the German market can absorb at the most 5,000 cars per year.

MOORE PLAN OF WORKMAN MANAGEMENT

The second semi-annual election of the Works Council of the Moore Ship Yards was held yesterday in accordance with the constitution of that organization, and the result of the ballot will be published as soon as the count is completed. This is an important event in the Moore ship yards because the Works Council is the yard or shop organization which finally hears and disposes of all complaints upon the part of the men both as to working conditions and individual wage disputes. It is also an upper house of the industrial organization of the Moore yards comparable to the senate legislative bodies, and the election to this body is extremely important for it has power not only to hear and dispose of disputes but it can initiate matters of policy which it has done in several instances.

This industrial organization of the Moore yards has been developed within that organization and of late has been the subject of much inquiry and investigation by those interested in industrial organization. One of the results of this interest in the Moore organization has been the invitations extended to Herbert J. Anderson, Manager of Industrial Relations of the Moore Shipbuilding Company, to address many public and semi-public organizations upon the Moore plan and its results. This address has been delivered in many parts of Oakland and the East Bay district and San Francisco before the Lyons' Ad Club and similar organizations, and details the Moore plan and some of its results. In view of the election of yesterday a synopsis of this plan, as taken from the address of Mr. Anderson, will be of interest, and here given:

"I have been asked to tell you of the plan submitted to the men and the management of the Moore Shipbuilding company to handle questions of mutual interest. When the men returned to work under the open shop or American plan we wanted them to feel that it was not the desire of the management to take away from them any of the privileges which they had previously enjoyed, and one of these privileges was the right to deal with the management through chosen representatives. This is a subject over which there is wide difference of opinion in your country. At the last session of the industrial conference deadlocked on this very point. Mr. Gompers insisting that the representatives be chosen by the unions and the employers stating that they were willing to confer with their own men.

"We at first investigated various plans which had been adopted by one corporation or another, but could not find one that was adapted to our plan of employing six thousand men in five classes, classifications or departments. We then decided to go at the proposition from a common sense standpoint, and called in five workmen representing five different occupations or trades in the yard. These men were elected at meeting at which every classification in the yard was represented. In conference with these representatives of the workmen themselves we drafted the constitution and by-laws of the Works Council of the Moore Shipbuilding Company and this constitution was afterwards adopted by a unanimous vote of all department representatives.

The very basis of this plan is to have the men themselves adjust their grievances among themselves and through representatives elected by themselves at a secret and uncontested ballot. The plan has more than fulfilled expectations for 99 per cent of the grievances are adjusted among the men themselves before reaching the Man of Industrial Relations and 99 per cent of the 2 per cent balance are adjusted before the Works Council's reached.

"The plan works out like this. The men in the yard are divided into 44 classifications, from each of which a worker representative is elected. Any complaint, grievance or condition which any employee considers requiring attention is to be brought up by him with his foreman or through the workers' representative of his department.

FOURTEEN HOMES ON THE MARKET

The model home is a subject close to the heart of every home-making wife and mother. Having constructed fourteen model homes in Lakeshore Highlands, designed by the leading architects of the Pacific coast to illustrate various types of architecture suitable to the character of the residential park, the W. H. Lehner company will open them this week for a free public exhibition.

These homes are to be sold under a very unusual arrangement which places them within reach of the house and apartment renter. They have been placed on the market to the exigencies of the occasion. The family now paying rent for similar accommodations can own a home with no additional outlay, less than the payment of an additional percentage rent which has been applied in the past only to the cheaper class of bungalows and cottages.

Over 20,000 people visited the Modern Home Electrical, which is one of this group of homes. Having completed Lakeshore Highlands and the fourteen model homes the owners propose to place them on general exhibition for two weeks and to other sections that are especially interested in the creation of a residential park, the W. H. Lehner company will open them this week for a free public exhibition.

The San Leandro Canning Company, Inc., was formed during the past week, incorporated in Sacramento and the place of financial and business corporation, Commissioneer of Agriculture. During 1917-18 it was in charge of the Imperial Valley experiment station and at one time was connected with the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The San Leandro Canning Company was incorporated with $250,000 capital, and an excellent plant in the town of that name. The success of the first year of operation was so great that it was decided to reincorporate with an increased capital of $1,000,000, and to increase the capacity of the plant, and that has been done.

The directors of the new company are L. J. Toffelner, J. C. Toffelner, L. Penillo, Fred Stencl, Allen E. Petton and J. Faustina, all of San Leandro.

This chain of exchanges, originating from simple transfer of homes, amounts to six transactions involving more than $125,000. They were all handled by R. E. Cudwader of the Home Sale That Meant Six Deals.

A property exchange of more than ordinary interest was recorded this week, the exchange being between the exchange of the Los Angeles home of Eulalia Wing for a large Berkeley home. The Berkeley property was then exchanged by Miss Wing to Dr. Edward Mead of the University of California, who decided the old Colonel Pease's ranch in the town of Los Gatos, San Jose, for sale. The exchange was completed by the sale in Dr. Edward Mead of a new home in the Claremont section.

The Berkeley property was then exchanged by Miss Wing to Dr. Edward Mead of the University of California, who decided the old Colonel Pease's ranch in the town of Los Gatos, San Jose, for sale. The exchange was completed by the sale in Dr. Edward Mead of a new home in the Claremont section.

GOOD COOKING AND HOME LIFE TO CURE DIVORCE

Written for the Universal Service

By MARGERY REX

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Waffles for wedded bliss, pies for marital peace, bread for bonds unbent, these and other delicious delights are the suggestions offered for the furtherance of harmonious married life and the prevention of divorce by Mrs. Henry M. Dunlap, wife of State Senator Dunlap, of Illinois.

"A divorce cure to which experts are now devoting their attention can be obtained best through the healing of the home and the introduction of home-loving, efficient women," says Mrs. Dunlap.

In her speech before the Chamber of Commerce Board of Supervisors the Senator's wife declared many homes now wrecked could have been held together by loving service on the part of the woman concerned.

"Neuter girls nor men should be permitted to marry," said Mrs. Dunlap, "until the joined can control and the latter has full knowledge of the responsibilities of matrimony. These things make good homes, and good homes in turn, eliminate a good percentage of divorces."

PRACTICAL CLASSES HERE

An answer to this plan to the women of America comes from New York City and from an organization famous for its relief work, both in war and peace.

Chairwoman of the American Red Cross recently announced cooking classes for women in reply to a request for information as to where an engaged girl could learn to cook. But these classes have already been in existence for several years.

Classes of ten each will open soon at the new headquarters of the chapter at No. 241 Fifth avenue, a large, modern, gray brick building, of which Miss Frederika Purley is to be director.

"I agree with Mrs. Dunlap to a certain extent," said Miss Purley, "yet I think she very radical in her statements. In big cities, such as New York, for instance, there is a great decline in the art of cooking. The kitchen is not wanted. Women, the number of maid-servants with kitchenettes or maid-servants cooking fixtures. The old-fashioned apartment with a real kitchen is not popular."

In the Red Cross cooking lessons, the work is suggestive to some extent, not bound to a certain plan. The theory of cooking is taught and the number of maid-servants with kitchenettes or maid-servants cooking fixtures. The old-fashioned apartment with a real kitchen is not popular.

"Balanced diets and menu-making are included in our courses, as well as the really practical application of every theory. If a girl learns to make bread she is taught to understand the work so that she can make my kind of bread."

FOR FOREIGN-BORN WOMEN

"In the teaching of foreign-born women in our classes we must take their accustomed article of food and show the means of using them in the American way. For instance, Italian, like macaroni and spaghetti. Eating this very delightful food in their own sunny, leisurely country is a treat, but in America where life is different. Under new living conditions, new climate and sometimes a new kind of work, it does not satisfy and we show what to do in combinations, and what to substitute. Patriotism is not offendful and old customs and appetites are not disturbed."

Good cooking undoubtedly makes harmony in the home and the home atmosphere endures from the table, just as does the atmosphere of hospitality.

"As for the idea of Mrs. Dunlap that we can prevent marriage till we find a cook, I believe that nothing can stop people from marrying when they want to. It is only fair though that a young woman should be prepared for her position as home-makers. Even if she does not want to do the actual cooking herself, she may be at the mercy of incompetent cooks and maid-servants who could better manage if she had known something about their work."

The new home of the Red Cross, classes in Fifth avenue is the gift of George E. Baker, Jr., and the residence has ample facilities for the successful study of not only the culinary art, but also for the home nursing, first aid and dietician's department soon to be established there.

Hearst Family Leaves Hacienda

PLEASANTON, Oct. 24.—William R. Hearst and family, who have been in California for some time, are returning to their new home at San Simeon, San Luis Obispo county, this week, returned to New York following a vacation here.

TAXES CUTTED

County Tax Collector M. Kelly and a corps of deputies spent a very busy day here Thursday collecting taxes and meeting the property owners of the Valley. Kelly made his headquarters at the Bank of Pleasanton and collected several thousand dollars.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Mary Amador has returned from a month's stay in the Bay cities. While away she underwent an operation at the Roosevelt hospital in Berkeley and is now convalescing.

J. P. Rosa, J. Soito, M. L. Suva, S. C. Dayley and J. V. Pereira have returned from a few days in Sacramento, where they were in attendance at the U. P. E. C. convention.

Win Case, Gertrude Zwister, Elsie Trimbush and Mattie Frost, together with Principal J. C. Peacock, have been in Oakland attending the Teachers' Institute. The other members of the faculty who live out of town joined the local residents Monday morning.

Jimmie is ten years old.

Hot Water Scarce in Berlin Hotels

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Members of the Inter-Ally Missions in Berlin are to be made to feel a little of the pinch of winter under the conditions in which their movements forced upon the Germans a Spa.

Hotels in which members of the missions live may furnish hot water but once a day, and not as last winter, twenty-four hours a day. That is the order of the government in retaliation for the Allies' charges in Spa that there has been extravagant consumption of coal in Berlin. In Berlin, as in all other German towns, there is strict coal rationing, so that no one is allowed to visit her husband in the royal palace.

Says Her Eyes Lured Him Over Balustrade

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24.—William Frum, 30 years old, 812 Main street, last night had tried some home brew. Then the bright lights of the Gillies theater, Fifth and Waller streets,吸引ed him and he purchased admission to the gallery.

On the stage a girl had just completed a "shimmy." The applause that followed brought her back to the footlights. Her eyes sparkled in the spotlight and met those of Frum as he was getting ready to settle in a seat. Those eyes called him and he went down the ramp of the gallery. Again the eyes were flashed in his direction and he went over the balustrade.

Beauty is perhaps woman's strongest weapon. In the long run it

Livermore Valley Early Settler Dies in Hundredth Year

By Universal Service

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The thing that King Canute could not do is about to be done by Charles Guenier, a French engineer. The tides of the English channel are about to be harnessed.

Guenier dreamed his dream long years ago. He journeyed to the English channel to see what could be done to harness the tides. Finally, however, he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies from his department, the Port of Verlaine, and once in the national parliament lost no time in setting his scheme afoot.

The plan is so simple that a child might have conceived it. All that is necessary to create electricity is a large amount of water flowing steadily and continuously in one direction.

To do this the Bay of Rotheim, a small inlet on the Channel, is to be dammed. A concrete channel in the shape of a U with the bottom pointing inland, is to be built. At each end of the arms locks are to be built and at the base a huge power plant riveting that of Niagara Falls.

When the tide is coming in the locks will be open, and the water allowed to flow in the U until it reaches the full height of the tide. Then the other lock will be opened, thus affording an egress, keeping the water flowing continually. After the first opening of the locks the machinery for controlling the tide will be operated by the power plant itself, so that the whole operation will develop into a sort of perpetual motion.

DANGER OF CONTAGION

While France may seem to profit by the splitting up of Germany, her antagonists are not so fortunate.

For the danger of red contagion will far exceed her temporary gains.

North Germany, deprived of her mineral resources, cut off from Berlin and the Rhine, must go communist because the present regime cannot stand the strain much longer.

The industries of North Germany, our largest banks, function only on the basis of perfect working order of the whole structure collapses.

Vergennes. The Germans surely had no say in it; it was imposed on us against our will. If it cannot be carried out the fault lies with the allies.

At any rate, if France persists in asking for ten millions where there is only one and by threatening violence unless she gets what she wants, she is digging her own grave.

She is deliberately encouraging acts of violence which prolong the war feeling and create unnecessary friction.

ENGLAND GOT SPOLIUS

It is true that England got what she wanted and that France got what she wanted, but she did not get what she wanted.

Germany is still at war.

The plans, not settled, but in process, include:

Purchase of the Western Pacific of the 390-mile Sacramento Northern railroad. Formerly the Northern Electric, running from Sacramento to Chico.

Construction of feeder from Lodi to Lodi.

Construction of line from Stockton to Byron.

Construction of a 20-mile tap line into the delta.

Laying of a Sacramento-Newcastle line.

A new fruit belt deal has been for some time but terms have not been agreed. G. F. Dietrich, president of the Northern, has been handling the Northern's interest in the eastern S. S. Duran, president of the Mercantile Trust company, a Northern director, also is taking part in the harbor.

The officials of the Western will meet shareholders and officers of the D. & R. G. in Omaha Nov. 15, to complete plans for transferring the Colorado-Utah railway to the Denver & Rio Grande as a single unit, one of the longest and strongest in the west.

Reports of the property of the Great Salt railroad at the bay-side terminal have been acquired by the Western Pacific for development are not confirmed.

Operation of the coursing track at Park avenue and Horton streets, which was closed yesterday on orders of District Attorney Ezra Decoto, will be resumed shortly with special policemen in attendance to assure a "clean game," George A. Sawyer, 18, a park security man for the company, announced today. The district attorney will be asked to consent to such an arrangement.

"Racing of dogs at the Emeryville track has been discontinued for the present on orders of the district attorney," Sawyer said, "when an unlawful element was found to have violated the rules of the amusement company and placed bets on the dogs in the paddock of the track itself."

JUDGE TO INVESTIGATE. The Schwartz brothers were arrested yesterday after the alleged scheme had been disclosed. A boy entered his place of business, E. J. Schwartz said, and asked for a pack of cigarettes. He said he had no doubt but that they were for some older person and let the boy have them. No sooner had the sale been made, according to Schwartz, than Sergeant Cox made the arrest.

"Somebody evidently put up a 'joint on you,'" said Judge Samuels. "I intend to find out who is to blame in this case."

Schwartz said that during the week of the policeman's bail he was approached by two policemen and a citizen who requested him to purchase tickets to the affair. He refused.

The case against Leo Schwartz was stricken from the calendar yesterday. Leo, a minor himself, E. J. Schwartz, his brother, was fined $25 for failure to post a sign saying "No tobacco sold to minors."

POLICEMAN DENIES CHARGE. In reply to Schwartz' charges that his arrest by Cox was a frame-up, Sergeant Cox said:

"Several reports were made to this office that tobacco was being sold along Telegraph to minors. I ordered them to make an investigation and to arrest the offenders. I saw the boy enter the Schwartz pool room, so I followed and stood near the door. Schwartz could not see me, but I could hear the conversation that took place. I heard him make the sale and receive his change. The boy had the cigarettes in his hand when he came from the pool room.

"It is absurd that I framed on him.

Navy Officer Weds Society Girl Here

Miss Alma Dyer, grand daughter of Colonel W. D. Cutler, former police commissioner of San Francisco, and Lieutenant Walter Ansel, U. S. naval officer, were married yesterday in Oakland. Yesterday at the home of Rev. Clarence Head of the Unitarian church, 518 Glenview avenue.

Charges were made yesterday in Police Judge George Samuels' court by E. J. Schwartz, the San Leandro operators of a pool room and tobacco store at Fifty-fifth street and Telegraph avenue, that Sergeant Leslie Cox of the Oakland police department had induced a twelve-year-old boy to purchase some cigarettes for him at the Schwartz pool room so that he, Cox, could place the Schwartz brothers under arrest for selling tobacco to minors. E. J. Schwartz told Judge Samuels that this action on the part of Sergeant Cox was a plan on the part of the police to "get even with him for refusing to buy tickets to the police-men's ball."

ROBBERS STILL ELUDE SLEUTHS. Every reliable clew to the identity of the Alvarado bank robbers who shot down President August, May and escaped with more than $22,000 in loot has been exhausted, District Attorney Ezra Decoto declared yesterday.

That scores of bogus "tips" have been flooding the district attorney's office come from friends of the police who desire to know the authorities off the record, from publicity seekers and from cranks, who the statement made following a conference between Decoto, Deputy Sheriff George Helms and Detective George Helms in which all the matter received was sifted.

"While we cannot lay our hands on any single thing definite enough to dignify with the name of clews, we are being given alleged tips at the rate of ten or more a day, all of which we are investigating thoroughly," Helms declared.

MAN BE MURDERER.

That the man may be the murderer of Ulla Carlson, whose body was found in an exclusive residential district of Piedmont several months ago, is also considered possible by the police. They have a theory that he may be regularly employed in the daytime and thus able to avoid suspicion while seeking victims at night.

According to Mrs. Stanberry, she was standing on the rear porch of her home, sitting on a tall stool, when her little daughter held open the kitchen door, when a heavily-built man sprang upon her out of the darkness. He encircled her with his arms before she could resist. Mrs. Stanberry told the police, She says the man's eyes as he sprang toward her were the eyes of a wild beast or madman.

LOCKED ALL DOORS.

A struggle ensued, Mrs. Stanberry declared. In which she was thrown to the floor of the porch. She then grabbed her assailant and struck him in the face. In a super-human effort, she said, she managed to free herself, and at the same time pushed him over the edge of the porch. He fell heavily to the ground and ran. The woman picked up her little girl, fled into the house, bolting all the doors, and called the police.

Four attacks of a similar type have been committed recently in the same section of East Oakland. The man in each case is described as follows:

ROBBER SLAYERS ESCAPE POLICE

NEVADA, Oct. 23.—Authorities tonight admitted they were without clews as to the identity of the person or persons responsible for the death of Andrew Jorgenson, a farmer, whose body was found late yesterday on his farm, near here. His head crushed and his arms tied behind his back.

Robbery was the motive for the crime, or that the authorities are certain. Two small safes in the attic of the Jorgenson home were rifled.

Titian-haired Co-eds Lend Their Personality in Drive To Help Amendment

BERKELEY, Oct. 23.—More than one hundred thousand letters urging relatives and friends to meet the present financial crisis at the university by voting "yes" on Amendment 12 have been mailed from the campus since the beginning of the campaign.

Berkeley postoffice authorities are staggering under the heavy load of a daily mail that breaks all records in the history of the post office.

Co-ed leaders are assisting the men in stamping and sealing the thousands of letters students are writing daily. Especially active are members of the university "red head" stunt committee at work at the mailing desk at campaign quarters. Included in the group are Charlotte Moore, Zoe King, Margaret Pope and Dorothy Franklin.

Nurse Nellie Russell
On Way to Recovery

Miss Nellie Russell, a nurse whose life for a time was despaired of from arsenic poisoning at St. Anthony's Hospital, has reported as much improved last night.

On Friday morning her condition seemed critical, but later in the day there were symptoms the worst was over.

That she is now probably on the road to recovery is indicated in the statement given out last night at the hospital.

The second is to give you eye comfort and range of vision.

The third is to add to your looks and personality.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys have to filter out; they weaken from over work, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues close and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps in your back, burns or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer from sick headache or dizzy nerves, spots, acid stomach, or you have aching joints, you are suffering from kidney trouble. Eat a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of 400 oysters and 1000 oysters juice, with Lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys to act; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful after-dinner lithio-water beverage; and belongs in every home. Do not be afraid to take it in mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time—Advertisement.

Marshal Petain's Marriage Reveals Lifelong Romance

By Universal Service.
PARIS, Oct. 23.—The marriage of Marshal Petain to Madame Hardon, which took place so quietly that the newspapers did not know of it until it had been performed, was the culmination of a romance of youth and love.

When still a young, impetuous officer, the "Savior of Verdun" fell in love with the daughter of Gabriel Ferrier, the famous painter.

But the latter had great plans for his daughter, and it was found necessary to have her take the risk of leaving her life in a small garrison city. So when the youthful Petain was turned down, and the daughter married off to a rich business man.

But Petain never married. And the years passed. Twenty years later, when the sweetheart of former days had become a widow and Petain a marshal of France, they met again, found their love as great as ever, and married.

One of the important sessions out of which is expected to come action of benefit to the industry is that on November 10, when "Standardization, Transportation, Freight Rates and Protective Tariffs" will be discussed. Experts from the University of California, the state department and from various packing corporations and distributing agencies will speak.

On Thursday crop statistics will be considered, the reports of committees will be heard, and the annual banquet will be held.

Fairy Ring With King of Wizards Dispenses Joy to Plots of Eager Youngsters three pins for admittance? Well, THAT'S the kind of a time they had yesterday morning at the T. & D.

in Berkeley.

That's the reason those eyes twinkled,

MACHINISTS GIVE SIDE OF DISPUTE

Stating that the American Can Company has always done its own machine work, making it unnecessary for the San Francisco employers to set up new claims for infringement on their rights in this particular case, Oakland Lodge, No. 284, International Association of Machinists, associated with the American Federation of Labor, yesterday afternoon issued a statement on the lockout situation, brought about by the threat of the California Metal Trades Association to lock out all union machinists who refused to do any and all work assigned to them.

The letter declares that the threatened lockout is an attempt on the part of the California Metal Trades Association to break the boycott of the union machinists on the American Can Company.

The statement is as follows:

"The machinists have been informed by the newspapers this morning that the California Metal Trades Association is instructing their employers to make no more use of that association to demand that members of the machinists' organization sign form of individual contract or written pledge obligating machinists to work on any job that may be brought into the shops regardless of where the work comes from, or where it goes, or under what conditions such work originates."

"The California Metal Trades Association claims that this foolish and abstract proposition of pecuniae necessary to protect them in cases of struck work, as in the present case of the American Can Company's work.

"The true facts of the case are as follows: The American Can Company is a national corporation with a national office. The president and general executive board of the machinists' association are handling negotiations with general headquarters of the American Can Company in New York. The present strike against the American Can Company is national in origin and scope and was ordered by the grand lodge of the machinists and not by any local union."

"The American Can Company has machinery and equipment and has always done its own work and therefore there is no justification for San Francisco employers to set up any claims for infringement on their rights in this particular case, any more than there would be if a railroad strike were in progress and the railroad mechanics were asking outsiders to remain neutral."

"The business of local metal trades employers is to do their own or demand upon American Can work, and if trouble is started with the machinists at this time, it will not be on account of any serious losses in this connection, but will be the result of a deliberate plan of some labor haters and professional anti-labor campaigners within and without the metal employers' ranks to stir up strife and discord."

"The machinists desire to work and live peaceably and they will not be driven into an hasty strike unless over us."

"Machinists will refuse to sign any form of any individual contract or pledge, for the reason that all such schemes have for their purpose the nullification of the established and recognized principles of collective bargaining."

"The action of any employer in discriminating against members of the International Association of Machinists for refusal to work on American Can work or for refusal to sign any form of individual contract or pledge affecting trade principles will be construed as a deliberate lockout and will be resisted as such." (Signed)

ANOTHER CENTENARY.

It was only a hundred years ago that a Greek peasant shovelled his pick in the ground of the island of Melos and uncovered the fragments of a woman. This man, whose name was Yorgos, looked at the carved rock he had uncovered and was about to use it in the construction of his barn when a young student interrupted him with an effective argument. The statue was saved while the student started off to find a Turkish official to whom he might make report of the discovery.

These are the main events attending the finding of the Venus of Milo, the mystery statue of the world that "sacred marble, clothed in spirit."

It was while Voutier, the student, was gone and during the inevitable Turkish delay that an Armenian priest came along and bargained with Yorgos for the piece of rock. It did not have any arms, thought Yorgos, and could be of little value. So he sold it for the price of a pair of shoes and went on building his barn. When Voutier returned the priest had spirited Venus away by water. The statue came into the hands of Marquis de Riviere, the French ambassador at Constantinople, and was sent to France, where it has since reigned at the Louvre.

There is no one who knows who carved Venus or when. It was often said that she was the work of the first century of the Christian era and there are some who believe that she went back to Phidias or Praxiteles. How she came to Melos and why it was that the Romans did not take her to their city are questions which may never be answered, just as are those of why it was that the ancient world did not ring with her praises and that over-familiar one, what has become of the arms?

The Venus di Milo is celebrating her centenary, but no amount of felicitation or adulation has softened her to the point of answering these questions.

THE NEWEST STAR.

An explosion or conflagration which occurred hundreds of years ago has made itself known with the discovery of a new star in the constellation of Cygnus, the Swan. For a while, several weeks ago, it was in the third magnitude and visible to the naked eye but now a powerful telescope is needed to find its place in the sky.

Since B. C. 123 only thirty such new stars have been discovered and this, in its sudden flare and diminution, has behaved in the manner of the others. Like the rest it appeared in the Milky Way. To the astronomer this occurrence in that zone described by Milton as one of "powdered stars" is of greatest importance. Of the number of these stars, or suns, Herschel gave an indication when he recorded that while holding his telescope fixed at one point in the great arch there passed over his field of vision in the space of one quarter of an hour no less than 116,000 stars. In the constellation of Cygnus, he says, the stars. In the constellation of Cygnus, he says, the stars of the Milky Way are clustered in two divisions, each containing more than 100,000 stars.

Until the mystery of these new stars and the cause of their appearance and disappearance are explained there is very little known of what is going on in the Milky Way. And that which was seen the other day, astronomers say, is an evidence of something which happened hundreds of years ago.

RIGHTS OF CHILDREN

The relation of the father to the child, twenty-one years ago, parroted the nature of a property right. The courts could enforce this right, but were often powerless to enforce the duty of the father to his child.

Since that time every State in the Union has passed juvenile court laws except Connecticut, Maine, and Wyoming, and these three have passed laws dealing with some of the problems usually included in the juvenile court law itself. The States have gone far in their attitude toward the delinquent and neglected child.

Under the old conditions the delinquent child was dealt with in the same manner, with certain restrictions of age, as the adult offender. Before the bar of justice he was a man even though he had left his toys to be brought into court. He was tried with formality and with notoriety, a jury, confronted witnesses and, if found guilty, suffered the penalty. There was no plan for constructive help and but little recognition of the need of one.

The present laws recognize the rights of a child to a reasonable minimum of care, of decency, and well-being. They would give consideration to the natural impulses of youth and to adverse conditions under which the child may have been brought up. This change in attitude has been responsible for various methods of legislative action, but the result has been to bring about something like a square deal for the child.

Viewed in contrast to the conditions of but a score of years ago, there is occasion to marvel at the awakening of general recognition of the rights of children.

AFTER THE "MISSING LINK."

Backed by a quarter of a million dollars and a list of sponsors good for more, a new expedition is to set out early next year after the elusive "missing link." Under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, the American Asiatic Association, and Asia Magazine the party is to go into the interior of Asia to brave the prejudices of natives, dangers of thirst, and hazards of travel on a search for the fossilized bones of the apeman. It is probable that they will leave San Francisco Bay in February.

In 1891 Eugene Dubois, Dutch army surgeon, discovered in Java part of a skull which has since perplexed the world of science. It appeared to be that of a creature resembling a man and one that must have lived as much as five thousand years ago. Hitherto all fossil human fragments had been discovered in Europe or England, but now attention is turned to Asia, where leading scientists believe the earliest man made his home.

One of the reasons that Asia was not discovered by fossil hunters sooner is that the Chinese regard all of the material of this sort with superstition. To them they are "dragon-bones" and have wonderful medicinal properties. The fossil found there is quickly concealed.

The expedition will study the early life in China with a view of adding to the meager knowledge now possessed. The tribes that inhabited the country before the Chinese were pushed westward as the Indians were in this country and the remnants of nearly thirty such tribes are now disappearing. Of their origin, life, and customs almost nothing is known. The Lolas in Yunnan are tall and slender, with long faces and patrician noses and show every indication of Caucasian blood.

Mountain chains, deserts, and treeless plains have discouraged exploration into Central Asia as well as the suspicious and hostile attitude of the natives. In Tibet all of the gold belongs to the Lama church and the natives cannot conceive of any foreigner digging into the ground unless he is seeking for wealth.

The expedition will go into a country where wild horses still run the plains and where big-horn sheep and ibex have never heard the sound of a rifle. Yak, snow leopards, giant pandas, and golden monkeys will be in their path and the takin, an ox-like animal between the antelope and the goat, may be encountered.

Whether or not the missing link is found, the new American expedition will have plenty of romance and adventure. It is so well equipped in men of science that it is certain to add considerably to the knowledge concerning a region that has been passed by in the waves of civilization and exploration.

It is altogether probable that not as many will conclude that the initiative and referendum provisions are a long stride toward the political millennium as seemed to accept that fact when it was up for adoption. There is a fine practical test of how it works in the ballot that must be wrestled with at the forthcoming election.

Governor Cox during a campaign tour of the State in advising the people of Massachusetts to get rid of Senator Lodge, seemed blissfully unconscious of the seriousness in which New England States take their eminent fellow citizens. Senator Lodge is an institution. Might as well advise them to abolish Bunker Hill.

It was of course a cotton gin, whose output comes far from allaying the national thirst.

THREE HUNDRED BALL PLAYERS IN TRIBUNE LEAGUE PARADE

STANFORD TRIUMPHS OVER MISSIONITES IN ANNUAL FOOTBALL GAME PLAYED AT SANTA CLARA

"Play Ball" Sounds for Tribune Leaguers Today; Good Games Scheduled

GAMES WILL TAKE PLACE IN VARIOUS PARTS OF ALAMEDA COUNTY IN MORNING, AFTERNOON

By EDDIE MURPHY

More than three hundred ball players ranging from twelve years old to fellows who have put in their best days on the professional diamonds are this morning awaiting the call of "play ball" for the 1920-21 season of The OAKLAND TRIBUNE Midwinter League. The monster parade held yesterday afternoon has assured the athletes that they are due to go through the most successful season of high baseball in California. Twelve ball games will be dished out by those athletes today and for at least fifteen Sundays of the winter season. The TRIBUNE League is divided into three divisions, the Class-A, B and C, the latter being for the youngest future Ty Cobbs, "Babe" Ruth and "Ping" Bodies. The Class-B division is also for the amateur ball players, while the Class-A comprises players of both amateur and semi-professional rating.

The first cry of "play ball" today will be answered by the little Class C follows this morning at 10:30 o'clock and from the interest shown in the volunteers to date, the day is going to be a success. The Class-A and B clubs will not get into action until this afternoon. Fans of Oakland, Emeryville, Alameda, San Leandro, and the various Alameda districts will see games played on diamonds in their districts today.

SCOUTS PROMISE TO KEEP WATCH FOR PROSPECTS

The little Joe Bushers have more to play for this winter than they have ever had, as The TRIBUNE Leaguers offer pennants to winning teams in each division, as well as individual trophies to players on those clubs. Gold medals will be awarded by The TRIBUNE to the best pitcher and run maker in each division. Cafes, restaurants, pools, houses, are offering special trophies. Also the bay district will be the headquarters of many scouts this winter, waiting to grab up the amateur players who will be developed in the league. Last winter more than a dozen players were grabbed from the league to make up the major league rosters, and it looks like a larger number will be grabbed this winter. The Coast league managers in particular will watch the players in the TRIBUNE League. Cal Ewing has taken so much interest in the bushers this winter that he was out in the parade getting acquainted with all of them. Cal and Del Howes are going to keep a close eye on the youngsters.

LINELUPS ARE ANNOUNCED BY CLASS A MANAGERS

Managers of all Class A clubs have announced their lineups for today so fans can go out to the games knowing what to expect from the Class A athletes. The Class A games will be in Alameda and the Coast league park in Emeryville.

The California Cotton Millers and the Coast Tire and Rubber Co. will join at the Coast league park. While both these clubs have several men from the Valley leagues who will join them on the day, the prospecting of such strong lineups today than represented them last winter. G. Cantua, late of San Jose, will do the pitching for the Crystals, while Harry Hayes will do the hitting for the plate. Bill Ellis and Al Drolette will be the batters for the Millers. The lineups as announced by each manager are as follows:

WOODMEN VS. MOOSE. The Woodmen and Woodmen are primed to show the fans a cast contest at the Key System park. Both those clubs were in action through the summer. The Moose will play their home game on Oct. 26. Felt is the opener for them this afternoon, while the Woodmen will probably rely on Dick Parker.

ESPIES AT ALLENDALE. The Espies have one of the best young hurlers in the bushers in George Kister. George has a fine record for pitching with the Espies, who played in the newly formed San Francisco league, which moved to Los Angeles and to Nevada. Kister will be on the hill for the railroad boys when they meet the Alameda Merchants at Alendale this afternoon. E. Pinkerton, who has been in the bushers the past two years, will be the Espies' pitcher. Last winter he was a chucker for the Richmond Redmen, will be on the hill for the Alendale club.

PEETS AT MELROSE. Eddie Peets will do the chucking for the Crystal Laundry Juniors when they meet the Melrose Merchants at the Melrose diamond. High and E. L. Licking and upper Peets, E. Peets and a couple of semi-professional stars, Peets, have rounded up a dandy looking ball club to combat with the Tractors. Foster, C. Small, the latter from the California club, the Elmhurst diamond at Nineteenth avenue, Joaquin Valley league, are the pitchers, while Robert will act behind the plate. Henry Ladd and Andy Vargas will be the batters for the Tractors. The lineups follow:

PEETS AT HAYWARD. The Peets Bros. Soap Co. team is the only representative in The TRIBUNE League this winter, although Manager Daniels rounded up the team but a couple of days' notice he will have a contender out to meet the Hayward Natives at Hayward. The Peets have given up their enthusiasm in the league by turning out at full strength for the parade yesterday. Bill Plummer, for the Peets, and Ted (Babe) Keller, for the Natives, with the pitchers.

C. L. Best Tractors-Clethor. M. Menges, ss; Boyd, J. B.; Fonsca, C. J.; Mathews, M. J.; Vargas, C. O'Connor, cf; Connolly, rf; Caldera, p; Lucy, p; Bill Burns side will umpire.

Before the game at Lincoln park in Alameda between the Alameda, Bethlehem and the Halton-Didlers a parade of all the City will be the pitchers.

C. O. M. VS. ELMHURST. The Central Oakland Merchants will make their debut by meeting the Elmhurst Merchants at the Elmhurst diamond at Nineteenth avenue. Jimmy Wade is the Central's best bet on the hill. There is a chance of a tie, however, as the Stockton chucker, performing for the Elmhurst, will be the pitcher.

PEETS AT ELMHURST. The Peets Bros. Soap Co. team is the only representative in The TRIBUNE League this winter, although Manager Daniels rounded up the team but a couple of days' notice he will have a contender out to meet the Elmhurst Natives at Elmhurst. The Peets have given up their enthusiasm in the league by turning out at full strength for the parade yesterday. Bill Plummer, for the Peets, and Ted (Babe) Keller, for the Natives, with the pitchers.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Oct. 23.—The California Varsity continued its unbroken string of victories this afternoon on California Field when the warriors of Coach Andy Smith snowed under the University of Utah eleven by the score of 63-0. The Bruins showed class at all stages of the game and were never in danger of being scored upon. The score itself is indicative of the California strength, for the team that took the field yesterday has three of the regulars out of the lineup and the substitutes of the Blue and Gold proved capable of filling the holes. This in itself is of great importance, for with a large number of injuries the Blue and Gold is still far from being a weak aggregation on the gridiron.

Home for California yesterday was won by Peete Sprott and Deeds. Two ten-yard gains were had by Deeds, the two plunging Bruin halfbacks, who tore through the Utah line repeatedly for large gains. Deeds was the man for the touchdowns, the Bears but over. Deeds thrilled the spectators repeatedly with his long runs, running back punts, and in the first quarter he had a punt五十-five yards through a broken field to enable the Bruins to put over the first score shortly after. Deeds was the man for the touchdowns, the most was carried from the field. The extent of his injuries were not known at the time, but he was knocked completely out of the game as a result of a kick sustained in his back.

PLAYERS INJURED.—Although California displayed superiority over Utah in nearly every department, the score of the number of casualties chalked up, Deeds and Morrison were taken from the game early on account of injuries and others on the Bruin side are not in the best of shape. With the first conference game on hand a week from today, the Bears are not looked to in the best of shape for the northward invasion on October 26, when they clash with the Oregon Argos.

The extent of the scoring was reported at the second half, the California visitors Utah had been rocked as a most formidable opponent and while Oregon was unimpressive to the spectators, the Bruins were led by the charges of Coach Fuzerick were looked to give the Bears stiff competition than they did. Time after time the Mormon line was breached and repeatedly were thrown back for losses. Line bucking by Stiel and Smith, the speedy fullback field runner, and a series of short, hard runs by Utah made the only gains as a result of the exchange of punts. During the whole game Utah made first down but three times as against the Bruins for California. The Bruins and Deeds found the Mormon line full of holes and with the exception of the first quarter were not able to play through it at will on their gains.

UTAH FOLGHT HARD.—Great credit must be handed the Utah team for the grit and fight that they displayed. There was never a moment when the Bears did not have to fight for every inch of ground gained, and while the line was too bad to withstand the charges of the heavier Bears, the visitors played gamely, the line and went down fighting. In fact there was too much fight displayed by Stiel and Evans, for when substitutes were sent on to take their places they refused to leave the field. This was a game exhibition, but it was hopeless for both men were completely worn out and substitutes might have done better.

The Bears showed to good advantage in punting and as the Salt Lake team was forced to kick, Deeds only had to score a good ground gain. In the first quarter when Utah was aided by the wind the kicks were getting fifty and fifty-five yards, but the second quarter down under the kicks and the California interference was able to form to Deeds to return the kicks for fifteen and twenty-five yards gains. Both teams were battered greatly by the wind that made punts difficult to judge in the first half and punts were not able to be made.

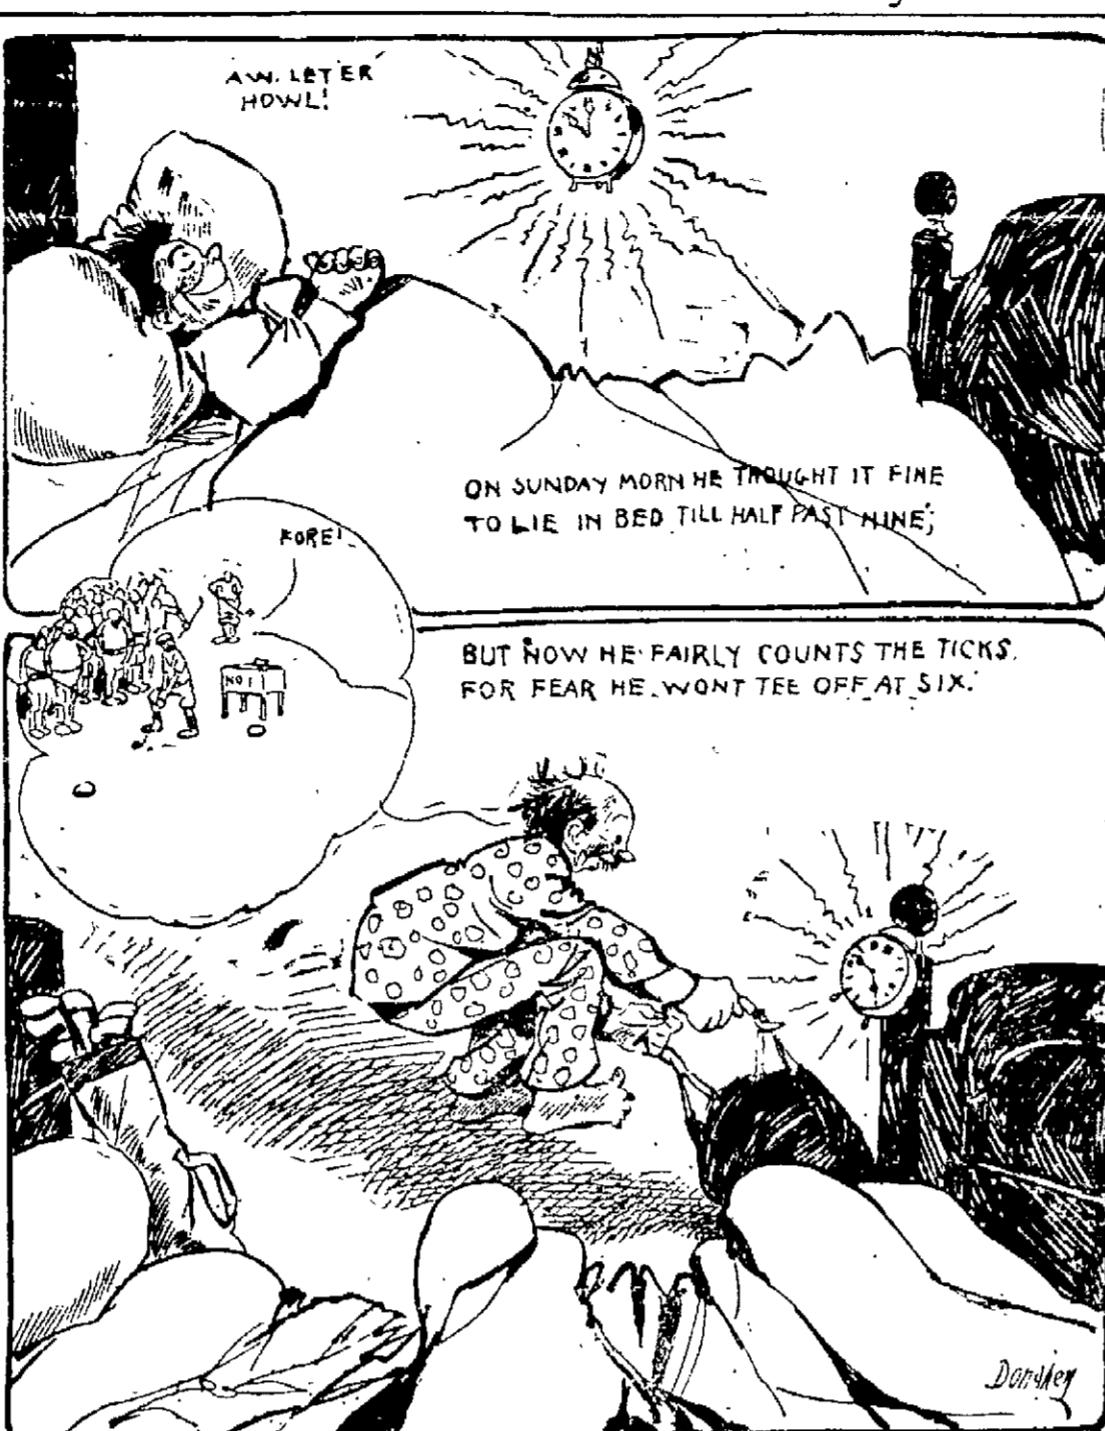

THE MORMON.—The Bears were missing the services of Captain Majors, Latham, Miller and Toomey at the start of the game but the team was not able to score a point and the defense was good. After and Geerhart got an opportunity to display his worth at guard. Hall at end in place of Niles was conspicuous for stopping the backs and was down through the whole California team for thirty yards. Hall overtaking the flying quarterback and downing him from behind with the prettiest tackle seen on California field this year.

The more we saw of Charlie Urb at quarterback the more we like him. The Bruin backfield is strong and the Mormons guessing the majority of the time and the rapidity with which he can get his play can't be beat off its end. In one instance California was unable to gain ground in the first quarter until Deeds broke loose with his long run which enabled Sprott to score on the prettiest tackle seen on California field this year.

In the second quarter the Bruins found themselves and Sprott scored again in the first two minutes of play. First he was able to get a five-yard carry to put the Bears within bucking distance and Deeds accounted for the next Bear score. The fourth Bruin touch down was a result of a field goal twenty-five yards and a pass from Sprott to Hall that carried the Bruin end over for the

Tyrus Cobb Will Perform At Local Grounds Today

Fifteen Thousand Fans Pay Homage to the Georgia Peach When He Plays in S. F.

The baseball fans of San Francisco gave Tyrus Raymond Cobb a grand welcome at Recreation park yesterday by turning out in force to witness the star of the Detroit Tiger team in an exhibition game between his All-Stars and the Alcock-Sawyer All-Stars.

Cobb's team, which had a 10-1 victory over the Alcock-Sawyer All-Stars, was not so much the victory of the Cobb Stars that sent those fifteen thousand fans home with a smile, but the result of the game was a great victory for the team of the Georgia Peach. They witnessed the Georgia Peach perform some of his famous base running tricks and after the exhibition that Cobb put on no one can give him much credit for the game given the Georgia peach. Cobb thrilled the fans by his wonderful way of base running, and also his way of handling the bat. Babe Ruth may be the home run king and a few other big things in baseball, but he was beaten on the field by Cobb.

Sequel to the game was a happy-go-lucky little four-rounder.

Bud Ridley's former manager says he has a contract that calls for Ridley to give him thirty percent of his earnings and he "ight" sell him. Little Ridley is only a career little player, but he knows that such a contract is not worth the paper it is written on and he refuses to be bluffed by the winds. He is likely to accept a day for both the California and the New England exhibition.

Incidentally, Ray Baker was the guest of his sister for a few days during the week, coming out from Washington on business.

It had been planned that Mrs. Baker would accompany him, but the little girl, who had a cold, interfered with the arrangements. The infant daughters will do, and the mother and children remained at Lenox, where they plan to pass much of the winter.

IN BERKELEY

Miss B. W. Ralley, formerly of Kansas City, who has come to make her home in Berkeley, will be the motif for a tea to be given by Mrs. Martin J. Woolsey at her Berkeley home, the date yet to be determined.

Miss Ralley was a guest about the bay two winters ago, making many friends who are now offering her a California welcome.

It was masquerade night last night at Miss Ransome's school in Hazel Lane, when the whimsical phantoms of "Halloween" time were at play.

Besides the pupils a number of the graduates who dwell upon the hills that surround the school took hand in the party and made it the merry affair it was.

FOR BETROTHED

Miss Doris Bornemann will be the honoree for an informal tea on Wednesday, the 27th, when Mrs. Ralph Merritt—Lula Wells before her marriage—will be hostess.

And on the following Saturday Mrs. Philip Plummer of Alameda will entertain for her at a large tea, the guests to include both the younger and married groups.

Assisting the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Nickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul O. Tietzen and a few others.

MRS. ARTHUR L. CUNNINGHAM, who will entertain at a tea in honor of Mrs. Western Logan, bride of the brother of the hostess, the date to be determined on the arrival of the newly-weds from the east.

BERKELEY WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Jane Greeley and Calvin Chapman, both alumni of the University of California, last Thursday evening in the college city was of interest to friends on California as well as in the East, where the bride's family formerly resided. The ceremony was read at 3:30 o'clock by Rev. W. R. H.

Only for ladies who end corns

Dainty shoes are only for those who end corns.

The way is simple, quick and easy, and is sure. Millions of people employ it.

Apply Blue-jay, the liquid or the plaster. That touch will stop the pain.

Then wait a little and the corn will loosen and come out.

Then why does anybody suffer corns? Just because they don't know. They pare corns and keep them. Or they pad them. Or they use a treatment harsh and ineffective.

Blue-jay is scientific. This world-famed laboratory created it.

Year after year, it is keeping millions entirely free from corns.

SNOOK-GRIMES

ENGAGED

Following upon the heels of the announcement of the betrothal of Miss Mildred Standeford Snook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Snook and Everett Tubbs Grimes came the nuptials yesterday. The service was read by the Rev. Elmer McBurney at the Snook home in Berkeley in the presence of relatives and a group of young friends.

Miss Snook is a graduate of Snell's School in New York.

Young Grimes is a nephew of Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw, Mrs. Grace Tubbs Henshaw and Mrs. Edward Hall.

After the honeymoon trip the newly-weds will make their home in Berkeley.

Assisting the hostess were the Misses Eva McClellan, Kathleen Evans, Dorothy Leland, Bernice Huggins, Octavia Dovine, Louise Moore and a few other close friends of the hostess and her pretty daughters.

At the tea given by Mrs. James McVay Mills on Thursday afternoon, with her daughters—Mrs. Paul D. Cadman, and the Misses Marion and Margaret Mills—the complimented guests, the betrothal of Miss Marion and Frederick Lewis Shanks was announced.

Over one hundred guests called during the afternoon, to most of whom the delectable bit of news assured the hostess were the Misses Eva McClellan, Kathleen Evans, Dorothy Leland, Bernice Huggins, Octavia Dovine, Louise Moore and a few other close friends of the hostess and her pretty daughters.

Carls received Thursday revealed the engagement of Adrian Roger Mosley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mosley of Euclid Avenue and Miss Adeline Elliott Bogart of San Francisco. The bride-elect was graduated a few years ago from Miss Hamlin's school after which she traveled abroad, spending a year in Paris. Miss Bogart is a member of the Women's Athletic Club. She is the daughter of the late A. W. Bogart and Mrs. Bogart, Mrs. Bogart's two daughters have been residing at their summer home at Los Gatos the greater part of the season. The wedding will be a November affair.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown, trimmed in point lace, with a long bridal veil of the lace caught with sprays of orange blossoms. A handsome shower bouquet of gardenia, cyclamen and lilies-of-the-valley completed the picture.

Mrs. Greeley served as matron of honor for her daughter—a custom much adhered to in the East—wearing turquoise blue panne velvet, while her two daughters, Martha in blue silk and Chantilly and Julia Greeley in orchid, were bridesmaids.

The bridegroom was attended by Major Charles B. Cline and John Bailey.

AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Hallowe'en spirit has taken possession of the country clubs, at nearly all of which doings characteristic of the spooky night are on the cards.

The George W. McNeals are going to spend the week-end that includes the holiday at Mt. Diablo Country Club, taking a group of young folk with them, including Miss Vera de Vore Adams.

The party will return to town on Monday.

At the Claremont Country Club the annual inter-sorority dance will hold the boards, with all the accompanying pranks and foolishness that give the day its character.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edoff will be hosts at a supper tonight in honor of Dr. and Mrs. George Porter of Philadelphia, friends of Mrs. George Porter Baldwin—Florence Edoff, who was a recent guest at the Edoff home. The Murtons are at the St. Francis.

And on Wednesday a luncheon is scheduled for Miss Robinson at the Palace hotel with Miss Doris Alexander the hostess.

After a day of wedding, there will be an extended honeymoon trip and an attractive house in San Francisco, where Dr. Taylor is well established among the younger group of medical men.

Miss Laura Currey of Davis, niece of Mrs. Samuel Buckbee of San Francisco, is a guest of Miss Anne Barbour, planning to remain a few weeks.

Miss Barbour was recently the guest at the Currey ranch.

Tomorrow Mrs. Henry Rosenfeld will assemble the membership of the Linden branch of the Bay hospital at the St. Francis—Wilton, the friends who made such a photo and success of their booth at the recent bazaar at the Municipal Auditorium.

Mr. J. F. McMath assembled seventy-five guests on Thursday at the Claremont Country Club for a bridge luncheon, several San Franciscans attending. Assisting Mr. McMath were the Mesdames Glenn Barnhart, W. F. Schwander and T. Harry Smith.

CLAREMONT TEA

Mrs. Ernest Tanner, whose home in Claremont is a rendezvous for interesting persons who do things particularly in the arts, will entertain first week in November at a tea in honor of Mrs. Sydney Downs, for whom many social favors are under way.

Mrs. Tanner, incidentally, is one of the leading spirits in the Players Club where she has frequently carried big roles of big plays. But whether front or behind the footlights her interest and support is unwavering.

The Pi Beta Phi sorority presented its freshman to the chapter on Friday evening to the honor guests being the Misses Emily Glade, Margaret Winton, Marion Cee, Daphne Miller, Rebecca Gray, Bertrand Gray, Helen Gray, Marion Prescott and Bernice Huggins.

The Monday Reading club held its session last week at the home of Mrs. William D. Huntington, who was assisted by her daughter-in-law, Miss Alice Huntington. The members in attendance were Miss Mary McClellan and Nedra James.

Pipe Smoking Fad

With English Girls

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The appearance of a young woman at a Queen's Hall concert smoking a jeweled pipe interested completely from the music and led to loudly whispered protests which, however, were completely ignored by the woman, who coolly finished her pipe and placed it carefully in a small case taken from her knitting.

Pipe makers declare that pipe smoking has become the fad of a small section of the smart set in London, and briar pipes of dainty appearance and elegant proportions are being made by experts. The tiny pipes are of all shapes, some fantastic but moderately priced and others sold mounted or jeweled for the Christmas trade.

Mothers Clubs to Be Hosts At Reciprocity Gatherings

By EDNA B. KINARD

This is Reciprocity Week. Although it is a strenuous sounding word, it still must express the one time in all the twelve months when the Federation of Mothers' Clubs of the state and nation, and assemblies together in what they are pleased to designate their playtime. However, the diversion lasts no longer than the ices. For usually—and this year is no exception—a program, both vital and interesting, is launched with the coffee, which immediately returns the mothers and their guests to consideration of the duties to which they have appointed themselves. Books out of the school could, seeing that he is comfortable, clad, fed, nourished, protected and educated—these are the simple purposes of the whole mother movement. To it has been attracted the teachers and the educators. So then it is peculiarly fitting that the men and women outstanding in the work of education should share with leaders in the other teacher organizations the honors of the day.

Seated about the guest table on Thursday, when the annual reciprocity luncheon will gather at Hotel Oakland some 600 prominent folk at the invitation of Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs, will be Superintendent of Schools Fred M. Clegg and his assistants. E. Morris Cox and Louis Argue, representatives of the board of education, the city council, the chamber of commerce, the Rotary Club, the Merchants Exchange, Mrs. Harry Ewing of San Jose, president of the California Congress of Mothers; Mrs. H. N. Rowell, national treasurer, National Congress of Mothers; Mrs. H. G. Tardy, president, second district; Mrs. P. J. Kramer, local president; past presidents of Oakland federation, and presidents of Berkeley, Alameda, San Francisco, San Mateo, Petaluma, and Santa Rosa. And by this time it is known that the mother group has truly and definitely arrived in the ranks of those organizations which must be reckoned in with civic and social progress.

Miss Gail Laughlin has been invited to speak of the day. Mrs. Alice Davies Endris, violinist; Lucy Harrelson, Miss Charles Everett, piano; will present the half hour of music. Glenn Woods, director of music in the Oakland schools, will lead the community singing.

The whole elaborate fabric of the luncheon has been in charge of Mrs. Ira N. Allen, reciprocity chairman assisted by the local department chairman, Mrs. Clinton G. Miller. She will look out after the decorations and Wiets the place cards and Mrs. Ebbers the pennants. Mrs. Kramer will preside over the festivities.

Berkeley Federation is coming up to its annual reciprocity luncheon on Saturday with a special luncheon arranged for its twenty-two local associations. Mrs. W. B. Stanton is president of the mothers' group in the college city.

Walhall Will Be Guest of Ebell

Henry B. Walhall will be the guest of honor of Ebell Club on Tuesday. Walhall, who has achieved a histrionic fame, is in Oakland this week, presenting "Ghosts," by Ibsen. The pioneer club is anticipating a capacity house, the members eagerly awaiting themselves of the three card program for the reception and tea. Mrs. Alexander Hutchinson will be the receiving hostess.

The Oakland Club turns aside from its social pleasures and cultural programs this week to share the good things which the members possess. This is the case on Wednesday, when the afternoon thimble bee, when the women gather to fashion those needful garments which some children must otherwise do without. Mrs. J. A. Robinson is chairman of the relief sewing meeting. The sections also are scheduled to assemble on Wednesday afternoon.

Twenty-five years of usefulness have been enjoyed at the weekly breakfast of the club last week when scores of prominent women gathered at the Hotel Oakland to honor the birthday occasion. Because the program never became a success, the result of its activities and because for several years the club made itself responsible for his salary, O. F. Snedigar, Alameda county probation officer, shared with District Attorney Ezra Decoto the honors of the day.

Ben Sosco, nephew of the late Mr. Henry Irving, and himself known as the Good Samaritan of the war hospitals, will answer for the household arts section of the Adelphi. What an elusive question, "Home Influences—What Are They?" on Thursday afternoon. The entire club is joining with the section in its notable program.

Mrs. William Shepard will read a play before the Shakespeare section on Wednesday afternoon. The Tuesday program of the new book section will be devoted to an open forum on W. D. Howells and his work.

The civic and current events section of Lakeview Club will present its speaker tomorrow Mrs. Frank G. Law, president of the California Civic League.

Wednesday is the afternoon thimble bee, when the women gather to fashion those needful garments which some children must otherwise do without.

Mrs. J. A. Robinson is chairman of the relief sewing meeting.

The literary section will consider the life and work of Mary Robert Rhinehart on Tuesday.

"A Bird's-Eye View of Siam" will be presented to the Twentieth Century Club women and their guests on Tuesday, Dr. Mary Irwin of Bangkok, Siam, the speaker. Native music and dancing by the Siamese students in the University of California supplement the lecture, which will have to do with the culture and history of that nation. A valuable collection of Siamese curios and artifacts will be shown.

Hatch is curator of the travel section making the unique program possible.

Mrs. Albert E. Carter, Dr. Daniel Crichton and Alfred L. Hall will be the speakers before Alta Mira Club of San Leandro tomorrow, endeavoring to clear up for the club women some of the issues which will be presented to them on the November ballot. A group of songs by Mrs. E. P. Canney and a fancy dance by Miss Lily Peterson will complete the program. Mrs. M. McCarthy will be chairman.

What has the Junior Red Cross done with the revenue from the Twelfth street shop since the Oakland Chapter turned it over to them? Here is the modern fairy tale as told by Fred J. Anderson, director of citizenship under the school department in Oakland.

The Junior Red Cross found there was need for the cure of aching teeth and prevention of future toothaches. Such work was provided for at the institution, where there was already a dental unit, but which needed a dentist and a nurse in order to use it. The Junior Red Cross provided a dentist for half-time at a cost of $100 per month and a dentist's assistant at $50 per month. Time was given by volunteer dentists for work on inmates of the Detention Home. The time of the Red Cross dentist was fully taken with children from the neighboring schools. At the Health Center a dentist was employed for one-half hour of the time and here any Oakland school child received attention.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

In addition the Junior Red Cross share of the proceeds of Christmas seals sold by the school children amounting to nearly $100, was turned over to the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which provided in placing dental chairs in certain schools. The Anti-Tuberculosis Association raised this fund up to $1000. Through Dr. Millberry, dean of the College of Dentistry, University of California, the loan of four dental chairs which were placed in the Elmhurst, Field, Bay and Lutze schools, was obtained. The fund was used to pay for the installation of these chairs and for the purchase of a modest equipment for examining children's teeth.

AID FOR CHILDREN

Aid given to crippled children. A survey of the city and county was made and sixty-five children were cared for. Braces were provided when necessary and the best of medical and nursing care was given. Anterior teeth were taken to clinics to be furnished largely through the kindness of interested citizens. A corrective gymnasium was fitted up at a cost of $200. Here wonderful work was done in restoring unused muscles to their normal muscles in much shorter time than is usually required, saving the patient a long and tedious convalescence. Cases of pronounced bad posture referred from the schools were given special attention Saturday mornings.

Recovery room at the Public Health Center.

A bare and unattractive attic room at the center was cleared out, the walls tinted and decorated by James H. Combedlock and furnished by the girls of the Rainbow Club of the University high school. Sometimes there were ice cream cones for the little patients who waited in this pretty room. Automobile service was provided, the Tuberculosis Association furnished the machine and the Technical high school the drivers so that children could arrive at the center at 8 o'clock, breakfastless, but fairly comfortable. Thirty cases per month were operated on and an extra anesthesia and sedentary nurse was employed by the Junior Red Cross that still more cases might be cared for.

HEALTH CENTER

Children's Health Centers: A Health Center for children was established at Technical high school, where children of pre-school age may be examined by competent physicians without charge. Money was also given for the equipment of a center at Piedmont avenue school.

Nutrition classes.

In many schools there were children who needed nourishing food. There were established four classes part of whose school work was the eating of good wholesome bread and milk and other foods suitable to the needs of little bodies and whose record was made in a gain in weight, looks and better work in the regular classes. One class breakfast, lunch and an afternoon spread were given at a charge of 5 cents per meal to each of twenty-two pupils for a period covering one month. The Junior Red Cross paid the balance, amounting to about $75 per month.

MOTHERS ARE HELPED

Mothers must sometimes leave little children in order to go out and earn their daily bread. Day nurseries were established in two of the schools. During the summer and fall about $1000 has been spent in equipping and running these day nurseries. This work has proved of value in teaching mothers a higher standard of child care.

Attendance department.

During the year Junior Red Cross has furnished about $175 in order that the attendance department might keep needy children in their classes.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

"That is the way I intended to enough for me to see him when he come back," I replied with dignity, I had first turned into the road, and my vanity subconsciously wounded; I had then fallen back again to appear by his deprecating reference to my no more until a short half-mile from home. Then he drew up to the side of my car and signaled me to stop.

The rest of my trip was uneventful. I stopped successfully for Lillian, until the return my ears and started home with a feeling of absolute security born of the knowledge that Harry Underwood in his car was not far behind me. He had brought his car close to Lillian to his real height. "Then if Lillian happens to be near the road, which isn't likely, she won't have a chance to lamp me before I pass. I'll pull out a little here in the bushes and wait till I'm sure you've safely turned in the gate. Please strike that tall order of yours three times in quick succession when you reach your gate, and I'll know everything is O. K. and scot back to Sag."

He paused a moment, as if debating just what to say next.

Harry Underwood's Farewell.

"Don't worry about anything, Lady. I'll be back in time for dinner. Your Uncle Dudley is going to be on the job as far as you're concerned for some little time to come. And I don't hate me any more than you can possibly help."

He was off with the last word scarcely uttered, going at a pace that made meortal Lillian an object under his body when the wheel so that it appeared much shorter.

As I turned in at the rustic gate leading to our camp and gave the three blasts of the horn he had asked

I was startled to see Lillian, with face like ashes, clinging to a sheltering cedar tree.

I stopped my car with a jerk, leaped out and ran to Lillian.

"What is it, dear?" I cried.

"Are you ill? Is Marion worse?"

She put out her hand to me with a reassuring little smile as brave as it was heart-breaking.

"No, I'm not ill," I said quietly, then tensely, with a strained look in her eyes which I have seen there only on occasions of great mental stress.

"Tell me, Madge, did you notice a runabout pass a little while ago? It must have passed you only a few minutes back, a dark blue car, going like the wind?"

With a presentiment of what was to come and yet with a wariness born of my ignorance of what she really knew, I answered truthfully:

"Yes, I saw it. The driver never even blew a horn when we passed me."

"Oh! Did you notice the driver?"

There was a hint of relief in the strained tones now, and I took my cue.

"Why? I didn't see anything of him to notice except that he wore an automobile cap jammed down over his face, and he himself resembled the wheel like a jack knife. That seems to be the modish posture among the masculine drivers of this secon-

A still more perceptible lessening of the tension now. But the pallor of shock was still in her face as she put her hands on my shoulders.

"Did it occur to you that he looked like anyone you and I knew well once?"

"No, it didn't," I returned with assumed impatience. I feared that Harry Underwood, hearing the signalled three blasts of my auto horn would conclude that the coast was clear and come shooting back over the road. "But I'll think him over when I've had some tea down at the shack. I'm simply starved, and you look as if you'd been dragged through a knot-hole. Jump in here and we'll be down at the shack in a jiffy."

I was in reality no thinking at all, but I knew that the surest way to appeal to Lillian was through another's necessity.

"You poor child!" she said contritely, getting in beside me.

She did not refer to the questions she had asked me until we had reached the shack, which had been tastefully grafted by Marion and were easily entered on the veranda overlooking the bar with the tea she had brewed before us. Marion, in high glee at being once more allowed outdoors, had scampered back to the beach after greeting us, and I noticed that her mother clasped her so convulsively just before she left us that the child cried out in wonder.

A SWIFT DECISION?

"What makes you hug me so hard, Mums?" she cooed, and Lillian looked down at her with a look that held tragedy in it.

"Because I love you so, darling," she had replied, and the child had responded with the sentence that she had kept for her mother ever since she was restored to her.

"You can't love me better than I love you," she murmured so lowly I could scarcely hear it, although I was sitting so near them. "Can't can't, can't because I love you better than I do anybody else in the world."

Lillian's look followed her, tensely broodingly, nor did it return to me until I challenged her worriedly.

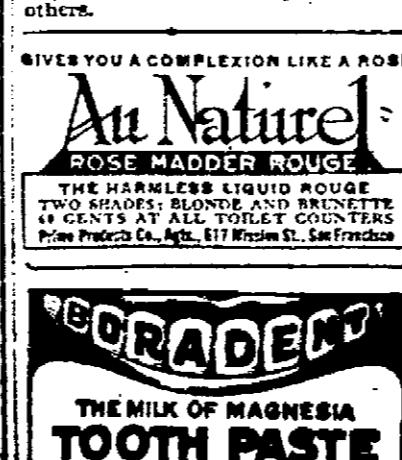

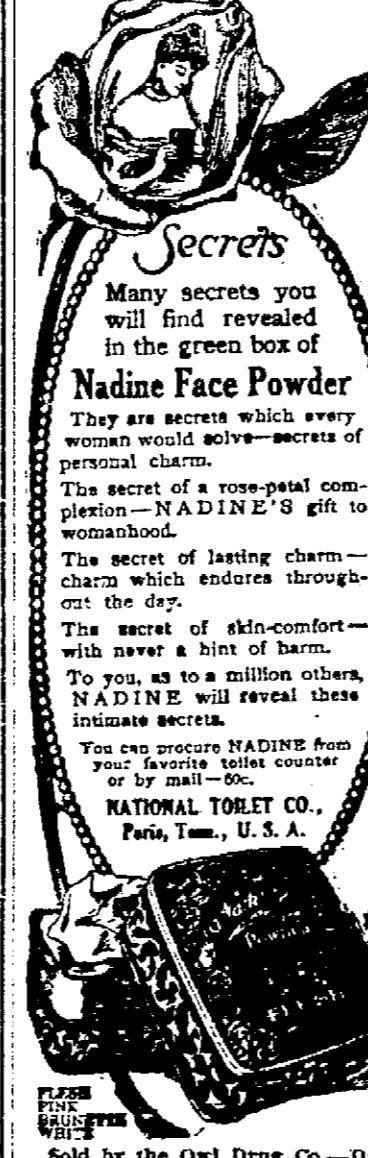

"You are not drinking your tea," I protested, making anything the excuse to get her to talk.

"I don't want it," she responded, then she saw that I had finished mine and pushed the tea equipage to one side.

"Do you know, Madge?" she said tensely. "I realize it is the most outlandish of notions, but I could almost take my oath I saw Harry in that runabout just now."

If I had had any compunctions about keeping the reappearance of her husband from her they vanished completely as I saw the face she turned to me. For, as in the very mention of his name had withered her, brightened her spirit, her eyes were pools which mirrored stark fear and horror.

How to Give a Novel Hallowe'en Party

A black cat party is both mysterious and funny enough to be quite appropriate for a Hallowe'en celebration. In decorating the rooms use cat lanterns instead of the time-honored pumpkin lanterns. These cat lanterns are of black paper, and are made to imitate heads, parent, and shed a weird and subdued light upon the scene. The heads may be purchased in different sizes, and should be hung by black cords.

Long-stemmed cat tails, dried grasses, late fall flowers and vines that are available, combined with bunches of dried corn tassels and dried sunflowers make attractive floral decorations.

White sheeting portieres may be hung temporarily with the lights back of them, and large cat shadows should be thrown on them to add to the gruesomeness of the entertainment.

In sending out invitations cut them from black paper and write on them with white ink. They must, of course, be cat-shaped. On arrival, each person holding the matching half will be the partner for the first game. This is an excellent way to remove stiffness and formality.

BRING A CAT STORY.

Each guest who has been notified brings with him a good cat story to read or anecdote to tell. A small boy dressed as "Puss in Boots" opens the door for the guests and carried two baskets from which he hands out the cat rolls.

"Cat rolling" is the first game on the program, and it is a game like ten-pins.

The balls are made of stuffed, gray calico cats, who have small castors on their feet. When shoved down the alley the cat must roll straight to the goal to tails; if it falls it is disqualified. The game is continued like ten-pins, and both first and second prizes are given.

Next the swinging cat bell game, made things lively for the players. A stuffed cat-on-a-cat is hung on a cord. It is made to swing by bumping it with the head.

Then the tall on the cat is accomplished by the same as in climbing the tail on the monkey. After a short game the guests gather around a witches' cauldron and tell stories until supper time.

At supper the old trick of fate may be tried. These include roasting the walnut affinities before the fire, walking down cellar backwards with a looking-glass in hand to see the face of your future mate reflected therein, and the search through the dark of garden paths in search of cat ghosts and other weird stunts.

WITCHES' BREW.

Witches' brew—served during the evening from a deep, brown crock, is a rich, sweet and cold pineapple punch with candied mint and rose leaves scattered over the top. If the guests are to be seated for supper cover the table with gray paper cambric, decorate the cloth with black paper cats, witches' brooms, cauldrons, toads and cobwebs. For a centerpiece use a many-petaled paper rose which is really a Jack Horner pie, or an old paper stamp with a white paper owl perched on the top.

For service plates use wooden ones with black cats pasted on them.

and Fourteenth streets, there was a small fresh water pond, and we boys used to wade in the pond, but the owners would chase us away. We used to get even with them sometimes by 'hunting' them for dogs, cats or other animals that we could find and drag them into the pond, which would keep him busy trying to keep his pond clean.

On New Year's eve we sometimes had a little sport changing store-keepers signs. In front of the drugstore would go the undertaker's sign, the drug sign at the restaurant, the drygoods sign in front of the saloon, the bakery sign in front of the Chinese laundry, the laundry sign at the butcher's, and so on down the line.

Enough said this time.

Who was the boy that came from Auburn and had never seen land, then stopped the night on the hill? The boy wanted to have a little fun with Curtis, all we had to do was say "Gee" or "Haw" to his oxen and get them going the wrong way; then he would chase us away with his big whip.

SEEING THINGS at NIGHT

By Heywood Broun,

Dramatic Critic of the New York Tribune, Reviewer for Collier's Weekly and Theatrical Correspondent for The OAKLAND TRIBUNE

Fred Stone's new show, called "Tip Top," seems to be the biggest musical comedy hit of the season.

There is hardly a touch in it which will be whistled, and certainly the book makes no contribution to the wit of the day. The answer is largely Fred Stone. He is an amazing performer, who seems able to do anything. A great actress back in the days of Boswell was once moved to remark that "Young Mr. David Garrick was so versatile a performer that she believed he could act a griddle if he had to." Mr. Stone's night will be able to act the griddle, but he could balance it upon the end of his nose, play a tune upon it, or stand on his head and hit it right in the center ten times running with a rifle.

HIS TRICKS AMAZING

His stunts in "Tip Top" include a number of amazing acrobatic tricks, a little dazzling marksmanship with a long black whip, no less than a dozen stunts on a rifle, shooting, bareback riding, and a few other activities which we can't remember.

Withal, he is a pleasant and agreeable performer, with no mannerisms or frills. His stunts are pleasing, but they are not half so welcome as Stone himself.

An excellent cast has been assembled behind him and the performance is so sweet and gay that the fact that it isn't inspired doesn't seem to make a bit of difference.

After all, there isn't a great deal of inspiration flashing about in the theater this season, or any other, and to the best of our recollection it never strikes musical comedies, anyway.

GALSWORTHY'S PLAX

Down in the little Neighborhood Playhouse in front-reared Grand Street, John Galsworthy's play, "The Man," was produced for the first time in America. This is a play more thoughtful than usual, but it falls quite a bit short of being great drama. It is not to be compared with Mr. Galsworthy's "Strife" or "Justice." In the same British dramatist has his say against the familiar slogan, "My country right or wrong," a slogan which Gilbert K. Chesterton has parodied in "My Country doesn't sober."

The play is Stephen More, a member of Parliament, who opposes an English war of conquest. The particular war is not specified, but great stress is laid upon the fact that England is attacking a country much weaker than itself.

Probably Galsworthy had the Boer War in mind, but the implications of the play seem to be somewhat broader than a protest against one specific struggle.

SEEKS MARTYRDOM

More not only opposes the war before the beginning of hostilities, but afterward, and he finds that once a war has begun an unreasoning mob spirit arises which is deaf to protest. Nevertheless, he keeps up his campaign. It costs him home and friends, and in the final scene life itself. We see him attacked by a crowd of hoodlums and stabbed to death as he is attempting to escape the mob, falling from the top of a table. Ian MacLaren makes the most of this scene with a rather flashy, but none the less effective, fall in, which he topples straight from the table top to the stage. It is a fall which is sure to arouse the envy of every emotional actor in America, and before long we may expect a play in which some ambitious star will bring down the curtain by leaping from the roof of the theater. We look upon the possibility of this

SHIPMAN'S NEW PLAY

Samuel Shipman is rather more sincere than usual in his new play, written in collaboration with Victor Victor. The piece, which deals with the period of the American Revolution, is built around the character of Haym Salomon, a Jewish banker, who played a great part in financing Washington's army.

It is Mr. Shipman's intent to point out that the Jewish race is not one which has come to America only to profit by the work of the pioneers, but one which has always had a share and a stake in the making of America. In fact, the author goes even further back than Salomon and has a scene in which one of the characters declares that Columbus was financed by a Jew and that it was a Jewish sailor who first sighted America.

ORATORICAL AND STAGEY

There is an interesting theme which may be heard in the play, which the author carries too much of when he declares in one scene of the play that the newspapers of America were always quick to seize upon the fact that a gunman was Jewish and remained quite unmindful and silent about the work of any Jew who was truly great and useful. There is no foundation for this charge against the newspaper of any American city, and least of all against those of New York, in which two of the greatest dailies are owned by men of Jewish ancestry.

THE CURE FOR CURABLES

The play is rather oratorical and often stately, but it has at least one thrilling act in which Haym Salomon succeeds in convincing a group of banking friends that they should give all that they have for the purpose of saving the American cause. The play is not very well acted by Mr. Shipman, who is dead, but there is an enormously effective performance by one of the chief members of the supporting cast—Mr. Howard Lang.

SO MANY PLAYWRIGHTS

So many playwrights have seized upon the idea that the general worthiness and value of the Jew to America has been neglected that the theaters are crowded with plays upon the theme. The prejudice upon which the playwrights found their thesis may be thin, but the public has turned out to witness to all the plays in which declaration is made that a conspiracy of silence and neglect exists against the Jews of America.

In San Francisco

Richard Tucker had an inspiration the other day and because of it a number of important scenes in his play "The Dark" were taken in recording time. The company had gone from the Goldwyn Studio to San Francisco for some street scenes, but they apparently had to leave the studio because it was impossible to get the desired pictures. Then Tucker, who was playing a policeman in the picture, decided to make his picture "no double job." "So what's there?" he said. His voice carried conviction, and while he was acting like a real policeman, Frank Lloyd, director of the picture, was able to get the desired scenes.

When the scenes were completed, Lloyd told Tucker that rightfully he ought to arrest himself for impersonating an officer of the law.

Artists and Their Work

By LAURA BRIDE POWERS

HE exhibition of Old Masters that opened at the Palace of Fine Arts last week, the most notable art activity in the West since the Exposition, is the magnificent foreword of the new San Francisco Museum of Art.

The new body has been created to proceed with the San Francisco War Memorial that shall include the new Art Gallery—the treasure house that shall hold the estimations of San Francisco. And to put the project through with the right spirit a group of citizens has been selected before whom the architects of the country will be invited to create for San Francisco something worthy of her spirit and of the sentiment it shall express to the world. The committee includes: William C. Van Antwerp, Arthur Brown Jr., Charles W. Clark, William H. Crocker, Sidney W. Ehrman, Daniel C. Jackling, Lawrence Rockwood, John L. Walter, Edward Raymond Armsby, Francis C. Johnson, Charles Templeton Crocker, John S. Drury, Joseph D. Crocker, Walter S. Martin, Richard M. Tobin and George Whittel, with J. Nelson Laurvik, director.

The exhibition is the first official expression.

Its next?

Let us hope that it shall be an early calling for plans, for it is whispered about in stage whispers that not many new moons will light the sky before the first concrete steps are taken toward the development of the super plan.

That the people are ready for the new step is manifested in their interest in the exhibitions that have from time to time been staged at the Palace of Fine Arts—the Zuñaga, the Anisfeld, the Rembrandt collections and now in the exhibition of Old Masters. It is not without interest to note that 26,000 men and women about the bay were sufficiently interested to attend the earlier exhibition to which, necessarily, an admittance fee was charged. And as for the current exhibition, 2,100 paid admissions were recorded during the first two days, with a sale of catalogues that was something of a revelation.

"With every exhibition," says Director Laurvik, "interest grows with the man-in-the-street. And thus is the art consciousness of the community widened. And thus are art projects dead ahead that ten years ago would not have been dreamed of."

That the art consciousness of the people is awakened is best expressed in the keen interest manifested in the gallery of the Byzantine-Early Italian school of the current exhibition, where the primitives seek to express the spiritual essence of art, rather than the materialistic—or realistic—viewpoint—that is, obviously, the popular viewpoint. And while it is true that the manner of many of the ultra-modern painters has familiarized us in measure the student with the primitives, it is an arresting fact that this gallery holds its own against the alarums of the English or French critics or the newer schools, it is because of its spiritual manifestations, as its proponents protest?

Incidentally, tomorrow an interesting experiment will be made by Director Laurvik, who is, as all the world knows, an ardent modernist and devotee of the idealistic or spirrealistic in art, as exemplified by the let us say—the Hungarian school of modern painters.

"A Cottage" by JOHN CONSTABLE, father of modern landscape painting. The canvas, characteristic of the great innovator, is one of the notable paintings on view at the Palace of Fine Arts in the "Old Masters" exhibition, revealing the method of the British painter that so definitely shaped the direction of the Impressionists, and through them the art of France.

Berényi, the Hungarian, who painted "The Crucifixion" and "Dr. Bartók"—the latter the cause of "Bartók"—the latter the cause of the famous Trask-Mulgard controversy—and Kokási, another Hungarian, will be hung side by side with El Greco, the mystic, who epitomizes the spiritual significance of art as against the growing externalisms of the Renaissance. "The spirit that animated Greco is the same spirit that is inherent in the work of these Hungarians," declares the director.

"And the expression of the spiritual—the inner thing that the physical eye cannot visualize—that is art."

What have the realists to say in defense of themselves?

In reality, they are few paces apart from the photographers in portraying the facts of the external world.

Tomorrow's experiment will give new vigor to the age-old discussion between the ideal and the real—a discussion that even in the time of these hieratic painters, set the Florentine group and the Sienese creators one against the other, though both were serving the same mistress with the same ardor.

Ray Bornton is breaking into New York. He is this week sending on thirty watercolors that are inclusive of "Danai," the decorative canvas that was shown last year at the Palace of Fine Arts, and a half dozen interpretive landscapes—Tahampals in varying moods among them.

So obsessed with the influence of the Orient is the young aspirant for world audiences that he has offered up much of the personal in his never-forgetting of the repressed spirit of the mystics whom he worships.

The show goes on at the Muslim gallery in Fifty-seventh street, in time for the winter lineup of new work.

Oakland Gallery's New Shows

The Oakland Art Gallery opens today with three new exhibitions: the ambitious efforts of Director W. H. Clapp.

Edward Borein, the Oakland man whose etchings of hills and plains that cowboy, Indian and Indian and cowboy have made him a popular painter in New York, will exhibit some fifty or more examples of his needle and plate. The Borein manner is bold and vigorous, not always as restrained as is desirable, but he tells his story. And that is essentially the object of the artist who passed his apprenticeship in the saddle on the range. That is his aim. How he tells it is another story.

The blue room walls are displaying a collection of paintings by Lee Randolph, George Frost Wickson, Gay Williams, Mrs. A. E. Cannon, William Cahill of southern California, besides a group of strangers, the interesting product of the July free show.

THE WAY INTO THE CITY'S STRONG BOX

THE TANGLE OVER ADDICOTT IS BECOMING GREATER SNARL THAN EVER

AN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—If there is no surprise there must at least be a realization that things are different from what they used to be. Formerly the way into the public treasury was considerably hedge about. There were safe-guards that guarded, and watchdogs which watched. Now, however, the approach is not so difficult. What may be cited as a case in point is the recent Hatch Hatch contract. Bonds were unsalable in the regular way. So a contracting firm took them over, and in turn was awarded a contract involving some $7,800,000 on the cost-plus plan. The city is to pay all costs of work, and to remunerate the contractors in the sum of $750,000 for conducting and overseeing operations. This is to be paid in three yearly installments, each year in advance. Payment of the first installment, amounting with interest to $276,776, being enjoined by a protesting taxpayer, the issue was tried before Judge Murasky, who gave judgment for the contractors. This decision was appealed from and has just been affirmed by the Supreme court. There may be economic justification of the proceeding, and there may be legal justification of the confirmatory decisions, but there are those who conclude that contractors under such conditions have a mighty soft thing of it.

Boulevarding Howard Street

What is considered and announced as the first step to relieve the congestion at the end of Market street by making Howard street a boulevard has been taken. A good deal is to be done. The roadway is to be widened by reducing the sidewalks, regraded and repaved, and the car tracks removed—that is, if all the plans are carried out. That will fetch down some traffic that now congests Market street, and that there will be one avenue leading down to the city's main portal free from car rails will be a great relief to automobileists. But this will not relieve the congestion on Market street in a big, comprehensive way. The neck of the bottle will still be too small and the interference with transportation in the most vital point on the city front, not to mention the danger to pedestrians on their way to and from the ferry, will still be great. A big plan that will solve this problem will be very costly, for it will involve the purchase of land to widen the approaches and a general rearrangement of the terminal facilities of street railway lines.

Buying the United Railroads

The Board of Supervisors and the Civic League of Improvement clubs have unanimously approved that charter amendment which, if carried, will provide an enabling act which will make it possible to submit to voters the proposition to acquire the United Railroads. It will only require a majority vote to carry this amendment; but in the matter of issuing bonds to finance the proposition a two-thirds vote will be necessary. So that the proposition will have to run the gauntlet twice. While the municipal board is unanimously in favor of taking over the United Railroads, it may be questioned whether even a majority of taxpayers, who will have to stand the brunt of the expense, are in favor of it. At least, those who have expressed themselves in my hearing are not enthusiastic. They have small faith, apparently, in municipal ownership of such utilities, being wont to recite how the municipal railway is turning out—how its reserve fund is dipped into whenever there is a shortage of funds for other purposes. This doesn't seem to be full justification for opposition, but it serves to show how such things work.

Philippine Independence

A short time ago Isidro Gabaldon passed through this city on his way to Washington as the newly-elected resident commissioner of the Philippines. He has been talking for publication in the capital city, or at least gets quoted, and from the tenor of his remarks it is seen that he regards his mission as one to promote agitation in favor of complete and immediate independence of the islands. Here is a sentence that he is represented to have uttered: "The officials of the Philippines and the masses of the Filipino people are alike insistent that independence shall be granted." This is probably so as to the natives, "the masses of the Filipinos people," but if it is so as to those officials sent there by the administration, it but represents a policy on which President Wilson started out at the beginning of his first term, but which has been allowed to gradually subside. When the appointment of Governor Harrison was made it was announced that immediate independence was to be the policy. That was evidently found to be impossible, with justice to the Filipinos and credit to the United States government; but the announcement and the policy at first pursued undid much that had been done by the beneficent policy that had been followed since the acquisition of the islands, and unsettled the natives till it is manifest that agitation and expectation of premature independence has become a regular organized industry. The incoming administration will have a situation to meet if it shall find it desirable to discontinue this movement.

The Unprotected Water Front

The monthly report of the North Central Improvement Association calls attention to the fact that San Francisco is now absolutely without fire protection along its waterfront; that in fact it is worse off than it was before the great fire of 1906, because the buildings that have been constructed since that epochal event are more important and have been more costly. The city owns two fully equipped fire boats which are lying idle because the city and the state authorities are at loggerheads as to where the cost burden should fall. Chief Murphy is admitting that without these boats the fire department would be unable to cope with any fire that may occur on the front. A suggestion has been made that service should be maintained by private subscription. The matter is being considered by the Board of Fire Underwriters and a number of property owners whose interests are affected. The report concludes: "The fact that San Francisco's water front and shipping is without fire protection and will be for some time to come, is to be deplored, as it is known and advertised throughout the United States to our detriment."

Indifference as to Judges

There are twelve candidates for superior judges, of whom there are eight to be elected. The presidential and senatorial issues throw the judicial issue in the shade. It is practically impossible to arouse interest in this minor matter. Yet it is vastly important—more immediately important than those which overshadow it. The bench of this city has suffered in this respect. Nearly every election finds attention diverted to other phases more appealing to the voter than placing upon its superior bench magistrates who are capable as to both ability and integrity. Amazement does not apply to all the judges, but it is a fact that in the indifference of voters—their absorption in other candidacies and issues—they have let candidates slip on the bench that have not adorned it. This year gives too good promise of being like some others in this respect.

U. S. Supreme Judges

It is being discussed here that several of the United States Supreme Court judges are well on in years, eligible to retire, and there is a general hope, not qualified by party predilection on the part of any who take account of the matter, that all of them will outlast the present administration. They will only have to hang on a little over four months more. I shall not undertake to say that Justice McKenna is one who may seek retirement; but if he is, the succession will naturally be expected to come to California, and that contingency would put the bar here on the quiet. Lawyers of all political predilections, if you can get in close to how they feel about it, admit that President Wilson's appointments have not always been entirely happy. It will be remembered that one of them hung fire some time as to confirmation by the Senate. As the President is about to retire it is feared that he would do worse than when his star was in the ascendant, and hence the hope that the incumbents will survive and stand it till the forthcoming Republican administration is installed.

A Million For Fresno Republican

The general impression was that there was a story behind the sale of the Fresno Republican that the general public was not getting. That Mr. Rowell, who controlled the paper, confessed editorially that he had no idea four days before the sale took place that such transfer would be made and that he would not retire from editorial activity, though he did not know where he should perform next, justified the assumption that something out of the ordinary had happened. There were those who considered that possibly that something was in the form of pressure from other stockholders and the general public on account of Mr. Rowell's course in the national campaign. Fresno is thoroughly Republican, and though it has wobbled in the past, notably four years ago, it felt an incentive this year to keep in the traces because of the administration attack on the sugar industry. But that is wide of the mark, if the story that I got has foundation. One of the leading bankers here is authority for the statement that the consideration in the transfer of the property was a million dollars, and he says he knows what he is talking about. That would seem to be apocryphal but for some facts that are to be taken into account. The Osborns, who are the purchasers, are proprietors of the Evening Herald. Their establishment was recently destroyed by fire, and their paper since has been printed in the Republican office. To re-equip with a complete modern outfit would entail an expense that would mount up beyond a hundred thousand dollars. With both newspapers under one ownership the arrangement that was temporary will become permanent, and re-equipment will not be necessary. The expense that is thus saved could be counted as a sort of bonus and added to the price that might otherwise have been offered. The story, if the banker's tip is correct, lies in this remarkable price, which evidently took the former owners off their feet, and was sufficiently alluring to change the current of well-settled plans.

The Osborns have made good with the afternoon paper in a field that is strewn with wrecks. They are Michigan people, and wealthy. The parental Osborn has been governor of that state and was a candidate for senator two years ago. necessary. The expense that is thus saved could be counted as a sort of bonus and added to the price that might otherwise have been offered. The story, if the banker's tip is correct, lies in this remarkable price, which evidently took the former owners off their feet, and was sufficiently alluring to change the current of well-settled plans.

Party Managers "Dee-lighted"

There is unconcealed satisfaction at Republican headquarters over the transfer of the Republican. A circular letter was issued Thursday announcing the fact, and also stating that to the time that Chester Rowell, veteran California editor, relinquished control of the Republican, one week ago, this publication had taken no decided stand on the campaign. And it quotes from a Republican editorial of October 19, headed "Elect Harding," to show the change in the paper's policy. The headquarters did not state the case entirely. Editor Rowell had taken no decided stand, but he had disapproved both the Republican candidate and the Republican platform. The only gleam of satisfaction in his attitude was the fact that he had equally disapproved the Democratic candidate and platform.

He was in impartial dissent. There is no doubt that he was a thorn in headquarters' side. Rowell, like some other editors, may not have cut much personal ice in his home town, but the Republican under his management had a wide influence. He is a forceful writer, and possesses the rather rare ability of compelling a hearing from those who disagree with him. The considerable contingent which is habitually in dissent was always impressed by his fulmination, and everybody was interested. In the Fresno region there is no doubt that his editorials molded public opinion. That section is normally Republican, and with the influence which disconcerted it gone, there is little doubt that it will return a greatly increased majority for the Republican ticket.

New Office Building

Information reaches me which I consider reliable that investors recently purchased all the gore of Sutter and Market streets east of the Hobart block, and will erect thereon a fifteen story office building. This will necessitate the demolition of the present Flatiron building, itself considered a modern structure. If this report is correct, the site will include the large vacant lot purchased some time ago by the Fleishhakers with the intent to erect thereon a building to house all their extensive interests. This purpose was abandoned, however, upon their purchase of the property on Sansome street adjoining their bank. The erection of a monster office building at the Sutter and Market gore would indicate that the office center is not moving out Market with the the atrial center. The popularity of the Hobart, Balboa, Crocker, First National Bank and Nevada Bank buildings with the higher class office tenants establishes this fact, and no doubt encourages the further building of this class in the vicinity.

Some Recent Arrivals

Last week we had with us two distinguished strangers whose presence was only good for a brief mention in the hotel arrivals. They have achieved places among the great galaxy of writers of fiction. Everybody, first or last, has read the stories of Sir Gilbert Parker and George B. McCutcheon. The former has pictured Canadian life as few if any romantics of the North have been able to do, while the latter has depicted American life at different angles and with sureness of touch. Perhaps they were more pleased than otherwise to escape the mobbing that is incidental to being lionized; but not exactly so another celebrity who arrived during the week. Ty Cobb, one of the great baseball players of the time, gets a quarter of a page, with his picture in uniform and various attitudes; and besides, was variously announced as having arrived for exhibition purposes. It is not the intent to belittle Ty in this comparison. He is a superior ball player, and anybody who is superior at anything that is reputable is a worthy person. Only it is observable that superior baseball playing gets a more pronounced acclaim than a great achievement in letters.

Open Season for Wildfowl

Those who were in the field the minute time was up on the 16th, and had a royal day of it shooting water fowl, came in with varied stories and mostly creditable bags. I listened to a number of yarns, of which one was particularly interesting. It concerned the experiences of a party which went up to Church's ranch for geese. Church's ranch is some four miles from Rio Vista, on the level inland. Church makes a business in the winter time, when he cannot sow or reap on the two thousand acres that he cultivates, to provide shooting for those who have a liking for the sport. Geese are his specialty. He has a hundred live decoys, wild geese which have been wounded. By amputating the first joint of a wing they can never fly again, and by herding and feeding them they at once become domesticated and devote the rest of their lives to luring their wild fellows to their doom. They swim around in a pond and call. Often, it is related, they begin "talking" before the approaching wild flock is seen by the hunters, who are stationed in pits and who shoot upon word from the master of ceremonies. The geese are always shot on the wing, otherwise the decoys would be in danger. The decoys represent five species, which group in kind. The goose which intrudes on a group not of its kind gets run-out at once. But they do not breed in captivity. There is one veteran which has been on the job for twelve years. He is very tame and friendly, eating out of his owner's hand. They do well in the domesticated state except for the hot weather. Five died last summer from the heat. There is now an even hundred in the flock. At night they are shut in a wire-covered yard. They eat a sack of barley every day, and come up chacking and quacking when it is time to be fed. A suggestion that Mr. Church send a couple of pairs to the Oakland park authorities, to be placed among the wild fowl which find sanctuary in Lake Merritt, elicited the statement that he would gladly do so if he knew just who to send them to and was assured that they would be welcomed.

Tivoli Redivivus?

When Turne & Daiken's lease on the Tivoli Opera House expires they will transfer their activities to their new theater in Fourth street, near Market. There is some consideration of a proposition to re-establish the Tivoli as the permanent home of opera, under the well-known management of "Dor" Leahy. The house was built for that purpose. It was supposed that when San Francisco righted itself from the disaster that overtook it in 1906 the patronage for a new Tivoli would be but a continuation of that which for so many years was bestowed upon the old; but the great fire disarranged everything, and the new form of entertainment coming in vogue, the effort to renew Tivoli successes was not successful. There seems to be a growing restlessness among audiences, however, so that now it is wondered if permanent opera on the plan under which it flourished for so many years would not meet popular approval. Theatricals go in cycles. Perhaps the cycle has brought around the psychological time for reviving operatic performances on the old-time Tivoli plan.

Aerial Mail Carrying a Success

Colonel John A. Jordan, Chief of Construction of United States Air Mail Service, replying to questions regarding the new service, states that the aerial mail is faster by more than two days than the train service between New York and San Francisco; that it is "cheaper by far" than train service, and more efficient, and faster than telegraph service between two stations, and that it will pay. The original letter postage on aerial mail was 26 cents: this was first cut to 16, then to 6 and now it is two cents, because it has been found that mail can be carried cheaper by air than by train. A load of mail at present costs for transportation between San Francisco and Reno about $22. It could not be sent by express for that, and would have required some 24 hours for delivery, while by aerial carriage it takes just one hour and fifty minutes. As to efficiency, in 127 days, from May till October, aerial mail was steadily maintained between Cleveland and Chicago. In that time never was the mail delayed more than five minutes, and never interrupted. Time and again has it been demonstrated that aerial mail is faster than the telegraph between stations. Between Chicago and Cleveland it was the custom to wire to the destination the sailing of each airship, at the same time putting a copy of the message aboard the airship itself. Four times out of five the airship delivered its message before the wire message was delivered.

Clash of Authority

The statement by Internal Revenue Collector Wardell that families will be permitted to make 200 gallons of wine for their own use, is believed in some quarters to have been a bid for the Italian vote. If it was, the beans are spilled, unless anybody who is superior at anything that is reputable is a worthy person. Only it is observable that superior baseball playing gets a more pronounced acclaim than a great achievement in letters.

Ex-Governor Gillett Reappears

Former Governor Gillett's reappearance in the active political arena was occasioned by the non arrival of Senator Beveridge, whose detention was due to a stalled train, and who thus missed an engagement to speak. The Governor has not participated openly in any campaign since his own, which was fourteen years ago. That is not to say that he has not been interested. It is recognized by all who give the subject honor-bright consideration that his administration was one of the most economical and efficient in California's history. Figures are available to prove the assertion as to economy: the claim as to efficiency has been challenged. There were no excitements and complications as to commissions, which seems to be accepted in some quarters as progress and efficiency. But the people of California get along quite well, and probably remember that they were not interfered with in their several businesses and avocations to the extent that they have been since, often to little purpose, as it would appear. Governor Gillett has spent most of the time since his term as Governor looking after the interests of California oil producers, which have been in a swirl for ten years on account of the controversy and litigation over oil lands.

Again Addicott

The tangle over Addicott has not been unravelled. Indeed, it is a worse snarl now than ever. The University of California discredited the "Tech," of which he is the principal. He expelled seventy pupils for failing in their work, apparently to fetch up the rating, which resulted in an uproar. The Board of Education summarily dismissed him. The city attorney delivered an opinion that he had been unlawfully dismissed. A political issue evolved. A charter amendment aimed at the Superintendent of Schools was placed on the ballot—the superintendent being anti-Addicott. The superintendent is now elected and the amendment would make the office appointive. Addicott reflects on the schools and some persons through circulars and campaign literature. The mayor now enters upon the scene in wrath. "He has besmirched and dragged into the mud the high standard of our San Francisco schools," says the mayor. "If an injustice was done when he was dismissed he should be reinstated; but if he is going to drag the school department in the mud all over the state—I am going to kick him out." And there you are.

Honoring a Publisher

The dinner to Aleck Robertson is an earnest tribute to most estimable character. California is rich in its literature. It has given to the world a number of writers who have attained world recognition, and volumes of literature that has taken front rank; but it would not have done this had there not been publishers who recognized talent and had faith. Such a publisher is Robertson. He is the legitimate successor of A. Roman, and of the pioneer Doxey, whom Californians, harking back to the days of Bret Harte's Overland Monthly, will readily remember. Robertson's friendship for and encouragement of young writers is well known. To many he has extended help in direct ways; to many others, uncertain of their initial flights, he has expressed faith in their talent and rendered assistance variously. His well-known disposition to take a chance in publishing an unknown writer's work has been exercised in many instances, and not always to his profit; but that has not made him shy of the budding author, and he continues their friend and encourager.

Industrial Improvement

One of the gratifying developments during the past few weeks, according to an industrial report, is the showing of increased efficiency in many industries. The great steel corporation is cited. Much to the surprise of even its management, its efficiency record shows that it is now at a higher point than it has been for five years. Another big industry reports that while it has laid off twenty per cent of its force, its production is higher than when the greater force was employed. The Pennsylvania railroad claims that it will have a higher degree of efficiency after having laid off 12,000 of the men added to its force under Federal control. The reasons given for the improved industrial conditions is that for the first time in several years men working in these various industries have come to realize that their jobs are of real value, and that there is no longer a certainty that after jumping one job they can get another at once when in a mood to go to work again.

A Highway to Mexico City

On one of his visits here a number of San Franciscans formed themselves into a committee to receive General Obregon, and to see that he got into the city right. It was considered desirable that the first notable Mexican, having prominently to do with its affairs, to visit this city should arrive under favorable auspices and should not carry away false impressions. He was induced to come from Los Angeles by automobile and came via the coast route. It was noted at the time that his observation was keen and that he was visibly impressed with signs of progress and culture that were in evidence en route. He became sensible, among other things, of the advantage of good roads, which admitted of such a journey being taken in such comfort. Echoes of the impressions left upon him are believed to have been heard in a recent speech at Dallas, Texas.
